DEMANN IS THE NEW CHAIRMAN

County Commissiooers Elect Lake Pleasant Member to Preside—Extended Meeting.

The board of county commissioners met in regular January session at the court house Tuesday morning, and the entire week has been given over to the work of getting the county's business started in the proper channels for 1904.

The first business was the selection of a chairman and Wm. Demann was chosen. Mr. Demann is a capable officer and is bound to make a successful head of the county's trustee board.

Jas. Sutor, the former chairman was elected vice-chairman for 1904.

All bids for piers under the bridge over the Clearwater at Terrebonne were rejected, and the auditor was instructed to advertise for bids for the same work.

J. O. Gjerberg was chosen as janitor at the court house for 1904. Any county in the state never had a more competent janitor than Mr. Gjerberg, and his retention is commendable.

Extention was granted to A. F. Anderson and his bondsmen to August 1, 1904, to complete Gervais ditch No. 3.

Petition of L. Laframboise to have his land set out from school district No. 10 to school district No. 112 was laid over until next meeting.

The report of the board of audit was approved.

In the matter of the petition of Mike Grassman, et al, for new school district, action was deferred until the next session.

The list of names from which the grand and petit jury for 1904 will be drawn was selected and turned over to the clerk of court.

D. P. O'Neill had a petition praying that his land be set off from school district No. 18 to district No. 165, but same was unanimously rejected.

Commissioner Hanson offered a motion that the chairman of the board, county auditor and county attorney be appointed a purchasing committee for 1904, same being carried unanimously.

The county revenue fund was swelled $1400, this amount being taken from the general ditch fund.

The board will probably not finish their labors before tomorrow night, as there is yet considerable business to be looked after.

Red Lake county has been fortunate in selecting her commissioners, and the present board never fails to exercise the keenest jodgment in the transaction of the county's affairs.

JANUARY BAND CONCERT.

Prof. Onstad Arranging for Brilliant Event.

Prof. Onstad and Manager Berthon have elaborate arrangements complete for the January band concert, which will be held at the Metropolitan Friday evening of next week—January 15.

The band numbers will consist of three selections from favorite authors, each of which is a treat and worth coming far to hear. They will be a grand selection from "Faust" one from the "Daughter of the Regiment" and the pretty descsiptive fantasy, "The Forge in the Forest." Besides the band numbers there will be several vocal selections and other charming features.

The complete program will be printed next week, and the people will do well to begin to make plans to attend.

RICHARDSON WON.

Thief River Election Contest Case Decided.

Judge Grindeland handed down his decision in the Richardson-Krata election contest case Tuesday morning, and ordered that judgement be entered in favor of Mr. Richardson. Judge Grindeland held that the ballots cast and entitled to be counted were a tie, but that four votes were cast for Krata by persons who were not legal voters, and these deducted gave Richardson a majority.

Attorney Grady, of this city, was Kratka's attorney, while Richardson was represented by Judge Montague, of Crookston.

The fight was originally to determine who should receive the postoffice appointment at the up-river city, it being stated that the loser would lay down and leave a clean field for the other fellow. Kratka got four majority on the first count, but the recount gave Richardson enough to tie, and in the other matter the court decided as stated above.

It has been reported here that Richardson would refuse to qualify, being a great deal more anxious to hold onto the postoffice (and the salary) than to receive the honors (and abuses) of mayor of that town of uncertain quantities.

LATER—Attorney Grady tells the Gazette today that notice of appeal has been filed, and the case will be taken to the supeme court.

We hereby agree and promise to close our stores at 6:30 p. m. excepting Saturday evenings, during January, February and March, beginning Monday, January 11, 1904:

PROFIT SHARING A[illegible] CO-OPERATION IN[illegible]AD OF WAGES

By CARROLL [illegible] WRIGHT
United S[illegible] Commissioner of Labor

THE wage system will pass away. In its stead I believe there will come a system which will be composed of PROFIT SHARING AND CO-OPERATION. The great labor question means the struggle of humanity for a higher standard of life. The employer must consider his employee as well as the stockholder as an investor.

ENGLAND HAS TAKEN UP THIS SYSTEM, AND WE OF THE UNITED STATES ARE STEADILY APPROACHING IT.

Capital charges to the consumer the depreciation of property and machinery. Why should not the depreciation of labor machinery, its hands, its brains and its body, be included in the final cost?

We see in every progressive comm[illegible] that the demand of the workingman is no longer for a wage [illegible] to enable him to keep body and soul together.

* * *

Labor has been taught to feel that [illegible] a SOCIAL as well as an ECONOMIC power in the community, and this educating process has gone on until the demand for labor is for a reasonable margin beyond that fixed by the iron law of wages.

The wage system will pass away. [illegible] as has been shown, unsatisfactory in many of its applications. It depends too largely for its equities upon the GENEROSITY [illegible] great mindedness of EMPLOYERS. That there are many [illegible] who would scorn to influence the votes or actions of their employees and who would be incapable of taking petty or great advan[illegible] of their workmen is happily true.

That there are others, however, who make use of their opportunities proves the weakness of the syst[illegible] argues for a greater measure of INDEPENDENCE for th[illegible] labor.

The system that will take the plac[illegible] under which mere wages are paid probably will be compo[illegible] the profit sharing and co-operation plans.

THE WORK PEOPLE WILL THEN ACQUIRE THE INTEREST OF INVESTORS, THE MORE CAPABLE WI[illegible] TO THEIR OPPORTUNITIES, AND THE LESS WORTHY [illegible]

Fool's Resting Place.

Take a walk through any of the cemeteries throughtout the country and you will believe with us that fools are slowly but surely passing away. With silent tread you pass the last resting place of the individual who blew into an empty gun. The modest tombstone of the hired girl who lighted the fire with kerosine, and the grass covered mound that covers the mortal remains of a boy who took a mule by the tail near by. The tall monument of the man who didn't know it was loaded overshadows the dugout of a man who jumped off the cars to save a ten rod walk. Side by side lie the remains of the ethereal creature who always kept her corset laced up to the last hole and the intellectual idiot that rode nine miles in ten minutes. Here reposes the young doctor who took a dose of his own medicine and the old fool who married a young wife. Over yonder in the northwestern corner where the gentle breezes sigh over the weeping willows, lies the fellow who told his mother-in-law she lied. Near by, his grave unmarked, reposes the moulderiog dust of the editor who starved to death trying to run a first class paper in a second class town. Over by the entrance reposes the boy who went swimming too early in the season and the lady who kept strychine and baking powder side by side in the cupboard.—Ex.

[illegible] Thief River [illegible] Winslow [illegible] Iroquois [illegible] Chicago. [illegible] first report of his death came at shortly after [illegible] o'clock Wednesday morning in a telephone message from John Ballard from Minneapolis stating that he had seen among the list of dead one C. A. Winslow of Three Rivers, Minn., and as it was known that Mr. Winslow was in Chicago an investigation [illegible] at once set on foot to ascertain whether or not this referred to the Thief River man. At 12:00 a telegram was received from D. N. Winton which left no doubt of the truth of the rumor. The telegram [illegible] follows:

"Mr. Winslow was [illegible] to death at Iroquois theater at [illegible] o'clock yesterday. Break news gently to Mrs. Winslow and advise what to do with the body."

The news was at once broken to Mrs. Winslow who bore up wonderfully well, she seeming to hardly realize the full force of the blow. She in company with her son, Carl, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wright left on the afternoon train for Milwaukee to which point the body was taken by Mr. Winton pending the arrival of the family.

C. E. Winslow was born Sept. 7, 1860, at Stevens Point, Wis. In 1882 he was married to Miss Lizzie Boehm, who survives him as does one son. He had at various times been interested in lumbering at Wausau, Stevens Point and Chicago. Four years ago he came to this place where he has since resided.

He was a Knight Templar, Knight of Pythias, and Mason, of which local lodge he had been Master since its oganization some three years ago.

The news of the death of Mr. Winslow cast a gloom over the entire community, there being no man in the city better beloved and held in higher esteem than he.

FIVE TOWNSHIPS TO BE OPENED

One Hundred Thousand Acres Ready for Settlement This Month.

Inquiries are pouring into the local land office at Duluth concerning the five new townships in this district which are to be thrown open for settlement this month, and many prospective homesteaders and entrymen on stone and timber claims have gone north to inspect the property, says the Duluth Herald.

All of the land which is to become available for entry is in northern Itasca county, in the Big Fork country, and southwest of International Falls. The opening of these lands will take place as follows:

Townships 66-26 and 67-26, Jan. 12; townships 66-27 and 69-26, Jan. 12; township 156-25, Jan. 14.

This makes considerably over 100,000 acres of valuable land which will be available for the public and will probably be one of the largest blocks which will be thrown open at any one time.

[illegible]

The newly elected city officers took the oath of office Tuesday afternoon and that evening met in their first executive session.

Mayor Duffy handed in the following appointments, which were confirmed by the council:

Chief of Police—George Brunelle.

Nightwatch—Arthur Lizee.

[illegible] and city physician—[illegible] Wilkinson.

The honorable council elected Fred [illegible] president for the ensuing [illegible] M. A. Hatten vice president, A. P. Toupin city clerk.

The council chose other officers as follows:

City attorney—[illegible] Boughton.

Assessor—E. A. [illegible]

Street Commissioner—John Deforge.

Poundmasters—[illegible] and J. Deforge.

Board of Health—Messrs. Hatten, Brady and Crompe.

No other city business was taken up, the fathers merely talking over matters looking to the welfare of the people.

The Gazette considers that Mayor Duffy and the council have chosen capable officers, and trusts that their official careers be marked with acts that will always remain to their credit.

The exceptional length of the Great Northern's passing track there makes this no easy task, but the engineers in charge will find a way in and out that is not open to serious objection, one of the lines so far runs in and out on the west side of town the other runs in at the northwest and out at the southeast, thus avoiding all sharp curves and bringing it right into the heart of the city. The latter line is the one most favored by both the engineers. DISPUTES, NOT WAGES, CAUSE MOST STRIKES

By Ex-Congressman W. BOURKE COCKRAN

COMPARATIVELY few strikes are due to disputes over WAGES. These are fixed by immutable laws. To my mind, where there is a suspension of industry the EMPLOYER should be held responsible. He is the captain to whom all others must look. The man in charge of an industry, no matter what it may be, who lacks the skill to deal successfully with the men employed under him shows by his impotency that he was never fit to have been placed in charge of it. I don't say that he lacks anything in morals or honesty, but HE LACKS SKILL.

The persons who employ men should have at least the same skill as those in charge of horses or mules. A man couldn't hitch a team of mules to a wagon with their heads where their tails ought to be and expect them to work well. Such a man might be a very moral person and proficient in the Scriptures, but I think that his employer would soon get some other man less excellent in morality, but more perfect in driving mules.

THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR MOST OF THE STRIKES LIES WITH OUR CAPTAINS OF INDUSTRY. It is true that capitalists realize in a general way that they and the laboring men are partners, but in the breasts of many men still lingers the old prejudice imbued into humanity in the early Roman and feudal days when labor was servile. They seem to forget that the term "service" doesn't apply to labor now, that there is a real partnership between the capitalist and the man who works and that TOGETHER THEY MUST PROSPER OR DECLINE.

If we look over all these strikes we do not find that they have arisen through disputes over wages, but were due to disputes with the men whom the employer dealt with. I don't see what difference it makes whether the employer dealt with A. B. C. or somebody else. Yet against that we have seen whole industries paralyzed, conditions of society threatened, because the employer would not settle with some OUTSIDE PERSON. That is no reason for causing a disruption.

WHAT CONCERNS THE EMPLOYER AND THE LABORER IS WHAT SHOULD HE PAY AND WHAT SHOULD HE BE PAID.

RICHES NOT THE TRUE TEST OF SUCCESS

By United States Senator CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW

WE must learn that SUCCESS HAS OTHER MEANINGS THAN GREAT WEALTH. There always will be men phenomenally gifted with a talent for accumulation. It is useless for those who have not like faculties and judgment to compete for the prize of being considered among the possessors of the largest fortunes in the world.

If a man narrows his work and ambitions to the one object of an enormous fortune and succeeds before he dies in being reckoned among the few who are the world's largest holders of its wealth, HE HAS FAILED IN HIS EFFORTS. Simply as a rich man, and nothing else, he is of less account, in proportion to the number of his fellow citizens who have more than he possesses. The one million dollar man has no rank or place or consideration in the ten million class, and the ten million chap is a little fellow in the fifty or hundred million dollar circle.

But every one who has attained a most modest independence is a success. THE REST IS ACCUMULATION.

A HOME WHICH IS OWNED, BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE, IS INDEPENDENCE. AN INCOME WHICH WILL ENABLE ONE TO LIVE WITHIN THAT HOME IS A LARGER INDEPENDENCE.

We must remember that this would be a ghastly world if there were not MANY STANDARDS of distinction. Webster, Clay and Calhoun present ideals of success; so do Lincoln and McKinley; so do Beecher, Storrs, Channing and Theodore Parker; so do Wendell Phillips and William Lloyd Garrison; so do Greeley, Weed and Bennett; so do Irving, Longfellow and Hawthorne; so do the explorers who have discovered new countries for overcrowded populations, the inventors who have added immensely to the sum of human comfort and happiness and eminent workers in philanthropy.

WE MAY NOT REACH THEIR HEIGHTS AND ATTAIN THEIR FAME, BUT WE CAN FIND EDUCATION, GROWTH AND HOURLY INCREASING PLEASURE IN CAMPING ON THEIR TRAILS.

The Stage's Appropriation of the Bible

By Bishop BURGESS of Long Island

THE STAGE OF TODAY HAS PROCLAIMED ITSELF THE SUBSTITUTE FOR THE PULPIT.

It not only gives us so called moral plays, but, what is worse, THE GOSPEL IS BEING USED NOW AS A BACKGROUND FOR STAGE SCENERY. Even that woman who was the first to behold the risen Jesus on Easter has been made a heroine of the boards.

But in the drama we see the result of pagan thought where a characterless fool is represented in awful mockery as the Redeemer and Saviour. His feet are washed by the woman who was a sinner and, in fearful imitation of the gospel, are wiped with her long hair.

A representation of the Last Supper of the Son of God is shown on the stage and words sung which make one shudder.

NO MAGNIFICENT MUSIC, NO FINE ACTING, CAN BLOT OUT THE UNDERTONE OF SACRILEGE. SURELY THIS IS BLASPHEMY AGAINST THE HOLY GHOST.

TOILET TIPS.

Boil cucumber peelings in water and use as face lotion.

Never put anything on the teeth unless you know its properties.

A pinch of borax in the bath will correct an objectionable tendency toward an oily skin.

Don't be afraid of soap. It is not the enemy to the complexion that many people consider it. It is infinitely better for the skin than the dirt which will collect in the pores.

Don't use a sponge. It no longer fills a long felt want on the toilet table because it is apt to become filled with germs poisonous to the skin. Use a bit of antiseptic cloth or the hands.

An excellent dentifrice is made from two ounces of powdered borax, one pint of hot water, two ounces of tincture of myrrh, one tablespoonful of spirits of camphor and one ounce of concentrated aromatic vinegar.

Some women who are particular over their toilet accessories make their own tincture of benzoin. This they do by breaking up half an ounce of gum benzoin and immersing it in two ounces of pure alcohol. The liquor is then strained and bottled.

Women Who Ride Astride.

Should women in the hunting field ride astride? Those chiefly concerned have more or less settled the point by deciding that they may if they wish, for there is an appreciable number of women in England today who habitually ride astride after hounds. They do so not with the desire to look manly, but simply because it is easier to do a hard day's hunting seated firmly astride than seated sideways. The feminine appearance is strictly preserved by an ingenious arrangement of the skirt, which falls on either side of the horse. After all, ladies do not ride bicycles sideways. Accidents to women who ride astride are few and far between. The point of the hunting habit nowadays is that it must have a safety skirt which shall prevent its wearer being "hung up" in case of accident. The safety skirt is, as a matter of fact, not a skirt at all, but a covering more or less of the apron type that simulates the old flowing drapery habit of years ago, which was the cause of so many agonizing accidents to women in the hunting field.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

E. K. Slater of Fairmont and Hans T. Sondergaard of Litchfield have been appointed butter experts of the state dairy and food commission to succeed B. D. White of St. Paul and Samuel Haugdahl of St. Peter, who have resigned.

Patrick H. Carney, the oldest engineer on the Northern Pacific, having been in the service for thirty-two years, twenty-five years of which time was on the run of Numbers 5 and 6, between Brainerd and St. Paul, is dead at his home in Brainerd. He was one of the most notable men in the history of railroad service in the state.

The state supreme court has filed a decision affirming the findings of the lower court in the big land case of E. S. Kosmerl et al. against Katrina Mueller et al. This action originated in Duluth and concerned the ownership of rich mineral lands in the Mesaba range. The lower court decided in favor of Kosmerl and the supreme court upholds this decision.

Fire which destroyed half a block of buildings at Hoffman and threatened to raze the town caused damage to the amount of $75,000. The fire started in L. L. Breen's general store, it is supposed, from an overheated stove. A high wind caused the fire to spread and several other buildings on the same side of the street were burned before the flames could be placed under control.

A. B. Wolvin has accepted a proposition tendered him by the United States Steel corporation whereby, even though he retires from active service as vice president and general manager of the Pittsburg Steamship company, he will continue with the corporation in an advisory capacity on matters relating to the interest of the concern of the Great Lakes. His headquarters will be in Duluth.

The state supreme court, in a decision by Justice Brown, has decided that representatives of labor unions have a right to enter premises where members of their unions are employed for the purpose of ordering them or notifying them to quit work. In this respect he modifies the injunction granted by Judge Cray of Minneapolis, which restrained members of labor unions from interfering with men at work or from entering premises where they were employed for the purpose of directing them to quit work.

RESIGNS FROM BENCH

JUDGE COLLINS TENDERS RESIGNATION AS MEMBER OF SUPREME COURT.

Worthington Physician Dies From Poison Taken by Mistake—Record Breaking Prices for Pine on the Cass Lake Reservation—Nelson Boys Want Sentence of Death Commuted—General State News.

St. Paul, Jan. 1.—Associate Justice Loren W. Collins of the state supreme court, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, has tendered his resignation to Governor Van Sant, who promptly accepted it. Attorney General Douglas has been named to fill the vacancy on the bench and Assistant Attorney General W. J. Donahower succeeds Douglas.

St. Paul, Jan. 2.—Following closely upon the resignation of Judge Collins from the state supreme bench, comes the retirement of James A Martin from the state board of control. Mr. Martin will probably manage Judge Collins' campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

SPIRITED BIDDING FOR PINE.

Record-Breaking Prices Submitted at Cass Lake, Minn.

Duluth, Dec. 30.—Frederick Weyerhauser's spirited bidding for Chippewa pine, as disclosed by the record-breaking prices submitted Monday at the second sale at Cass Lake, will put many thousands of dollars into the pockets of the Indians. Through the agency of the Rock Island Lumber and Manufacturing company, of which Weyerhauser is the head, the price of $5.84 obtained earlier in December was advanced to $6.80 Monday—a figure which is unprecedented in the history of reservation sales. All of the eleven bidders were well up to this figure.

It is stated that Weyerhauser and his associates now control three-fourths of the pine stumpage in Minnesota.

PHYSICIAN DIES ON ROAD.

Drinks Poison by Mistake While Returning From Visit to Patient.

Worthington, Minn., Jan. 4.—Dr. E. J. Dolan accidentally drank the contents of a one-ounce vial of carbolic acid during the evening and died under peculiarly tragic circumstances.

He had been called to attend a patient several miles south of this place and started for home about 8 o'clock. The weather was bitterly cold and he opened his case and, mistaking the bottle, swallowed the poison. He immediately took what little antidote he had with him and called to his driver to make all possible speed to town.

When they were within a mile of his home Dr. Dolan, crazed with pain, jumped out of the carriage. The driver was unable to hold him and he died in a few minutes.

ASK FOR LIFE SENTENCE.

Nelson Boys Appeal to Minnesota Pardon Board for Clemency.

St. Paul, Dec. 29.—Charles and Henry Nelson, condemned to be hanged Feb. 10 for the murder of Henry H. Krier, at Owatonna, April 13 last, have made formal application to the state board of pardons for commutation of their sentences to imprisonment for life.

Charles Nelson, who is the elder of the two, has only within the past few days arrived at the age of nineteen years, and Henry became seventeen Aug. 22. In both cases the chief ground upon which clemency is asked is the extreme youth of the condemned prisoners.

MORE THAN 100,000 ACRES.

Duluth, Dec. 30.—All of the land which is to become available for entry next month is in Northern Itasca county, in the Big Fork country, and southwest of International falls. The opening of these lands will take place as follows:

Townships 66-26 and 67-26, Jan. 12; townships 66-27 and 69-27, Jan. 13; townships 156-25, Jan. 14.

This makes considerably over 100,000 acres of valuable land which will be available for the public.

MANY CUT AND BRUISED.

Flooring of Hokah (Minn.) Opera House Collapses.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 2.—The weight of 400 people attending an entertainment in the opera house at Hokah, Minn., caused the flooring to give way and nearly half the number were thrown to the ground in a heap.

Panic reigned among the women and children for a short time, but no one was fatally injured. Many were severely cut and bruised.

Brainerd Hotel Destroyed.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 2.—Fire broke out in the Arlington hotel, the leading hostelry of the city, at 6 a. m. and before the flames were subdued $50,000 worth of property went up in smoke. There were some thirty guests in the house at the time but all escaped safely.

Carlisle Denies Charges.

Minneapolis, Jan. 2.—Harry Silberberg, alias J. J. Carlisle, the accused hypnotist in the Hennepin county jail, confident that he will live but a short time, has issued a denial of the charges made against him, saying they are the result of spite and all false.

Attempt Suicide by Pioson.

Minneapolis, Dec. 31.—May Smith, a waitress, and Michael Tilfin, a butcher, despondent over unfortunate love affairs, attempted suicide last evening by swallowing carbolic acid. Both were carried to the city hospital and both will recover.

ENGINEER'S BRAVE DEED.

Crosses Ruined Bridge to Save Approaching Train.

Crookston, Minn., Dec. 30.—What might have been a very serious catastrophe, with a heavy loss of life and a long list of injured, was averted by the bravery and coolness of a Crookston man.

The large Great Northern railroad bridge over the Mouse river at Surrey, N. D., in some mysterious manner caught fire late at night, and the structure in a short while was a mass of charred ruins. No. 4, the eastbound fast coast train, was approaching the burning bridge, and the crew had no knowledge of the fire. Owing to the fierce blizzard the blaze could not be seen for more than 100 yards, and telegraph communication was cut off shortly after the fire started, and railroad men at Granville were in a quandry about warning the approaching flyer. The bridge which crosses the Mouse river is ten miles east of Minot, and Norwich was the nearest point upon the west side at which the train could be stopped.

Engineer Greenhough boarded a light engine, pulled the throttle wide open and headed down the track in the hope that he might reach the bridge before the fire had seriously weakened it. Without a thought of his own life or the fate of his engine, as he approached the bridge he pulled the throttle wide open, to either go over it and warn the approaching train or through the structure into eternity.

The bridge stood the trial and the engine rushed on to Norwich, where the "flyer" was flagged and the crew warned of their danger.

FRANKLIN CHOSEN PREESIDENT.

Faribault Man Head of Minnesota Educational Association.

St. Paul, Jan. 1.—The forty-first annual meeting of the Minnesota Educational association, the most successful in the history of the organization, came to a close yesterday afternoon with a general session at the Central Presbyterian church.

The final session was attended by nearly a thousand teachers. A large amount of business, including the election of a compromise slate of officers, which prevented an impending clash of the McIntire-Bryant factions, occupied the early part of the afternoon.

The following officers were elected: President, George A. Franklin, Faribault; general secretary, Guy Maxwell, Winona state normal school; recording secretary, Miss Mary Fanning, St. Paul; treasurer, Miss Christine Goetzinger, county superintendent of Otter Tail county.

Francis B. Atkinson of Chicago, editor of the Little Chronicle, delivered the principal address of the afternoon. All the special sections closed up their work yesterday morning.

COUSIN SUSPECTED OF MURDER.

Insane Man Shot and Killed Near Little Falls, Minn.

Little Falls, Minn., Dec. 31.—William J. Snow was shot and instantly killed near here and his cousin, Charles Snow, is said to have fired the fatal shot. Charles Snow has not been arrested as yet although Sheriff Tanner and his deputies are searching for him.

It is said that the dead man was subject to fits of insanity and became violent at times. He threatened to kill his aunt, with whom he has lived for fifteen years, and that person fled to her daughter's house, a short distance away.

William Snow then went away and his cousin is said to have started out in search of him with a gun.

Some hours later William Snow's body was found lying in a pool of blood with a revolver by his side. After an examination, however, it was decided that death was caused by a bullet from a 42-caliber rifle, which is said to have been the caliber of Charles Snow's gun.

BRIEFS IN MERGER CASE.

Securities Company Files Reply to State of Minnesota.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Two briefs on behalf of the appellees in the case of the state of Minnesota against the Northern Securities company and others, involving the consolidation of the ownership of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads in the Securities company, were filed during the day in the United States supreme court. One of these was a general argument in behalf of all the appellees and the other a special brief in support of the proposition of the Securities company only.

The general brief is signed by Attorneys John B. Johnson, George B. Young, M. D. Grover and C. W. Bunn. The other is signed by Attorney W. H. Clough. Both briefs contend for the regularity of the purchase of the shares of the railroad companies by the Securities company and urge that the Minnesota anti-trust law does not cover the transaction.

Duluth Land Office Business.

Duluth, Jan. 2.—According to figures prepared by the register and receiver of the Duluth land office 615,000 acres of public lands were entered at that office under timber and homestead applications during the calendar year just ended. The estimated receipts for the year aggregated $466,475.72, which is very near the amount totaled in 1902.

Robert Mannheimer Dead.

St. Paul, Dec. 29.—Robert Mannheimer, president of the Mannheimer Brothers' Dry Goods company since its organization twenty-eight years ago, died at his home here Monday after an illness of eighteen months of Bright's disease. Robert Mannheimer was the last of the three brothers, who came to St. Paul from Chicago in 1876.

Minnesota Town Scorched.

Wheaton, Minn., Dec. 30.—The most destructive fire that Wheaton has ever had broke out at midnight, entirely wiping out the Sorenson & Mork hardware and furniture store, the Footprints newspaper plant, Cory's law office, the Carlson building and millinery establishment and the First State bank. The loss is about $40,000.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

INTO POLITICS, NOT OFF THE BENCH.

The early dispatches sent out from St. Paul about Judge Collins were defective in details and misleading. They announced that he had resigned, that Gov. Van Sant had accepted his resignation, and appointed his successor. The natural assumption from this, unaccompanied by further details, was that Judge Collins had ceased to be a member of the supreme bench, says the Duluth News-Tribune.

But, quite the contrary, he is still sitting in the highest tribunal of the state of Minnesota, though an avowed candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, with a manager in the field and a political organization wholly or partly completed for the purpose of promoting his candidacy. His resignation does not take effect until March 31. For three months yet he will be engaged in the duties of justice of the supreme court, deliberating on, discussing, deciding cases, writing opinions, etc.

Recent transactions have brought out in clearer light than ever the impropriety of a justice of the supreme court presenting himself to the people as a candidate for political office. A universal sentiment demanded Judge Collins' resignation, if he were to continue a candidate. His friends saw the utter impossibility of success if he remained on the bench. But there were considerations that militated strongly against such a resolution. A man in his place could not vacate it instantaneously without abandoning solemn duties which had been appointed to him by the people and which he had sworn to perform. Could he peremptorily lay down the work of the October term, turn his back on the cases in which he had sat, and turn over to a successor who knew nothing about them, opinions which he had agreed to write? Would not his associates on the bench rebuke him for loading onto their shoulders labors, which he was, himself, bound in duty and decency to discharge?

A justice of the supreme court cannot, then, in honor, vacate his seat at a moment's warning. His obligations will not permit him to do so. Hence it is that Judge Collins has plunged into the hurley-burley of politics without withdrawing from our supreme tribunal, and a striking illustration of how strongly founded is the principle which he is antagonizing. He hangs helplessly, now on one, and now on the other, horn of delemma which his candidacy developed.

The News Tribune sympathizes with and pities a man whom errors of judgment have drawn into a situation so sad, after many years of honorable, efficient service. But Judge Collins' mistakes are irretrievable. His fatal candidacy involved him in contradictions and complications. Drawn this way and that, he hesitated and deliberated for months, and was finally hurried into precipitate action which leaves him a spectacle of commiseration. Striving to get rid of the incongruity between service on the supreme bench and seeking political preferment, he made a desperate dash, and is now up to his neck in politics, though still Justice Loren W. Collins, member of the supreme bench of Minnesota, passing on the rights, franchises and liberties of people whose suffrage he solicits.

Judge Collins has achieved his own political ruin; but has done the state such service that, in all time to come, no man will dare to sit on the supreme bench for a day and permit his name to be openly urged for political office.

Farmers should not forget to call ... when in town ...

SUSTAINING POWER OF THE AMERICAN FARMER.

The lucid and simple logic of Secretary Wilson is not needed to convince most men that our national wealth and our prosperity may be traced to the soil. Neither does it require any elaborate argument to show that the American farmer is independent of the stock-jobbing and stock-watering operations in Wall street.

His keen observations regarding the important part the farmer is playing in the financial affairs of the nation, however, are always interesting. In a recent interview in the New York Herald he calls attention to the fact, well known to exporters and investors, that it is the farmer who keeps the balance of trade in our favor. In 1903 the surplus agricultural products, which we did not need in this country and which were sold abroad, amounted in value to $878,000,000. Excluding the products of the farm there was during the period from 1890 to 1902 an annual adverse of trade amounting to $62,000,000. Including the farm products this balance is wiped out, and we had left $275,000,000 to the credit of the country. During 1903 there was an unfavorable balance of trade in exports and imports other than those of the farm which amounted to $56,000,000, but when the agricultural exports are included the balance in our favor is about $367,000,000.

In these significant figures may be seen the tremendous reserve sustaining power of the farmers of this country.

A writer of the World's Works says: "There is no business in the world that grows half so fast as our postoffice money order system. Last year its total business increased at the rate of one million dollars a week. To make it plainer, the money order department will handle next week $1,000,000 more than last week. It loses by fraud less than one thousand dollars a year. It showed its regular annual increase in the period of of financial depression from 1893 to 1897, perhaps the only large business in the country that did.

The general public is wondering, now that the Kratka-Richardson contest is over, what will be the next factional fight to occupy the boards at our dear netghbor on the north bend of the river. Surely Thief River hasn't arrived at the stage where she can exist without the usual spectacular stuggle.

Christmas doesn't come in Russia until January 7. That, however, doesn't begin to represent the distance which Russia is behind the rest of the world in most matters, remarks the Crookston Journal man.

Colonel Bryan has brought suit against himself in order to have a legal point cleared up. If the colonel doesn't watch out he will be turning himself into a plot for a comic opera.

Mr. Bryan says his trip to Europe has not caused him to change his views as to silver. Why should it, after the elections of '96 and 1900 failed to shake him?

EUSTIS IN THE RACE.

William H. Eustis is a receptive candidate for governor.

The former mayor of Minneapolis gave out a statement last Friday, in which he announces that he is willing to accept the nomination. He left that evening for Porto Rico, and will spend the winter in warmer climes. When he returns he will become a candidate, if the outlook is favorable.

The statement is a notice to the republicans of the state, that the Minneapolis man is to be reckoned with in the next convention. It is a bid for support, and a tip to the many republicans who are friendly to Mr. Eustis, not to make any other alliances. It is a concession to his earnest friends, who have been urgling him to get into the fight, and it is now up to them to develop a favorable situation before Mr. Eustis returns.

William Henry Eustis is an old resident of Minneapolis, one of the leading republicans of the state, and a man of a national reputation. He was elected mayor in 1892 and served two years. His famous "policy" in the regulation of vice kept up a storm of controversy during his term, and he was not a candidate for renomination. Mr. Eustis was a candidate for governor in 1896, but only got a few votes in the convention. In 1898 he was a candidate again, and was nominated on the second ballot, over S. R. Van Sant and L. W. Collins. He was defeated at the polls by John Lind. The general verdict was that he would have been elected against any other democrat, but he had to contend with the treachery of the Clough administration, which gave aid to Lind. Since that time he has not been a candidate for any office. Last summer Secretary Shaw offered him a position as one of the appraisers of the port of New York, but Eugene Hay was already a candidate for a federal appointment, with the endorsement of the Minnesota delegation, and Mr. Eustis declined to stand in his way, so Mr. Hay received the appointment.

HOW SOON WE FORGET.

The tomb of Zachary Taylor, the twelfth president of the United States, is fast falling to decay.

A correspondent who recently visited the place says for over half a century it has lacked the care of a kindly hand.

Apparently nobody cares.

The tomb lies five miles from Louisville, and is somewhat off the road. Ivy riots over the weather-beaten blocks of granite. The fastenings on the door are red with rust. So far as known, no key has turned the locks for fifty years. Visitors are rare. It is doubtful if half a dozen tourists visit the tomb during a twelvemonth.

And this neglected spot is the last resting place of the hero of the Black Hawk and Florida wars. Here is the dust of that great soldier who, with 4,000 American riflemen, drove in retreat 20,000 Mexicans under Santa Ana at Buena Visita. Here are the remains of the American Cortez and the president of the United States. He who conquered the swamps and everglades of Florida and made Mexico surrender is forgotten by his countrymen. Not one in 10,000 knows the place of his sepulture.

The plaintive words of Rip Van Winkle are appropriate, "How soon we are forgotten when we're gone!"

Gov. Van Sant has fixed February 10th as the date for the hanging of the Nelson brothers, Owatonna's murderers.

Congratulations.

John H. Cullom, editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows: "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congrrtulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale at Schreiters Drug Store.

Resolutions of Condolence.

Whereas, God, the Creater and exalted ruler of the universe, to whose will and law we humbly kneel and obey, in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to call to his eternal home, our good friend and loyal brother knight, Charles E. Winslow, chancellor commander of Thief River Falls lodge, who perished at the disastrous holocaust in the Iroquois theater at Chicago.

Therefore, be it resolved, by the Red Lake Falls Lodge No. 169, of the order of the Knights of Pythias, that in this hour of sad affliction we extend to the bereaved family of the deceased our sincere sympathy and brotherly affection.

And it is ordered, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of Red Lake Falls Lodge No. 169, a copy sent to the Thief River Falls lodge, a copy sent the widow of the deceased, and the same be also published in the local papers of Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls.

By the committee,
John E. King.
Thos. Germo.
R. E. Wyer.

Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, Jan. 6, 1904.

A Communication.

To the editor of The Gazette:

In the last issue of the Red Lake Courier appeared an item stating that I assaulted County Attorney Grady without provocation, and that it was because of the prosecution of my son, Sidney.

I admit to the assault, but do deny that I did so with out just cause or for that reason. Mr. Grady slandered Mr. George Ralph, of Crookston, and called him all the vile names he could think of in Paradis' saloon, and while Mr. Ralph was not there. If any one doubts this statement let him go to Justice Toupin's office and read the evidence in the case, or to Mr. Paradis, and be convinced to the truth of the matter.

An Obscuration of Culture Is Imminent

By Dr. BENJAMIN ANDREWS, Chancellor University of Nebraska

I AM not to be classed among the pessimists. I am, in fact, an optimist, but I do not believe in OSTRICH OPTIMISM, and when one finds reefs coming to the surface in the track of the world's spiritual commerce he is none the less an optimist to try to CHART THE SEAS where they lie.

Suppose a certain penumbra be descried upon culture in our day, it is not the FIRST instance. Even more than civilization in general the especial phase thereof called culture has had its ups and downs. The age of Pericles suffered sunset, being followed not indeed by darkness, but by many a far stretch of chiaroscuro before full days shone again.

After Athens and after Rome, when old time culture had installed its whole grand exhibit and done its utmost to improve men's minds and hearts and lives, notwithstanding all, mental twilight fell upon European society, stayed long, set grievously and was brightened out into noon again only by CENTURIES OF PAINFUL TOIL at light making. Such a reflection brings heartening along with soberness. Tenacious as mediæval gloom was it did AT LAST give way. The sources of culture gush perennially. If those previous checks upon their flow were temporary, any future subsidence will be the more certain because of books and schools, instrumentalities ONCE FEEBLE, but now and always henceforth INVINCIBLE.

I AM IMPRESSED THAT A CERTAIN OBSCURATION OF REAL CULTURE IS AT THIS MOMENT OBSERVABLE AMONG US AND THAT WE AS YET BY NO MEANS SEE ITS WORST.

THE PRESENT AND FUTURE of COTTON

By DANIEL J. SULLY, King of the Bulls of the New York Cotton Exchange

TODAY the American cotton makes up nearly 85 per cent of the cotton that is grown. Egypt grows a long staple cotton that is used in the finest of goods. India grows a short staple cotton that is used in the coarsest of goods. America grows the staple crop that is THE MEDIUM BETWEEN THE INDIAN AND THE EGYPTIAN AND IS THE GREAT COMMERCIAL NECESSITY OF THE TEXTILE WORLD. There is a distinct relationship between the American and the other crops, each having a bearing upon the other, and the Egyptian and the Indian planter share relatively in whatever condition affects each distinct growth.

The curtailment of the American crop will stimulate the East Indian to raising all the cotton possible, but that cannot affect the situation to any material degree. Neither can any possible increase in the Egyptian output alter the situation. THE WHOLE WORLD DEPENDS UPON THE SOUTH.

I have been quoted as predicting that within the next four or five years cotton would sell at 25 CENTS A POUND. This may seem extravagant to those who do not realize the extent to which the STERILIZATION OF THE SEED in the south has been carried or the extent to which the growth of the textile industry and the use of cotton has been developed. No one can accurately measure the demand for cotton who does not take into consideration the steady widening of its uses and the HUNDRED OR MORE INDUSTRIES into which cotton enters in one form or another.

WHEREIN OUR COLLEGES DO NOT EDUCATE ❄

By Rev. W. E. BARTON of Oak Point, Ill.

I AM no pessimist or believer that the past has been better than the present, nor do I lack faith that our colleges are to send out men fitted for large responsibilities, but I confess my own conviction that the COLLEGE LIFE OF TODAY IS RUNNING TOO MUCH TO FRATERNITIES AND SOFA CUSHIONS; too much to a course of training whose result is either the dilettante pedant or the muscular bully and not enough to the discipline of the mind, the culture of the soul, the pursuit of knowledge and the establishment of character. THESE ARE THE REAL THINGS FOR WHICH COLLEGES EXIST. Athletics and fraternities and clubs and all the rest are of value in proportion as they promote these things. Wherefore, in no spirit of pessimism, but with a strong conviction of its truth, I send forth this appeal for more of TRUE EDUCATION in our colleges.

Crookston Journal: Congressman Steenerson discovered shortly after boarding the train Saturday night for Washington that his annual pass was good only in 1903 and that with the coming of 1904 a cash fare would be required for his passage. The conductor was not a respecter of persons even of congressmen, and although Mr. Steenerson made a detailed explanation that worthy would accept nothing but the cash.

Crookston Journal: The depot was crowded with school teachers Monday morning who were returning from their holiday visits. The old-time dance held at the Metropolitan last Thursday evening turned out to be just what it was said it would—the best time of the season. The big opera house was comfortably filled and the new year was welcomed by as jolly a crowd as was ever assembled under a Red Lake Falls roof. Onstad's orchestra again covered themselves with glory, and demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that they are deserving of the many laudations accorded them by the citizens. Never in its history has Red Lake Falls boasted an organization anywhere near as good, and it is the duty of the people to see that they are given the support they deserve. When in need of good music, see Manager Berthon, for by encouraging this organization you are helping an institution worthy of your utmost support.

HIGH SHOOL NOTES

Alice Erickson, Carrie Patnode, Clare Allison, Athenian Reporters.

Two weeks vacation is ended and it is hard for the H. S. to settle down to good solid work.

Next Friday, Jan. 8, the Athenians will hold their next program. Every one is cordially invited to be present.

Monday brought a number of the last year's class back to school. Norman Schreiter and Joseph Helm in the morning, Anton Schusser and Ernest Fletcher in the afternoon. Norman and Joseph should not judge the work of the Algebra class by Monday's recitation.

A week from Friday, Jan. 15, the debate, Resolved that Cabinet ministers should have a seat, and the right to vote in Congress.

The new library was well patronized when it was opened on the last day of school, before vacation.

Two weeks from Friday comes the Spartan program.

The Spartans have won every debate so far, but, "he who laughs last laughs at the finish."

One of the boys of the class of '03 looked all along the front wall of the assembly room and then remarked, "Where is that picture our class gave the school?" Little did he think he would find it on the rear wall. He was an Athenian and—well maybe we hadn't better tell what he said about that green banner, exclusively the property of the Spartans.

Will Hunt is again in school after about ten week's absence.

Verne Healy suffering from a sprained ankle was not at school Monday, but Tuesdsy he came just a little worse from wear.

"Happy New Year;" just a joke you know.

The Senior class is going to present the play "The Deacon;" in the near future.

Mamie and Ina Linnihan are again at school after their illness.

On the Friday before vacation, the first year English class and the Geometry class had new teachers. Miss Swanson taught the former and Prof. Bourdon the latter.

Don't splatter ink on the floor for goodness sake. It simply looks terrible.

One of the H. S. boys walked out of the cloak room the other morning with a pink hair ribbon fastened to his coat collar. Wonder if it was his.

The English History clasa are doing their final reviewing. Better hurry up in the other history class; but then it is so ancient of course one must go slow.

The General History class was requested to put drawings of the map of Greece, on the board. We were in doubt as to what the result represented until we saw the name above. Second year English class are taking drawing lessons also. My it must be nice to be able to draw so elegantly.

One of the Sophmore girls has found a new and easy way to come down stairs.

One of the class of '03 remarked of the present Virgil class, "Oh what translations; if I couldn't do any better than that I would give up trying." Well we remember some things about that same person's translating last year and it wasn't all perfection either.

Oh suy by the way, "Have you got your Virgil?"

May Get A Bridge.

The county commissioners were out and viewed the county bridge over the Red Lake river Tuesday, and it is likely that they will see where great benefit would result if a substantial structure were erected in place of the old wooden one now occupying the picturesque spot. The bridge will have to be rebuilt sooner or later, and will be a needed improvement.

Notice for Bids.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned to Jan. 14, 1904, at 8 o'clock P. M. for the city printing of the city of Red Lake Falls, for the ensuing two years.

CAUSES OF COLDS.

One of the Most Common of Them Is Eating Too Much.

The invariable cause of colds comes from within, not without. No one takes cold when in a vigorous state of health, with pure blood coursing through the body, and there is no good reason why any one in ordinary health should have a cold. It may come from insufficient exercise, breathing of foul air, want of wholesome food, excess of food, lack of bathing, etc., but always from some violation of the plain laws of health.

There can be no more prolific cause of colds than highly seasoned foods as well as frequent eating. These give no time for the digestive organs to rest and incite an increased flow of the digestive secretions. Thus larger quantities of nourishment are absorbed than can be properly utilized, and the result is an obstruction, commonly called a "cold," which is simply an effort of the system to expel the useless material. Properly speaking, it is self poisoning, due to an incapability of the organism to regulate and compensate for the disturbance.

A deficient supply of pure air to the lungs is not only a strong predisposing cause of colds, but a prolific source of much graver conditions. Pure air and exercise are necessary to prepare the system for the assimilation of nutriment, for without them there can be no vigorous health. The oxygen of the air we breathe regulates the appetite as well as the nutriment that is built up in the system.

The safest and best way to avoid colds is to sleep in a room with the windows wide open and to remain out of doors every day, no matter what may be the weather, for at least two hours, preferably with some kind of exercise, if no more than walking. One should not sit down to rest while the feet are wet or the clothing damp. A person may go with the clothing wet through to the skin all day if he but keeps moving. Exercise keeps up the circulation and prevents taking cold.

The physiologic cure of colds is the prevention of the occurrence. The person who does not carry around an oversupply of alimentation in his system and furthermore secures a purified circulation by strict, sanitary cleanliness, thus placing himself in a positive condition, is immune to colds. A starving man cannot take cold.

A careful diet would exclude the use of all narcotics and all food that is not thoroughly appropriated. An overfed person is worse off than one who is underfed, because the overfed body is taxed to dispose of what cannot be appropriated and, when not properly disposed of, remains only to be an element of danger.—Science of Health.

Poisonous and Harmless Snakes.

There is a certain physiological difference between the poisonous and harmless snakes which exists very plainly in their manner of dentition. All snakes are objects of aversion and dread to mankind, so much so that to be bitten by a snake has at times been so fearful to the victim as to have produced death although the snake was harmless. Such is the instinctive dread with which these reptiles are thought of that it may be desirable to have some easy mode of distinguishing the one kind from the other. This distinguishing characteristic is afforded by the teeth. In all poisonous snakes there are only two rows of teeth, the fang or fangs being arranged either within the two rows or outside of them. The harmless snakes have four distinct rows of teeth, and when the bite shows this kind of wound and not any single deeper or larger puncture there need be no apprehension.

Walking For Malaria.

Obstinate cases of malaria that have withstood the ocean voyages, mountain heights and quinine dosing are said to have been conquered by systematic and continued walking. What the malarial patient wants most to do is to sit indoors, nurse his aches and pains or to lie down and doze. Advocates of the walking cure maintain that fresh air is an antidote not only to the malaria itself, but to the blues, which usually accompanies it. Their advice to the sufferer is to dress up warmly if the weather is damp or rainy and go out to walk. Wear flannel next to the skin, stout shoes and simple hat. If it is warm, dress lightly, but carry a wrap to throw around the shoulders against drafts and too rapid cooling off. When one comes to think of it, there are few maladies on earth that fresh air and moderate exercise are not good for.

The Spectroscope.

Originally the spectroscope was applied only to chemistry, and in that limited field proved itself an invaluable aid in accurate analysis. By holding in a Bunsen flame a platinum wire moistened by contact with the skin the presence of a few grains of salt swallowed a few minutes previously can be detected with the spectroscope. Indeed, so wonderfully refined is the work of the spectroscope chemist that he can discover in a substance the presence of one three-millionth of a grain of metal.

A panic was narrowly averted at Hokah one evening last week when the floor of the opera house gave way under the weight of an audience of about 400. When the floor sank the cooler heads urged the people to walk out quietly and in doing so no one was injured, although several women became excited and a few fainted.

There was a decrease of 600,000 barrels in the flour output of the Minneapolis mills for 1903, as compared with 1902, according to the figures published in the current issue of the Northwestern Miller. The year's output is given as 15,644,000, as compared with 16,260,105 in the preceding year. The Miller says that the strike in the mills in October is responsible for the shrinkage, as the mills lost about 800,000 barrels by the difficulty.

Congratulations,

John H. Cullom, editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows; "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale at Schreiters Drug Store.

Cure Catarrh by Nature's Own Method —Every Breath of Hyomei Brings Relief.

Nearly every one who has Catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by drugging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes.

Until recently your physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate; but now with Hyomei you can carry a health giving climate in your vest packe and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

A. L. Reichert has sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more he sells the more convinced they are that he is perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

Night Was Her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandrie, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Schreiters Drug store.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

NEARLY SIX HUNDRED DEAD IN CHICAGO THEATER FIRE.

Nearly 600 persons were killed in ten minutes Wednesday afternoon during a fire in the Iroquois theater, the newest, the largest and as far as human power could make it the safest theater in Chicago. In addition to the dead, over 100 persons were injured, many of whom will die.

A few of these people were burned to death by fire, many were suffocated by gas and scores were trampled to death in the panic that followed the mad plunge of the frightened audience for the exits.

The accounts of the origin of the fire are conflicting and none of them certain, but the best reason given is that an electric wire near the lower part of a piece of drop scenery suddenly broke and was grounded. The asbestos curtain refused to work and the flames spread rapidly throughout the theater. Immediately following this rush of flames there came an explosion which lifted the entire roof of the theater from its walls, shattering the great skylight into fragments. It is believed that the explosion was caused by the flames coming in contact with the gas reservoirs of the theater, causing them to burst.

As near as can be estimated about 1,300 people were in the theater. Three hundred of these were on the first floor, the balance being in the two upper balconies and in the hallways back of them.

The theater is modeled after the Opera Comique in Paris and from the rear of each balcony are three doors leading out to passageways toward the front of the theater. Two of these doorways are at the end of the balcony and one in the center. The audience in its rush for the outer air seems to have, for the greater part, chosen to flee to the left entrance and to attempt to make its way down the eastern stairway leading into the lobby of the theater.

DEAD BODIES COMPLETELY FILL THE PASSAGEWAY.

Outside of the people burned and suffocated by gas it was in these two doorways on the first and second balconies that the greatest loss of life occurred. When the firemen entered the building the dead were found stretched in a pile reaching from the head of the stairway at least eight feet from the door back to a point about five feet in rear of the door. This mass of dead bodies in the center of the doorway reached to within two feet of the top of the passageway. All of the corpses at this point were women and children.

The fight for life which must have taken place at these two points is something that is simply beyond human power to adequately describe. Only a faint idea of its horrors could be derived from the aspect of the bodies as they lay.

Police and firemen at once began to remove the dead and although all the patrol wagons and every ambulance owned by the city was pressed into service they were utterly inadequate to carry away the dead and in a short time there was a line of corpses fifty feet long piled two and three high on the sidewalk in front of the theater.

The damage to the theater is estimated at $2[illegible],000.

Seven employes of the Iroquois theater, Chicago, have been arrested on orders issued by Chief of Police O'Neill. The charge against them is at present that of being accessories to manslaughter. They will be held pending the verdict of the coroner's jury. After being taken in custody by the police four of the men told Chief O'Neill that they had been requested by people connected with the theater to leave the city.

As a result of the Iroquois fire Mayor Harrison has ordered the closing of every theater in Chicago without exception until it has been definitely ascertained that they are not violating any city ordinance.

REVOLUTION IN PANAMA.

Information has reached Governor Melendez of Panama from Carti, a village near the Island of Pines, in Panama territory, that Colombian troops had landed there Dec. 21 and conferred with the Indian chief, Inanquina, who afterwards was taken aboard a vessel and, it is thought, conveyed to Cartagena.

State department advices of recent date all go to show that the danger of a hostile clash with Colombia is abating and these, taken in connection with Minister Beaupre's courteous treatment by the Colombian officials on his way home, tend to confirm the official impression at Washington that there is now no danger of failure to reach a satisfactory adjustment of whatever issues may exist between the United States and Colombia.

FAR EASTERN SITUATION.

The Japanese minister to Washington called at the state department Wednesday and reported that the situation in the Far East is one that gives great concern and that Japan is making preparations for the worst.

A large number of Clyde marine engineers have received cable orders from the Japanese government to proceed immediately to Japan. These engineers were engaged by the Japanese government six months ago on the understanding that they would be called on if active service were probable.

The Far Eastern situation is growing extremely critical and it is believed the chances for war are greater than ever before. Peace hinges on the character of Russia's response. If the Russian reply is unsatisfactory it is almost certain that Japan will fight immediately. If Russia desires peace her position will be difficult to maintain, for the Japanese are distrustful of her promises. If Russia's response is delayed for a week it is expected that Japan will demand an immediate answer.

THE WILY RED MAN.

Some Instances of the Indians' Quickness of Wit.

Numerous instances of the red man's quickness of wit are related by those who have had dealings with him. A Canadian chief was looking idly on while some Englishmen were hard at work improving property newly acquired from the dusky tribe.

"Why don't you work?" asked the supervisor of the chief.

"Why you no work yourself?" was the rejoinder.

"I work headwork," replied the white man, touching his forehead. "But come here and kill this calf for me, and I'll give you a quarter."

The Indian stood still for a moment, apparently deep in thought, and then he went off to kill the calf.

"Why don't you finish your job?" presently asked the supervisor, seeing the man stand with folded arms over the unskinned, undressed carcass.

"You say you give me quarter to kill calf," was the reply. "Calf dead. Me want quarter."

The white man smiled and handed the Indian an extra coin to go on with the work.

"How is it," asked the Englishman one day after a series of such one sided dealings, "that you so often get the better of me?"

"I work headwork," solemnly replied the man of the woods.

A white trader once succeeded in selling a large quantity of gunpowder to one of this tribe on the assurance that it was a new kind that the white man used for seed and if sown in especially prepared loam would yield an amazing crop. Away went the Indian to sow his powder and in his hope of making money from his fellows was careful not to mention his enterprise. When at last, however, he realized how he had been duped he held his tongue for a year or more until the trickster had completely forgotten the occurrence. Then he went to his hoaxer's store and bought goods on credit amounting to a little more than the price of the planted gunpowder. He had the reputation of a good payer, and his scheme worked easily. When settling day came, the creditor called promptly.

"Right," said the Indian slowly—"right, but my powder not yet sprouted. Me pay you when me reap him."

A Lesson In the Use of Simple Terms In Letter Writing.

A few months ago the son of a railway director was through his father's influence given a position of some importance on a large railway. He was fresh from Cambridge, and in the orders which he from time to time issued to the men under him always made use of the longest, most unusual words. This habit led to some rather expensive blunders, and, the matter coming before the general manager, he wrote the young official the following letter:

"In promulgating your esoteric cogitations and in articulating your superficial sentimentalities and amicable philosophical or psychological observations beware of platitudinous ponderosity. Let your conversational communication possess a clarified conciseness, a compacted comprehensibleness, a coalescent consistency and a concatenated cogency. Eschew all conglomeration of flatulent garrulity, jejune babblement and asinine affectation. Let your extemporaneous descantings and unpremeditated expatiation have intelligibility and veracious vivacity, without rhodomontade or thrasonical bombast. Sedulously avoid all polysyllabic profundity, ventriloquial verbosity and vaniloquent vapidity. Shun double entendre, prurient jocosity and pestiferous profanity, obscurant or apparent. In other words, talk plainly, briefly, naturally, sensibly, purely and truthfully. Don't put on airs; say what you mean; mean what you say, and don't use big words."

The young official took the gentle hint and changed his style.—London Tit-Bits.

TEACHERS THE VICTIMS.

Sharpers Attempting Confidence Games on Rural Teachers.

Crookston Times: Thomas Casey, county superintendent of schools, received an anonymous communication yesterday from Jackson county revealing an alleged game which has been perpetrated on the teachers of that county, and perhaps on the teachers in Polk county, though Mr. Casey has not heard of any cases.

The alleged scheme is reported to have its origin in Chicago. It consists in getting the country teachers to subscribe a sum of money, any amount that they feel they can afford, for a correspondence course. The agents of the company offer a wide range of subjects and the price of knowledge which they are willing to dispense is reduced to meet the pocketbook of the teacher.

After the teacher has been taken it is said that two or three books relating to the subject which the teacher decides, are sent. The course ends there, it is said. The value of the books sent, it is claimed was not in any case more than a few dollars.

Many of the teachers paid as high as $20 for the course, expecting to improve themselves in certain higher branches. In case the teacher could not pay cash a note was taken which was immediately placed with a bank and cashed at a discount.

Markham Reopened.

The Hotel Markham which has for years been a favorite with the traveling public, and which enjoyed the distinction of being one of the best hotels in Red Lake county, has been reopened by W. A. Arthur. Mr. Arthur has leased the premises for a considerable time and took posession New Years eve.

The Markham was closed for a short time on account of bankruptcy of the former proprietor, E. J. Druecker.

Under the new management the business has already experienced a deceided boom and if exeprience, competence and integrity in business count for anything, the new propietor Mr. Arthur, will in a very short time have the reputation of the Markham more firmly and widely established than ever before.

He leaves one son, Remi Fortier, and several grandchildren, Joseph Fortier, of this city being one. The funeral was held this morning from the Catholic church at Gentilly, and was attended by a large number of friends of the deceased.

As Long Sees It.

L. C. Long, formerly a prominent politician of southwestern Minnesota, and candidate for governor on the Populist ticket in 1896, is now living at Minneapolis, and in a letter to the Adrian Democrat conveys his impressions of today in the following characteristic soliloquy:

* * * I agree with Count Tolstoi that God made the country—man, in partnership with the devil, made the city

Tomorrow is Christmas, and untold millions of the human race will celebrate the birth of the Redeemer of mankind from barbarism and superstition. But when one lives on the Main street of a great city and is given to observation and meditation, he can not help but wonder what kind of a "critter" man could have been before his redemption, that is, allowing he is on his way to heaven now. Dives still sits at his sumptous table dressed in fine linen, while Lazarus, too poor to own a measley cur to lick his sores, begs crumbs at his gate. Neros sit upon the throne of nations and concoct international wars in order that they may thin the ranks of their obstreperous subjects. Pilate wears the Judges gown and sentences the weak and unfortunate to the rockpile while embezzeliers are pardoned from prison to enjoy their illgotten wealth.

This is not pessimism, but an epitome of the news dished up in the daily papers. Yours truly, L. C. Long.

Another Enemy to Smoot.

"Why are you so positive in your opinion that Reed Smooth ought to be kept out of the Senate?"

"Well," replied Mr. Henpeck, "I'm opposed to him on the ground of mental incapacity. Any man who believes of having more than one wife, even if he doesn't practice it, must be weak minded, and is not a fit person to make laws for us.

WHAT SORT OF WOMAN DOES MAN PREFER?

By Mrs. FRANK LESLIE

I DON'T know why it is, but it is a painful truth that women are not wooed in these days so earnestly as they used to be and ARE WON MORE EASILY. Is it because there are so many more of them in proportion to the men or because they expect so much more when it comes to a question of marriage? Or is it that as our country grows older we are falling into the customs of those more mature civilizations where MARRIAGE IS A BUSINESS AFFAIR and the parents of a young lady offer a bonus to the bridegroom who will assume her maintenance? If that is the case perhaps it will be better to copy the whole process and allow the parents on both sides to arrange the little affair before the principals come into the field. Under the present system the girl is expected to make her own bargain, and if she has not a large fortune to offer as an attraction she is to exhibit her own attractiveness not only in all purely feminine ways, but in imitating and appropriating those manly fashions that USED TO BE HELD PECULIAR TO THE COARSER SEX.

BUT, AFTER ALL, DO MEN BEST LOVE A DEMONSTRATIVE OR A COLD WOMAN?

We have always been told that the latter is the case, but as one looks around a ballroom, for instance, or a reception or any collection of young people where are liberty of movement and choice, which class of girls and young women do we see most surrounded, most often upon the floor, invited to the box seat of the drag or the stern seat in the boat? Is it the fair white statue of a girl who seldom opens her mouth and ONLY FAINTLY STIRS ITS CLASSIC LINES IN A SMILE, she whose clear blue eyes seem as far away and passionless as the sky and whose fingers rest upon yours as coldly and lightly as the petals of a water lily, or is it the gay, laughter loving, curly, pink cheeked little thing whose fresh lips are always parted to show teeth like the grains upon an ear of white corn and whose rose tipped fingers close in a coquettish grasp upon those of her cavalier, while she half whispers some drollery into his ear, or is it the gushing girl who taps her foot upon the floor and cries: "Oh, this music makes me wild! IF YOU DON'T ASK ME TO DANCE THIS VERY MINUTE I'LL GO BY MYSELF?"

Who shall say?

HITS THEM ALL.

Minnesota Cities Must Keep Clean Or Suffer Penalties.

The state board of health, at its regular quarterly meeting Tuesday, took action which is certain to cause all kinds of kicking on the part of Minnesota municipalities, although its advisability is hardly open to dispute.

The board will insist that all cities and villages be kept clean and free from disease-breeding pools of water this year and to this end adopted a resolution, the object of which is to prevent the polution of water and the spread of typhoid fever and other diseases, which provides that every city, village or municipality in the state is prohibided from discharging its sewage by means of artificial drains or sewage system into any pond lake, well, stream or river unless such discharge first passes through a septic tank or a filter bed.

The resolution provides that plans for such tanks or beds must be first approved by the board. A fine of from $50 to $100 for each sewage is discharged contrary to the provisions of the resolution is imposed.

It will not apply to systems already constructed until Jan. 1, 1905.

There is hardly a city in the state now having a filter bed.

LUMBERING AT TOP NOTCH.

Clearwater Logging Superintendent Says All is O. K.

Crookston Journal: John C. Parker, superintendent of the Clearwater Logging company's business, came down from the woods last night and was a guest at the Crookston Mr. Parker is highly pleased with the conditions that obtain in the logging business this year, and says that the company is banking more logs and at less cost than during any previous year's operation.

His company has several camps established running with full crews and plenty of teams to handle the "long green" from the stump to the banks. The weather has been favorable and it has been possible to maintain good roads; the crews are satisfied with the work and with the grub furnished. All is working smoothly and the cut this year will be a large one, approaching thirty million feet.

LOT OF LAND HUNTERS.

Lands to Be Opened up is Eagerly Sought After.

Tracy Bardwell, the veteran cruiser is back from a trip to the north country, where he went to cruise the five new towns that are to be opened by the Duluth Land office for settlement January 12th, says the Crookston Times. Mr. Bardwell did not make as thorough a trip over the country as he had at first intended, but has information that will be interesting, nevertheless.

He says that the best claims in the country are already squatted on, and there are claims where there are as high as five rival squatter claimants all living in shanties and all willing to make a fight for the land when it is opened for settlement. The woods are full of cruisers at present and of people looking up land and at the hotel of A. R. Button standing room is nightly at a premium at present.

Mr. Bardwell says there are lots of fine claims to be had in the towns but everybody wants pine and some of the finest farming lands anywhere in the country are being daily overlooked.

The winter road between Northome and Big Falls has as much travel on it at present as any road in the country and is in excellent condition.

Several improved farms for rent. Inquire of Gonigam Realestate Agency

A Bargain for Farmers

The New-York Tribune Farmer, a national illustrated agricultural weekly of twenty large pages, has no superior as a thoroughly practical and helpful publication for the farmer and every member of his family, and the publishers are determined to give it a circulation unequalled by any paper of its class in the United States.

Knowing that every enterprising, up-to-date farmer always reads his own local weekly newspaper, The New-York Tribune Farmer has made an exceedingly liberal arrangement which enables us to offer the two papers at so low a price that no farmer can afford to lose the opportunity.

The price of The New-York Tribune Farmer is $1.00 a year and The Gazette is $1.00 a year, but both papers will be sent for a full year if you forward $1.25 to The Gazette, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Send your name and address to The New-York Tribune Farmer, New-York City, and a specimen copy of that paper will be mailed to you.

A SHORT ANSWER.

The Reply That Bismarck Made to an Admirable Speech.

I like to think of old Bismarck as he sat by the window that opens on the windy park of Friedrichsruh in an old gray shooting jacket, a rug over his knees, a pipe in his hand, simple as a north German farmer, this man who had almost held Europe in fee.

A little while before this February day he had been deposed from power. All the world knew that the old lion was sulking in his den in no amiable mood toward the young emperor who had turned him out of doors. It was known that his memoirs were written and that his correspondence was set in order. A New York publisher thought he might secure the papers in which Bismarck had told the real story of the birth of the German empire—that strange story of craft and heroism, littleness and grandeur. It was on this mission that I sailed for Hamburg. I had two letters for Bismarck. One was from a negligible ambassador. The other had been given me by a German statesman of some note with whom in other days I had been a student in the University of Jena. My friend had been a familiar of Bismarck's household and bespoke me a kindly hearing. I sent the letters on from Hamburg and followed the next day.

On the table at his elbow as he sat by the window I noticed my letters. The valet who had placed a chair for me took his stand by the door. I said what I had to say. It was (permit me to affirm it) an admirable speech. For ten days and nights I had rehearsed it as I paced the deck of the stormy liner, so in tolerable German I declaimed it. It was dignified; it was diplomatic.

When I had finished Bismarck took the pipe from his lips, said "Nein" and put the pipe back again.

'Twas the shortest answer I ever had in my life. I waited for a moment. The old man smoked and stared out into the park. I got up and bowed. I had rehearsed that bow and did not intend to waste it. I bowed to his old hairless head, the flabby yellow jowls and big mustache, to the old gray jacket and the pipe. It was like salaaming to a stone wall. Then the valet led me out. In the park I regained my senses.—Vance Thompson in Success.

Mark Twain Missed the Boat.

The success achieved by Mark Twain during his boating days on the Mississippi river was due not only to the fact that he was a skillful pilot, but that he was an earnest one as well. A man who knew Mr. Clemens in those days told how the genial humorist once missed his boat. Instead of inventing an excuse, as many of his companions did, he reported to his superior officer as follows:

"My boat left at 6:10. I arrived at the landing at 6:20 and could not catch it."

He that committeth no evil hath nothing to fear.

Mix kindness with reproof and rea[illegible] with authority.

Of much speaking cometh repentance, but in silence is safety.

The first step toward being wise is to know that thou art ignorant.

Envy not the appearance of happiness in any man, for thou knowest not his secret griefs.

Indulge not thyself in the passion of anger. It is whetting a sword to wound thine own breast.

Consider and forget not thine own weakness, so shalt thou pardon the failings of others.

The heart of the envious man is gall and bitterness. The success of his neighbor breaketh his rest.

This instant is thine. The next is in the womb of futurity, and thou knowest not what it may bring forth.

As a veil addeth to beauty, so are a man's virtues set off by the shade which his modesty casteth upon him.

As the ostrich when pursued hideth his head, but forgetteth his body, so the fears of a coward expose him to danger.

Training a Beagle.

With regard to the training of a beagle, he has to be treated on quite a different plan from the setter and pointer. In their cases a great deal of work of training is to conquer natural propensities, whereas with the beagle you encourage him to go on and do all he can in seeking and chasing when found. Young dogs are usually put down with an older one, and a very few lessons suffice. It comes as natural to a beagle to run scent as for a terrier to kill rats, and if there is no apparent inclination one lesson usually provokes it. The less one interferes with a beagle running a line the better for the dog, so long as he is not pottering in one well tested place, but casting all about when he has lost the trail.—Field and Stream.

The Charge Sustained.

The householder was duly sworn.

"You charge this man with being in sane," said the court. "On what do you base the charge?"

"Well, your honor," said the witness, vainly trying to choke down his emotion, "this man is a plumber. My pipes were out of fix. I sent for him. He fixed 'em in fifteen minutes. When I asked for his bill he said that was all right, because it didn't take him long, and he had another job in my neighborhood anyhow."

"A hopeless case," exclaimed his honor, as he signed the commitment.—Baltimore News.

The Catastrophe.

"Did you hear about the catastrophe down at the Browns' last night?"

"No. What happened?"

"Why, Mrs. Brown gave the baby a bottle to play with, and while she was in the kitchen it fell out of the cradle and broke its neck."

"What, the baby?"

"No; the bottle."

A Fearful Dream.

Bobbs—Old Titewadd is about dead from insomnia. Says he is afraid to go to sleep.

Dobbs—Does he fear burglars?

Bobbs—No; but the last time he slept he dreamed of giving away his money.

KILLS WIFE AND SELF

MINNEAPOLIS BARTENDER THE PRINCIPAL IN A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Grain Men Convicted of Violating Provisions of State Law—Federal Court of Appeals Decides Important Land Controversy—General Becker, Prominent in Early History of Minnesota, Dies at St. Paul.

Minneapolis, Jan. 9.—After calling up a friend over the telephone and asking him to "hold the line," James Garfield, a bartender, driven to desperation by the taunts of his wife, who had threatened to leave him, killed her and shot himself.

He died at the city hospital an hour and a half later.

The tragedy was enacted at Garfield's rooms in the Winfield block at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Garfield is better known in Minneapolis as Pearl Guyette and has lived here for several years, while her husband only recently came from Hurley, Wis., where he was known as James Jennings.

The couple were married at Bessemer, Mich., Sept. 5, 1903, and soon after came to Minneapolis, where they rented a flat at 250 Hennepin avenue, moving to the Winfield block a month ago.

GRAIN MEN CONVICTED.

Edwards, Wood & Co. Found Guilty of Defrauding Customer.

Duluth, Jan. 11.—The jury in the case against Edwards, Wood & Co., grain commission men, with offices in Chicago and several other cities, charged by the state railroad and warehouse commission of Minnesota with making false return in a grain deal for Oscar Carlson of Hallock, Minn., whereby Carlson was defrauded out of $4.23, has returned a verdict of guilty.

There are several similar cases against the grain firm and numerous other cases involving alleged infractions of the state law. The case determined is a misdemeanor and the penalty is a fine of from $25 to $100.

The case, which was bitterly fought on both sides and occupied three days, will be appealed.

The next case against the grain firm will involve an alleged shortage of $15, in which C. S. Moore of Hope, N. D., is the consignor and principal witness. Moore has thirty-two complaints against the firm. The first of the Moore cases will be tried Jan. 18.

NOTED LAND CASE DECIDED.

Eaton and Associates Defeat Midway Company.

Duluth, Jan. 11.—The United States court of appeals has handed down a decision in the case of the Midway company against Frank W. Eaton, Lon Merritt and L. H. Fagan of Duluth and George J. Longstreet of Milwaukee, the action involving the "Sullivan forty" in section 30 case, in favor of Eaton and his associates.

The decision is similar to the one handed down by the United States supreme court in the original section 30 case, except that the latter involved more territory. It is understood that the Midway company will appeal to the United States supreme court.

The Midway company is controlled by A. M. Miller of Duluth and New York. The Minnesota Iron company, which was also arrayed against Eaton and associates for possession of the "Sullivan forty," withdrew from the case before the decision by the United States court of appeals.

He that committeth no evil hath nothing to fear.

Mix kindness with reproof and reason with authority.

Of much speaking cometh repentance, but in silence is safety.

The first step toward being wise is to know that thou art ignorant.

Envy not the appearance of happiness in any man, for thou knowest not his secret griefs.

Indulge not thyself in the passion of anger. It is whetting a sword to wound thine own breast.

Consider and forget not thine own weakness, so shalt thou pardon the failings of others.

The heart of the envious man is gall and bitterness. The success of his neighbor breaketh his rest.

This instant is thine. The next is in the womb of futurity, and thou knowest not what it may bring forth.

As the ostrich when pursued hideth his head, but forgetteth his body, so the fears of a coward expose him to danger.

Training a Beagle.

With regard to the training of a beagle, he has to be treated on quite a different plan from the setter and pointer. In their cases a great deal of work of training is to conquer natural propensities, whereas with the beagle you encourage him to go on and do all he can in seeking and chasing when found. Young dogs are usually put down with an older one, and a very few lessons suffice. It comes as natural to a beagle to run scent as for a terrier to kill rats, and if there is no apparent inclination one lesson usually provokes it. The less one interferes with a beagle running a line the better for the dog, so long as he is not pottering in one well tested place, but casting all about when he has lost the trail.—Field and Stream.

The Charge Sustained.

The householder was duly sworn.

"You charge this man with being insane," said the court. "On what do you base the charge?"

"Well, your honour," said the witness, vainly trying to choke down his emotion, "this man is a plumber. My pipes were out of fix. I sent for him. He fixed 'em in fifteen minutes. When I asked for his bill he said that was all right, because it didn't take him long, and he had another job in my neighborhood anyhow."

"A hopeless case!" exclaimed his honor as he signed the commitment.—Baltimore News.

The Catastrophe.

"Did you hear about the catastrophe down at the Browns' last night?"

"No. What happened?"

"Why, Mrs. Brown gave the baby a bottle to play with, and while she was in the kitchen it fell out of the cradle and broke its neck."

"What, the baby?"

"No; the bottle."

KILLS WIFE AND SELF

MINNEAPOLIS BARTENDER THE PRINCIPAL IN A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Grain Men Convicted of Violating Provisions of State Law—Federal Court of Appeals Decides Important Land Controversy—General Becker, Prominent in Early History of Minnesota, Dies at St. Paul.

Minneapolis, Jan. 9.—After calling up a friend over the telephone and asking him to "hold the line" James Garfield, a bartender, driven to desperation by the taunts of his wife, who had threatened to leave him, killed her and shot himself.

He died at the city hospital an hour and a half later.

The tragedy was enacted at Garfield's rooms in the Winfield block at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mrs. Garfield is better known in Minneapolis as Pearl Guyette and has lived here for several years, while her husband only recently came from Hurley, Wis., where he was known as James Jennings.

The couple were married at Bessemer, Mich., Sept. 5, 1903, and soon after came to Minneapolis, where they rented a flat at 250 Hennepin avenue, moving to the Winfield block a month ago.

GRAIN MEN CONVICTED.

Edwards, Wood & Co. Found Guilty of Defrauding Customer.

Duluth, Jan. 11.—The jury in the case against Edwards, Wood & Co., grain commission men, with offices in Chicago and several other cities, charged by the state railroad and warehouse commission of Minnesota with making false return in a grain deal for Oscar Carlson of Hallock, Minn., whereby Carlson was defrauded out of $4.23, has returned a verdict of guilty.

There are several similar cases against the grain firm and numerous other cases involving alleged infractions of the state law. The case determined is a misdemeanor and the penalty is a fine of from $25 to $100.

The case, which was bitterly fought on both sides and occupied three days, will be appealed.

The next case against the grain firm will involve an alleged shortage of $15, in which C. S. Moore of Hope, N. D., is the consignor and principal witness. Moore has thirty-two complaints against the firm. The first of the Moore cases will be tried Jan. 18.

The decision is similar to the one handed down by the United States supreme court in the original section 30 case, except that the latter involved more territory. It is understood that the Midway company will appeal to the United States supreme court.

The Midway company is controlled by A. M. Miller of Duluth and New York. The Minnesota Iron company, which was also arrayed against Eaton and associates for possession of the "Sullivan forty," withdrew from the case before the decision by the United States court of appeals.

Red Lake Falls Gazette.

SAM S. HAISLET, EDITOR AND MANAGER

Published weekly, Thursday evening, and entered as second-class matter in the postoffice at Red Lake Falls.

Official Paper of Red Lake County.

Official Paper of Red Lake Falls.

Subscription $1.00 per Year.

THE WAIL OF A GRAFTER.

The last week's issue of the Thief River Falls Review, an imitation newspaper founded for spite work at the up-river town, contained a double column roast for the several newspapers of Red Lake county.

Gazette space is too valuable, even if we couldn't sell an inch of it, to waste on animals of the mental calibre of these baby boys, and a brief plain statement of facts will suffice.

There is hardly a county in the state that doesn't let its printing at full legal rates, thereby securing its publication in practically all of the newspapers and securing just what the law says it should, i. e. the greatest circulation for the least money.

Only once in the past several years has Red Lake county paid less than the full rate for this work, and in 1903 there is no question but what it got poorer service than ever before. The merchants, clerks and laboring men of all kinds work together for the betterment of their conditions, and when Red Lake county gets all of its publications in the five real newspapers at one legal rate, it is getting better service at less money than by any other plan proposed.

The Review's howl isn't made because it is anxious to work for nothing, but on the contrary is a flimsy bid for the support of the people of Thief River, and if they can be led into tossing crumbs in its way by such a weak attempt to say some thing they are bigger chumps than they are thought to be.

In conclusion The Gazette wishes to brand one statement in the long-winded fabrication as a deliberate lie. When Mr.(?) McDonald states that the papers of Red Lake Falls do not care for or cater to local support he is simply doing what all dirty liars are prone to do, attempting to tear down someone else to better his weak cause.

There is not a town in the state that supports its papers nearly as well as does Red Lake Falls, and the business people know that statements like the ones in the Review are as false as the babies who gave them utterance.

And, Mr. McDonald, it can be said as a windup that all of the Red Lake county newspapers will continue to exist and serve the people faithfully after the sheriff sells you out, the same as they did for so many years before your cadaverous sphere put in its apperance in this section.

Who says we are not on friendly terms with Germany? Last year we bought $130,000,000 worth of goods from the kaiser's people, about $15,000,000 woth more than we purchased in 1902, remaks the Crookston Journal.

WHAT HE STANDS FOR.

In reply to the question, "What platform will President Roosevelt stand for in the coming election?" the St. Paul Dispatch makes the following excellent answer: "No one can predict the platform the convention will want Mr. Roosevelt to stand on. The question would be easier to answer and more to the point if it were: "What will Roosevelt stand for in that campaign?" He will stand pre-eminently for honest government and honesty in the government. He will stand for sound money. He will stand for obedience to the law. He will stand for doing the right thing at the right time. In short he will stand for Theodore Roosevelt, and for what he is and has been in public and private life. He is a sufficient platform. The convention need adopt none. It can save its platitudes for another time."

The growth of Winnipeg, is the keynote of a special edition of the Winnipeg Telegram just issued. The paper undertakes to show that there has been more building done in Winnipeg during 1903 than in any other city in Canada; that the increase in clearing house returns in Winnipeg show the largest percentage of increase of any city in Canada; that Winnipeg is the second largest wheat market in the America and also the largest in the British Empire; and that Winnipeg will have the largest railway yards in the world when the Canadian Pacific will have completed its present work of reconstruction. Altogether the issue is a creditable production and is of great value as it throws light on the rapid growth of Winnipeg and Western Canada.

Because the populace of Red Lake county didn't get down on their knees to the smart young men who established that weekly affliction at Thief River, the dear boys get real mad and call the whole bunch thieves and grafters. Well, it is too bad that the public don't justly appreciate their talents, but they can't be blamed, as this is a farming country and they are accustomed to seeing lots of calves.

The population of Minnesota, at the last census, was 1,751,394, of whom 505,318 were foriegn born. Germany heads the list of foriegn born residents in Minnesota, with 117,007. Sweden is next with 115,476, and Norway third with 104,895.

DR. AMES WILL TELL HOW.

Ex-mayor A. A. Ames of Minneapolis who has been sentenced to a term of six years to the Minnesota penitentiary for his crooked operations while in public office announces that he will write a book on the "Graft". At present Ames is at liberty pending a decision of the state Supreme Court, but as soon as he gets comfortably settled in prison he expects to begin his book. He modestly asserts that he has all the knowledge that will be necessary in order to deal with the subject intelligently, and it isn't likely that anybody will seriously dispute with him on that point.

Just how he intends to treat the matter—whether his book will be a cold treatise by an expert or a romantic exposition of facts as they have fallen beneath his notice—is not explained. In any event the work is likely to be authoritative. With it at hand there is no reason why everyone may not become a scientific grafter. "Ames on Grafting" may in future stand beside "Locke on the Human Understanding".

What a fine thing is it that our grafters are willing to turn their knowledge to noble account when it becomes impossible, owing to circumstances over which they have no control for them to continue to graft.

Recently there has been considerable talk in congressional circles as to the advisability of discontinuing crop estimates on the part of the government. It is claimed that in recent years the tendency has been to underestimate the cotton and other important crops, thus encouraging higher prices. On the other hand many farmers of the country have hitherto opposed the publication of these estimates, because they believed that the figures were published for the sole benefit of speculators who desired to lower prices. As there are two sides to the market—the "bull" and the "bear"—the opposition to crop estimates generally comes from the fellow who can find nothing in the figures to support his contentions. It is therefore safe to predict that no action will be taken to curtail this baanch of governmental inquiry.

One thing above all others that should make the best element of the Republican party of Minnesota stand for Bob Dunn for governor is the nasty fight the "gang" of grafters behind Collins are putting up. While no one disputes that Judge Collins is an able man his cause will lose favor in the eyes of the people when the low methods of his manages and boosters becomes known. There are many instances to cite, one of these being a statement in last week's Thief River News, to the effect that Dunn is antagonistic to both Senators Nelson and Clapp. The Martin-Eastman-Jamison gang of office-holders know that this is false, but realize that their only hope rests in making lying statements to the people. Judge Collins is unfortunate in being "in the hands of his friends(?)" if he really wants the governorship.

A commercial report says: "What ever the drawbacks in the industrial situation, it must be remembered that the agricultural classes of the United States are still unusually prosperous. Crops have not been large, but farmers have been getting good prices, and the south is enjoying a prosperity never before equaled. It has been estimated that the south will receive fully $300,000,000 more for this year's crop than it did for the big crop of 1898. Whether this calculation is correct or not, it is very evident the south will be a big buyer of many articles this year, and trade in that section is likely to be large and profitable."

Commissioner of pensions Ware is quoted as saying tbst "in ten years the pension list will cease to be a burden." With all due respect to Commissioner Ware we are decidedly of the opinion that the American people do not look upon the amount paid to our disabled veterans as a burden.

The Hallock News makes the bold statement that R. C. Dunn has the support of but 25 per cent of the republican papers of the state for him and 95 per cent of the democratic press, says the Crookston Times. The editor of the News knows, this statement to be false. A carefully made list of the exchanges of the Times which embraces practically all the papers in northern Minnesota and a large portion of those in the southern part of the state, shows a trifle more than 75 per cent of the republican papers are for Bob Dunn, while the democratic papers admit his fitness for the office and as between him and Judge Collins would not hesitate to choose, but will undoubtedly support their party nominee. Editor Nelson and Editor Eastman, the two lone Collins papers in northwestern Minnesota, are at a desperate pass to find material with which to knock ex-Auditor Dunn's candidacy.

These sentiments by Frank Nye of Minneapolis may contain considerable pessimism, but who shall say that they do not contain much that is true? "We as a nation have been too immensely wealthy and too immensely crazy after the almighty dollar. The Almighty may soon say to us as a nation what he said to the foolish man who tore down his granaries and built larger, 'Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee'. The time must come when we shall get back to the humble ways of our fathers. Our power is not in wealth, in the dust of the earth, but in the moral and mental strength of the nation. Talk about the ballot box saving the nation, the the thing that will save the nation lies back on the ballot box, in the home. There lies the future of the country, as the home is so will the future be."

As men are largely the creatures of environment, the home life of a boy is nessarily largely responsibly for his character. If he is left by society to shift for himself, probably to inhabit the haunts of vice and crime his criminal education is begun early and is speedliy finished. If he is neglected by a shiftless father or mother his footsteps turn irresistibly to the prison door. It is only by intelligent home training, by proper exercise of parental authority, by tender solicitude for the physical wants and moral needs of our children, that we can hope to make them good men and women. A neglected child is usually a child lost. It imbibes premature ideas of independence, goes forth into the world befove its time and is dazzled by the places of sin and the haunts of crime.

The Gully Sunbeam takes exception to what The Gazette said about its local and editorial columns a couple of weeks ago, and in replying says it hasn't a couple of editors and managers nor several unpaid printers in its employ. But that's no news. It has been painfully apparent to the suffering public for lo! these many moons that neither editor nor printer was in any way connected with the Sunbeam, and the admission of the fact makes it easy.

That bright light with the peanut head that conducts the Thief River Review might be reminded gently, in regard to this legal printing business, that the law states plainly that a newspaper must have 250 bona fide subscribers before it becomes a legal publication. The Review can never be legal, either, for The Gazette knows that there are not that many blamed fools within the bounds of the county.

The Thief River Review says that Red Lake Falls would carry off first, second and third prizes in a homely man's contest. Well, perhaps we're not "papa's boys," but if we all had to be pretty like the Review push and of the same calibre mentally, it's ten to one that the average run of fellows here would be glad he was so homely.

In our advertising columns appears the card of the "New York-Honduras Commercial Co." presenting an investment that at first sight appears to yield extraordinary results, but when the wonderful returns of plantations in tropical countries are taken into consideration, and the known fact that Mexican companies in similar lines are doing even better, it warrants the investigation of the man with idle money, or who can put a few dollars a month aside for the future.

When the hired girl who had set the plates for a little dinner in St. Hilaire, recently read in the Spectator that "covers were laid" for fifteen guests," she entered an indignant denial, saying that only two of the whole party got so bad that they had to go to bed. That servant is a jewel.

The old adage that fools and children can ask questions that wise men cannot answer is well illustrated by the story told on a well known Duluth minister who was asked by a little tot "why did the angels walk up and down Jacob's ladder when they have wings?" The question was a stunner to the clerical gentleman and the child's query is still unanswered, says the Thief River Falls Press.

An exchange gets off the following beautiful thought: "I saw a dancing bubble on the silvery surface of a restless river For a moment it sparkled with golden light as it caught and held the sunshine glory and I thought how beautiful it was: then it went down for a moment the river, told where it had vanished and then swept on without even a ripple on its placid bosom. And I thought how like our lives was the river. For a moment we sparkle in our tiny sphere, hope and struggle, love and dream, and then go beneath the surface forever. In a short space of time the tiny ripple we have caused dies out, and the great river of humanity flows on undisturbed. So let us strive throughout our brief existence to reflect only the sunshine, not mirror the clouds above us.

Miss Iddings has had plenty of work to keep her busy since the new library was opened to the pupils.

The Algebra class of '04 are now taking five or six pages a day. Does the class of '03 remember when it thought one page an imposition.

Mr. Phillion has not resumed his work at the High School yet. Mrs. Doe's room remembered him last week by sending him a basket of fruit.

Jessie Luxemburg is now attending business college at Crookston. All of the High School remembers Jessie, the ex-secretary of the Athenian society.

The English class was treated to a good story Friday: "My Trip to a Circus." It was enjoyed by the remainder of the class, as well as by the whole school.

The Freshies are very bright pupils and have made great advancement during their sojourn in the H. S. Look out for the class of '07 for it is the banner class.

The High School had a lesson in self control Monday morning, but the habit of rubbering was so fixed in some that they had to look at the pictures drawn by Miss Steele.

Sleigh rides and Virgil have met and the result is; either the rides must stop or the Virgil class must give that man the G. B.; because he of late, has suffered from neglect.

A week from Friday is the debate, "Resolved, That Cabinet ministers should vote and hold a seat in Congress." The Spartan debators are Doretta Matthies, Orson Doe and Lucy Hunt. The Athenians are Ralph Healy, Mable Zaiser ann Mable Rue.

The Athenians received 42.88 points for their program. This is the biggest number of points received by either society in the last two years. The Athenians now have 119.16 points and the Spartans 80.29 points, but the Spartans have one more program to give.

A H. S. boy was giving a description of Macgraphs "Arms and the Woman" and he said: "Oh a fellow was in love with a common everyday girl and he wanted to marry her but she turned him down, put him in the shade, turned down his lights, froze him down to forty below. When she became a princess, she married him all the time."

Two weeks from Friday the following Spartan program will be rendered:

Richardson to be Nasby.

Congressman Halvor Steenerson left Crookston last Saturday evening for Washington to resume his duties in the house of representatives, says the Thief River Falls News, and the supporters of Frank H. Kratka for the office of postmaster who interviewed that gentleman in Crookston while he was there report that he gave them very little encouragement and it seems more than probable that Ira C. Richardson will be appointed to succeed himself. Mr. Richardson has had a decided advantage in the contest, being an old personal friend of Mr. Steenerson and the furthur fact that he has made a good postmaster. The appointment will probably be made the latter part of January.

READING IN BED.

A Custom That Has Been Followed by Many Writers.

Johnson told Boswell once, in the course of a conversation, in which he praised the "Anatomy," that a man, if inclined to melancholy, should have a lamp constantly burning in his bedchamber during the night "and if wakefully disturbed take a book and read and compose himself to rest." There can be little doubt that in thus indicating an appropriate course for any one afflicted with "constitutional melancholy"—his own trouble—he was stating his own practice. Many a book the wakeful doctor must have turned over in the silences of the night, and this increases the wonder that a desire to read any particular work should take him out of bed unusually early.

Gray must surely have been a reader in bed. A man who wished to be for ever lying on sofas reading "eternal new novels of Crebillon and Marivaux," must have been familiar with the faces of his favorites in the night. Elijah Fenton, a now forgotten coadjutor of Pope, was accustomed to lie abed at his lodgings, we are told, and be fed with a spoon, but Gray's love of ease was not of this type. Gray was a bookman, and most bookmen probably have indulged in the habit of reading in bed. Lamb apostrophized his folios as "my midnight darlings," but those "huge armfuls," as he calls them, were not bedside books. They were the companions of the long hours of candlelight in the back room of the quiet little "gambogish colored" house beside the Chase at Enfield. Wycherley, one of the "artificial" dramatists for whom Lamb wrote a quaint defense, made a habit of reading himself to sleep. Nightly he shared his pillow with his favorite authors—Seneca, Montaigne and Rochefoucauld—and in the mornings made a practice of writing on those subjects which had caught his attention during the previous night's reading, with the curious though not unnatural result, as Pope has testified, that his writing was unconsciously a mere echo of his reading.

Somewhat later, when Grub street flourished, if so inappropriate a verb may be allowed, many a poor wretch of a hack author was glad to write as well as to read in bed for the all sufficient reason that seemly clothes were lacking for going abroad.—London Globe.

EPIGRAMS OF NOVELISTS.

One crawls into friendship, one occasionally drifts into matrimony, but in love one falls.—Frankfort Moore.

There is no place like the top, especially when it is narrow and will not hold many at a time.—Anthony Hope.

Love and friendship are stronger than charity and politeness, and those who tread upon the latter are rarely accorded the former.—Seton Merriman.

It is the American's regret that at present he can do nothing with his feet while he is listening at the telephone, but doubtless some employment will be found for them in the coming age.—Ian Maclaren.

There are two unpardonable sins in this world, success and failure. Those who succeed can't forgive a fellow for being a failure and those who fail can't forgive him for being a success.—G. H. Lorimer.

There are two classes of people in the world, the people who are clever and the people who are keen, and you must never mix the two. They meet and touch, they are necessary to each other, but they never, never blend.—Katherine Cecil Thurston.

Her Coats of Arms.

Concerning a very modish woman the late Julian Rix, painter and critic, had this story to tell:

"Mr. Rix, I've come to ask you a great favor," she said as she fairly burst into his studio one fall day.

"Everything I have is at your command, madam."

"I want to show you some coats of arms and ask your advice about making a choice."

"Which side of the family do you wish to follow, maternal or—"

"Oh, neither! The herald says I can choose any of these. I want something that will look well on whist counters."

"Yes. Well, what about this?"

"That will do nicely. But don't you think I ought to have more than one? I do tire so quickly of things, you know."—New York Times.

Canals In England.

Canals in England date back to an early period, for the Romans built two in Lincolnshire—the Foss dike, forty miles long and still navigable, and the Caer dike. The first British made canal was constructed in 1134 by Henry I. and joined the Trent to the Witham. It was toward the end of the eighteenth century that the greatest amount of energy was expended in the building of canals, mainly due to the Duke of Bridgewater and the skill of his engineer, James Brindley. In the last decade of that century a canal mania raged.

RECEPTION TO ELLIOTT.

Business Men of the Northwest Meet New Railroad President.

St. Paul, Jan. 8.—President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific railway was welcomed to St. Paul last evening by one of the most representative gatherings of business and professional men that ever assembled in the Northwest.

More than 1,500 men of high standing in the commercial and social world shook the hand of the newly chosen president during the reception which was tendered to him at the Commercial club by the business men of St. Paul.

Following the introduction of President Elliott to the business men of the Northwest, there were several speeches in which the history of the Northland was told, and the narrators tersely traced its development from a wilderness to a great and productive region, populated by millions of industrial workers.

President Hill, Archbishop Ireland, W. McLean, Bishop Walker of Minneapolis and President Elliott delivered addresses. Before the speechmaking began, President T. F. Smith of the Commercial club welcomed Mr. Elliott to St. Paul, on behalf of the business and professional men of the Northwest, and Mr. Elliott made a lengthy reply.

DYING WITH HICCOUGHS.

Minnesota Man Driven From Camp by His Companions.

Duluth, Jan. 11.—John Kollak, an employe of a lumber camp near Duluth, was driven from the place by his companions Sunday because he was afflicted with hiccoughs and he is now dying at a Duluth hospital. Kollak had been hiccoughing for ten days before he came to this city and was so weak he could scarcely walk to the railroad station. His companions complained that he kept them awake at night. The patient hiccoughs twenty times a minute, and if he undertakes to talk the trouble is increased to a succession of gasps. Physicians say the hiccoughing is due to irritation of the pneumogastric nerve and is a certain form of dyspepsia.

ACCUSED OF BIGAMY.

West Point Graduate Arrested on Complaint of His Wife.

Minneapolis, Jan. 6.—After having been married for two months to Dr. Linda Burfield, an osteopath, and an exponent of the starvation cure for disease, Samuel Hargrave, alias Samuel C. Hazzard, a West Point graduate, and former officer of the United States army, well known in insurance circles in this city, was yesterday arrested in this city on a charge of bigamy, preferred by Viva Hazzard, daughter of Senator Fitzpatrick, of Nevada, Ia.

According to the complaint, she is the second wife of Hargrave-Hazzard, and is in possession of evidence to prove that Hargrave has three wives now living.

FORGER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Duluth Police Had Been Searching for Him.

Duluth, Jan. 8.—Lying face downward in the snow the body of Charles Rupp, a forger, for whom the Duluth police had been searching for the past four days, was found in an alley last night in the rear of the home of William Soukup. Death, which resulted from strychnine poisoning, had overtaken the man an hour before.

Rupp floated three checks aggregating $40 during the past week, securing the cash from local business men. In his pockets were several notes, one addressed to his wife, in which he charged his downfall to liquor.

CHILD STRANGLED TO DEATH.

Dies While Parents Celebrate Their Wedding Anniversary.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 8.—The thirteen months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miles of Lester Park was strangled to death in her little crib at night while the parents were entertaining a party of friends in honor of the second anniversary of their wedding. In some unaccountable manner the little one had worked her way to the edge of the mattress and her head dropped down between it and the footboard, and being unable to extricate herself, strangled to death.

WAGE CUT CAUSES STRIKE.

Employes of Mankato (Minn.) Knitting Mill Go Out.

Mankato, Minn., Jan. 6.—The knitting and topsetting departments of the knitting mill were closed down, at noon on account of a strike of 100 operatives, who are mostly girls. The strike was caused by a temporary reduction of 10 per cent in the wages, due to the scarcity and high price of cotton. The mill company said it was willing to run without profit to keep the employes busy.

SUCCEEDS CAPTAIN CASTLE.

J. J. McCardy Appointed Auditor for the Postoffice Department.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The following appointments were announced at the treasury department Thursday: John J. McCardy of St. Paul, Minn., to be auditor for the postoffice department to succeed Captain Henry A. Castle, also of Minnesota, resigned.

Lyman T. Hoy, to be appraiser of merchandise in the District of Chicago, Ill., vice Horace H. Thomas, removed.

DUNN A CANDIDATE.

Citizens of Princeton Contribute to His Campaign Fund.

St. Paul, Jan. 6.—Robert C. Dunn read an announcement of his candidacy for the office of governor last evening at a public reception tendered him at Princeton, his home town, of Mille Lacs county.

Minnesota Pioneer Dead.

St. Paul, Jan. 8.—C. C. King, retired merchant and pioneer, died at his home here during the day after a short illness. He was eighty-four years old and had lived in St. Paul since 1851. He was a member of the Pioneer Guards and participated in putting down the outbreak of the Sioux Indians in 1862. He was colonel of one of the volunteer regiments.

READING IN BED.

A Custom That Has Been Followed by Many Writers.

Johnson told Boswell once, in the course of a conversation, in which he praised the "Anatomy," that a man, if inclined to melancholy, should have a lamp constantly burning in his bedchamber during the night "and if wakefully disturbed take a book and read and compose himself to rest." There can be little doubt that in thus indicating an appropriate course for any one afflicted with "constitutional melancholy"—his own trouble—he was stating his own practice. Many a book the wakeful doctor must have turned over in the silences of the night, and this increases the wonder that a desire to read any particular work should take him out of bed unusually early.

Gray must surely have been a reader in bed. A man who wished to be forever lying on sofas, reading "eternal new novels of Crebillon and Marivaux," must have been familiar with the faces of his favorites in the night hours. Elijah Fenton, a now forgotten coadjutor of Pope, was accustomed to lie abed at his lodgings, we are told, and he fed with a spoon, but Gray's love of ease was not of this type. Gray was a bookman, and most bookmen probably have indulged in the habit of reading in bed. Lamb apostrophized his folios as "my midnight darlings," but those "huge armfuls," as he calls them, were not bedside books. They were the companions of the long hours of candlelight in the back room of the quiet little "gambogish colored" house beside the Chase at Enfield. Wycherley, one of the "artificial" dramatists for whom Lamb wrote a quaint defense, made a habit of reading himself to sleep. Nightly he shared his pillow with his favorite authors—Seneca, Montaigne and Rochefoucauld—and in the mornings made a practice of writing on those subjects which had caught his attention during the previous night's reading, with the curious though not unnatural result, as Pope has testified, that his writing was unconsciously a mere echo of his reading.

Somewhat later, when Grub street flourished, if so inappropriate a verb may be allowed, many a poor wretch of a hack author was glad to write as well as to read in bed for the all sufficient reason that seemly clothes were lacking for going abroad.—London Globe.

EPIGRAMS OF NOVELISTS.

One crawls into friendship, one occasionally drifts into matrimony, but in love one falls.—Frankfort Moore.

There is no place like the top, especially when it is narrow and will not hold many at a time.—Anthony Hope.

Love and friendship are stronger than charity and politeness, and those who trade upon the latter are rarely accorded the former.—Seton Merriman.

It is the American's regret that at present he can do nothing with his feet while he is listening at the telephone, but doubtless some employment will be found for them in the coming age.—Ian Maclaren.

There are two unpardonable sins in this world, success and failure. Those who succeed can't forgive a fellow for being a failure and those who fail can't forgive him for being a success.—G. H. Lorimer.

There are two classes of people in the world, the people who are clever and the people who are keen, and you must never mix the two. They meet and touch, they are necessary to each other, but they never, never blend.—Katherine Cecil Thurston.

Her Coats of Arms.

Concerning a very modish woman the late Julian Rix, painter and critic, had this story to tell:

"Mr. Rix, I've come to ask you a great favor," she said as she fairly burst into his studio one fall day.

"Everything I have is at your command, madam."

"I want to show you some coats of arms and ask your advice about making a choice."

"Which side of the family do you wish to follow, maternal or"—

"Oh, neither! The herald says I can choose any of these. I want something that will look well on whist counters."

"Yes. Well, what about this?"

"That will do nicely. But don't you think I ought to have more than one? I do tire so quickly of things, you know."—New York Times.

Canals In England.

Canals in England date back to an early period, for the Romans built two in Lincolnshire—the Foss dike, forty miles long and still navigable, and the Caer dike. The first British made canal was constructed in 1134 by Henry I. and joined the Trent to the Witham. It was toward the end of the eighteenth century that the greatest amount of energy was expended in the building of canals, mainly due to the Duke of Bridgewater and the skill of his engineer, James Brindley. In the last decade of that century a canal mania raged.

RECEPTION TO ELLIOTT.

Business Men of the Northwest Meet New Railroad President.

St. Paul, Jan. 9.—President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific railway was welcomed to St. Paul last evening by one of the most representative gatherings of business and professional men that ever assembled in the Northwest.

More than 1,500 men of high standing in the commercial and social world shook the hand of the newly chosen president during the reception which was tendered to him at the Commercial club by the business men of St. Paul.

Following the introduction of President Elliott to the business men of the Northwest, there were several speeches in which the history of the Northland was told, and the narrators tersely traced its development from a wilderness to a great and productive region, populated by millions of industrial workers.

President Hill, Archbishop Ireland, W. R. Dean, T. B. Walker of Minneapolis and President Elliott delivered addresses. Before the speechmaking began, President T. F. Smith of the Commercial club welcomed Mr. Elliott to St. Paul, on behalf of the business and professional men of the Northwest, and Mr. Elliott made a lengthy reply.

DYING WITH HICCOUGHS.

Minnesota Man Driven From Camp by His Companions.

Duluth, Jan. 11.—John Kollak, an employe of a lumber camp near Duluth, was driven from the place by his companions Sunday because he was afflicted with hiccoughs and he is now dying at a Duluth hospital. Kollak had been hiccoughing for ten days before he came to this city, and was so weak he could scarcely walk to the railroad station. His companions complained that he kept them awake at night. The patient hiccoughs twenty time a minute, and if he undertakes to talk the trouble is increased to a succession of gasps. Physicians say the hiccoughing is due to irritation of the pneumogastric nerve and is a certain form of dyspepsia.

ACCUSED OF BIGAMY.

West Point Graduate Arrested on Complaint of His Wife.

Minneapolis, Jan. 6.—After having been married for two months to Dr. Linda Burfield, an osteopath and an exponent of the starvation cure for disease, Samuel Hargrave, alias Samuel C. Hazzard, a West Point graduate, and former officer of the United States army, well known in insurance circles in this city, was yesterday arrested in this city on a charge of bigamy, preferred by Viva Hazard, daughter of Senator Fitzpatrick, of Nevada, Ia.

According to the complaint, she is the second wife of Hargrave-Hazzard, and is in possession of evidence to prove that Hargrave has three wives now living.

FORGER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Duluth Police Had Been Searching for Him.

Duluth, Jan. 8.—Lying face downward in the snow, the body of Charles Rupp, a forger, for whom the Duluth police had been searching for the past four days, was found in an alley last night in the rear of the home of William Soukup. Death, which resulted from strychnine poisoning, had over taken the man an hour before.

Rupp floated three checks aggregating $40 during the past week, securing the cash from local business men. In his pockets were several notes, one addressed to his wife, in which he charged his downfall to liquor.

CHILD STRANGLED TO DEATH.

Dies While Parents Celebrate Their Wedding Anniversary.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 8.—The thirteen-months'-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miles of Lester Park was strangled to death in her little crib at night while the parents were entertaining a party of friends in honor of the second anniversary of their wedding. In some unaccountable manner the little one had worked her way to the edge of the mattress and her head dropped down between it and the foot board, and being unable to extricate herself, strangled to death.

WAGE CUT CAUSES STRIKE.

Employes of Mankato (Minn.) Knitting Mill Go Out.

Mankato, Minn., Jan. 6.—The knitting and topsetting departments of the knitting mill were closed down at noon on account of a strike of 100 operatives, who are mostly girls. The strike was caused by a temporary reduction of 10 per cent in the wages, due to the scarcity and high price of cotton. The mill company said it was willing to run without profit to keep the employes busy.

SUCCEEDS CAPTAIN CASTLE.

J. J. McCardy Appointed Auditor for the Postoffice Department.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The following appointments were announced at the treasury department Thursday: John J. McCardy of St. Paul, Minn., to be auditor for the postoffice department to succeed Captain Henry A. Castle, also of Minnesota, resigned.

Lyman T. Hoy, to be appraiser of merchandise in the District of Chicago, Ill., vice Horace H. Thomas, removed.

DUNN A CANDIDATE.

Citizens of Princeton Contribute to His Campaign Fund.

St. Paul, Jan. 6.—Robert C. Dunn read an announcement of his candidacy for the office of governor last evening at a public reception tendered him at Princeton, his home town of Mille Lacs county.

Minnesota Pioneer Dead:

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—C. C. King, retired merchant and pioneer, died at his home here during the day after a short illness. He was eighty-four years old and had lived in St. Paul since 1854. He was a member of the Pioneer Guards and participated in putting down the outbreak of the Sioux Indians in 1862. He was colonel of one of the volunteer regiments.

Do Not Dose The Stomach.

Cure Catarrh by Nature's Own Method —Every Breath of Hyomei Brings Relief.

Nearly every one who has Catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by drugging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes.

Until recently your physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate; but now with Hyomei you can carry a health giving climate in your vest pocke and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and if one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

A. L. Reichert has sold a great many Hyomei outfits and the more he sells the more convinced they are that he is perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

If you are thinking of going to school this winter, you should write to J. C. Sathre for a new catalogue of the Crookston College. Tuition is $6 per month, and good board and room in private family for $3 per week. Have several places on hand where girls can do a little work for board and room.

Pulomary Consumption.

Rev. J. R. Fly, of Brookline Sta., Mo., says: My wife has been troubled with weak lungs and was pronounced to be in the last stages of pulmonary consumption. She commenced taking White Wine of Tar and received relief at once and is now using the fourth bottle and her health is better than for many years. We cheerfully recommend it to all. For sale by A. L. Reichert.

Congratulations,

John H. Cullom, editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a letter of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows; "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results. One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeable to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is not dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdose. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale at Schreiters Drug Store.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

FAR EASTERN SITUATION.

A detachment of 105 marines from the United States cruiser Vicksburg, now lying at Chemulpo, has arrived at Seoul, Korea, as a guard for the American legation.

A dispatch to the Paris Patrie from Constantinople says Russia is negotiating with Turkey to permit her Black sea fleet, said to consist of seventy-six ships, to pass through the straits of the Dardanelles.

United States Minister Allen, at Seoul, Korea, has cabled the state department that the Russian marines who were landed at Chemulpo and who were refused transportation to Seoul over the Japanese railway have reached the capital, marching overland.

Official and diplomatic circles in Paris claim to be without information regarding the contents of the Russian reply to Japan, but the tone is distinctly pessimistic and there are but slight hopes of a peaceful exit from the position in which Russia and Japan find themselves.

Several Russian warships have left Port Arthur to reinforce cruisers sent out for the purpose of intercepting a Japanese squadron of four ironclads which it is understood is now approaching Korea for the purpose of stopping six Japanese coal laden ships from Japan destined for Port Arthur and cancelling their charter to a Russian firm there.

The Japanese government is silent concerning the terms of the Russian rejoinder. A high authority at Tokio, however, says that the reply is unsatisfactory to Japan, especially in its features bearing upon the question of Korea. He says that the Russian government in its communication expresses a desire for a peaceful settlement of the matters in dispute.

The Japanese government has practically determined to continue negotiations. It is dissatisfied with Russia's terms but does not feel warranted in issuing an ultimatum or breaking off negotiations and will make another effort to secure their modification before resorting to force. It is anticipated that the discussion will consume a few weeks, during which interim a breach of peace is improbable.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

General Adna R. Chaffee has been appointed lieutenant general of the army, vice General Young, to be retired.

The response of Senator Smoot of Utah to the charges made against him has been filed with the senate committee. All are specifically denied.

John J. McCardy of St. Paul has been appointed auditor for the postoffice department to succeed Captain Henry A. Castle, also of Minnesota, resigned.

General Reyes is still awaiting the state department's reply to his request that the correspondence between him and the Washington government regarding the Panama incident be sent to the United States senate. It is quite possible that upon receipt of the state department's reply to his last note General Reyes will leave immediately for Colombia. In that event Dr. Herran, the Colombian charge, will close the legation and return home, thus marking the breaking off of diplomatic relations between this country and Colombia.

The Far Eastern situation was discussed at the cabinet meeting Friday, special consideration being given the movements of the Asiatic squadron, which it is desired shall be so shaped as to emphasize the absolute neutrality of this country in the event of hostilities between Russia and Japan. After the meeting it was announced that orders would be cabled Rear Admiral Evans upon his arrival at Guam to proceed thence to Subig bay, it being desired that the American navy shall observe "good sea manners" by not going to Japanese or Russian waters just now.

NEWS OF NOTED PERSONS.

Captain Frederick Pabst of Milwaukee, whose funeral has just been held, on Christmas made gifts to every member of his family, said by his close friends to aggregate some $5,000,000 or $6,000,000.

M. Philippe Bunau-Varilla, the minister from Panama and the joint signer with Secretary Hay of the Hay-Bunau-Varilla treaty, will resign his office after the exchange of ratifications of the treaty between the Washington and Panama governments. It is said his successor will be Mr. Arosemena, a prominent lawyer of Panama.

REVOLUTION IN PANAMA.

Colombia has taken a new step in the canal matter. A French tribunal has been appealed to with a view to preventing the transfer of the Panama Canal company's rights on the isthmus to the American government without the consent of Colombia.

General Reyes, the Colombian special envoy, has received the answer of the Washington government to his note charging the United States with open violation of the treaty of 1846. The answer, which was prepared by Secretary Hay, though couched in the most diplomatic terms and expressing the wish of this government to deal justly with Colombia, is an emphatic refusal to reopen the Panama question.

LABOR NEWS.

AMARYLLIS

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Outside it was raw and gusty, with white, high lying clouds scudding so thickly across a pale sky that only wan and watery sunshine straied through the breaks between. Inside there was the balm of May, especially in the south parlor, where I knew I should find Myrtilla.

Myrtilla is tall and twenty, with a child's foot and a turn of the head and neck that would become an empress. She [illegible] red lips, a fine, straight nose, olive [illegible] dark almond eyes, heavily lashed and lidded, and a low, straight brow deeply shadowed by dusky fleecy silk hair. In virtue of all this she reigns as a queen over most men. We had been engaged until two weeks ago—to be exact, until the date of the Verinews' ball and the episode of the Grantley girl.

The ball is ancient history now; besides, it has really nothing to do with the case. I left off dancing—with the Grantley girl at 4 a. m.—to fling myself into tweeds and set forth upon a week's journey. Coming home from it, I found my table cumbered with my letters to Myrtilla down to the most fragmentary note—those of the last week unopened—my ring, my books, a bracelet or two, the locket with my picture and a litter of those idiotic things one sends at Christmas and Easter and on birthdays. It was this litter that saved me from utter despair. I reasoned that if Myrtilla had cared enough for me to keep it all this time she could not give up caring for me in a moment.

Still, I knew there was a tough job ahead. But I did not dream she would go to the length of refusing to see or hear me or even to listen to my side of the case through Aunt Bab, most tactful of intermediaries. Her people backed her, too—all but Dicky. Dicky is fifteen and owns the distinction of being the only thing in trousers Myrtilla has found herself unable to subjugate. I cannot flatter myself that Dicky's advocacy of my cause was wholly disinterested. Dicky has a fine taste in terrier pups and a relish for stolen gallops on my hunters. At home he is allowed nothing more hazardous than a steady going cob. However that may be, it meant a lot to have any sort of friend at court. Otherwise, how should the hall door have swung open at my approach? The servants had strict orders to shut it civilly in my face.

"She's in there. It beats me why you want her—why you want any girl, when you've got heaps of dogs and horses." Dicky said, grinning, as I shot past him. "She's been real hateful polite; no good for even a fight this whole week," Dicky's voice pursued me down the hall.

The south parlor is a square jut, open upon three sides to the sun, with walls more than half windows, iron barred outside and full of green growing things within. There is a big fireplace. Myrtilla stood in front of it, her eyes intently fixed upon the smoldering logs. At my entrance she started ever so little, turned her head the least bit and kept on staring in the fire.

"Myrtilla," I ventured irresolutely, my hand still on the doorknob.

She sat down and took up her embroidery, her face still further averted. Then I knew I had won half a point. If she had been as angry as she believed herself to be she would have marched away with her nose in the air.

I began again formally, "Miss Grey," but stopped short. She had begun to whistle over her work softly, meditatively, as though she knew herself to be alone.

Something happened then. I am neither poet nor romancer, but my ranging eye saw in the south window a creature of tropic charm, slim and tall, green gowned as a wood nymph, with wonderful golden tawny eyes and a crown still more wonderfully red. As I went to her she shivered and set all her green gown fluttering defensively, but I paid no heed to it, only said joyously, baring my head:

"Amaryllis! You are a real godsend! I was never so glad to see any one in all my life."

Myrtilla's head came around so that I saw her profile out of the tail of my eye. I fancied she stared, but dared not make sure of it. My wood nymph barely nodded; her tremors were all at rest. I bent toward her low enough to look into her golden tawny eyes and ran on:

"What have you done to yourself? You are so beautiful, so strangely, so rarely beautiful, it makes me desperate that I did not keep my heart for you, or, rather, it would make me desperate if hearts were things that could be given or kept at will."

Certainly the wood nymph stared; the golden tawny eyes looked at me unwinking. Myrtilla's head had turned a little more. Her lips were the least bit parted, as though her breath came hard. I straightened and stuck a hand in my pocket as I added:

"The pity of it! There's a true heart gone to waste! True hearts are none so plenty, Amaryllis."

"Certainly they are not," came scornfully from the fireside. I affected not to hear and went on mournfully:

"I've played and lost—lost so miserably. Listen—then tell me if you think I quite deserve what I am getting?"

"I am going away," came faintly from Myrtilla's chair, but Myrtilla herself sat still and even made a pretense of putting stitches into her work. Finding me silent through a long minute, she sat very straight and added:

"Naturally one is nervous at finding oneself alone with a lunatic. Only lunatics talk to things as though they were people."

"Don't mind her, Amaryllis," I said softly. "Poor creature, she is jealous. She thinks you are no more than a lily blooming in a pot. We know better, of course."

"Really I did not dream you had so much imagination," Myrtilla said outright, snipping her thread as she spoke.

I stared harder than ever at Amaryllis, saying: "Imagination is a fearful thing sometimes. I am glad, Amaryllis, you altogether lack it. You would never see in ordinary civilities to a pretty girl anything to turn your lovely golden tawny eyes green."

"Dancing or sitting out every other number, I suppose, comes under the head of 'ordinary civilities,'" Myrtilla said, her lip curling.

I kept on quietly: "And even if you felt hurt you would let me explain. The Verinews have hearts as big as their fortune. Thus it happens I owe them what money can never pay. Not so many years back there was a big flurry in the street that put my governor in the worst sort of hole. It needed a cool million to get him out, and a Verinew million did it. Yet the governor was hardly an acquaintance. Verinew learned his extremity by chance and came to his help because, as he phrased it, he didn't think the other side was putting up a square deal. It does not lessen the obligation that he got his million back, plus a good profit. Eventually the Grantley girl will have it, with several millions more. She is a granddaughter—unacknowledged because Mme. Verinew wishes to seem as young as their fortune—but the very apple of the Verinew eye. They wanted her to be the belle of the ball—she was shy and sensitive and frightened half out of her wits. Somehow she trusted me"—

"I don't at all wonder at that," said a voice from the fireplace.

I bowed gravely and resumed: "When she is not frightened she is pretty, Amaryllis. Her head is splendidly red—not quite so red as yours. She is light on her feet, too, and loves to dance as well as the flowers do. The trouble is she has not yet quite caught the rhythms she must move to, so needs must lean heavily upon her partner. I understood; some of the others did not. Occasionally one was flurried, still more occasionally one impertinent. And a single cad let her see he was ashamed of dancing with her in spite of the millions. At her first ball! Think of it. I had to take away the sting of it somehow. Perhaps I did seem devoted, but she didn't misunderstand. I told her about Myrtilla in our very first waltz."

A little inarticulate cry from the fireplace here. Covertly I saw tears on Myrtilla's cheeks. She made as though to rise, but sank back, turned away her head and resumed the furious stabbing with her needle. I gathered the greenery of Amaryllis in my hands, laid my cheek against it and said dreamily:

"Amaryllis, tell me why I am fated to love dusky hair. All the painters and poets agree that red is ever so much more beautiful."

"Are you sure, quite sure, you do love it?" Myrtilla asked tremulously. She was not answered in words.

Five minutes later Dicky, bursting in upon us, found us side by side, looking down at Amaryllis through sunshine grown suddenly and magically warm and golden. After a long look Dicky whistled, turned on his heel and said from the door over his shoulder: "So you two have made it up. McSnifters said you would, 'cause that red lily bloomed so far ahead of time. But I don't care about that. All I want is to know what you're goin' to give me when you get married."

What Constitutes Death.

Is the cessation of the heart's action an invariable sign of death? There is on record the case of a woman whose heart was revived by artificial respiration some time after she was supposed to have died, but the heart stopped again when the artificial respiration was given up. There is on record also the case of a decapitated murderer whose heart continued to beat for an hour after the execution. Was the man dead?

Obviously the cessation of the brain's activities is no criterion. A medical authority who has lately considered this absorbing and important question offers the following definition of what we call "death:" "Death," it is suggested, is the name given to the inability of the organs of the body to act together with that harmony which is characteristic of "life," although the derangement of this vital harmony does not preclude a possible activity of the individual organs, which recalls Herbert Spencer's well known definition of life as a continued adjustment of internal relations to external relations.—Harper's Weekly.

A Bargain.

"I have something for you here, my love," said Mr. Darley as he proceeded to open a large, round box.

"What is it, precious?"

"Wait and see."

Darley carefully unwrapped the article and disclosed a lady's hat.

"Isn't it a beauty?" he asked. "I bought it myself as a surprise to you. Don't you think it is a perfect dream?"

Mrs. Darley gazed at the hat and burst into tears.

"I can't wear it!" she cried. "It doesn't suit me at all. You meant to please me, I know, but it isn't my style at all."

"Don't cry, dear. The milliner said you could exchange it, and if you'll agree not to buy any ties for me hereafter I'll let you select your own hats and bonnets."

An agreement was concluded on that basis.

IROQUOIS FIRE INVESTIGATION.

According to a statement of Alderman Friestedt, one of the members of the special committee of the city council appointed to investigate the condition of Chicago theaters and report upon what alterations are necessary to make them conform to the building ordinances, it is doubtful if 35 per cent of the theaters will ever reopen their doors. Strict adherence to the building laws would require that every one of the playhouses in the city be of fireproof construction and this would require the demolition and rebuilding of the majority of theaters.

Joseph Daugherty, who had charge of the asbestos curtain in the Iroquois theater at Chicago, swore that three weeks ago during a matinee performance there was a fire on the stage and that when he attempted to lower the asbestos curtain it was stopped by the same obstruction that prevented its operation the fatal afternoon. The curtain manager declares that he protested at that time, but that no attention was paid to his warning.

Further investigation of the Iroquois fire shows that practically no precautions were taken to prevent loss of life. The managers, on examination, admitted failure to instruct employes in fighting fire and failure even to provide suitable appliances for use against flames. Their statements were corroborated by the testimony of twenty employes of the theater, none of whom had even been told his duty in case of fire. It was also admitted that eleven of the theater exits were locked and bolted on the day of the disaster. From figures obtained it becomes evident that almost one in three people who attended the matinee lost their lives, the ratio being a trifle over 31 per cent. The theater seated 1,606 people and in addition to these 256 had been admitted after all seats were sold, making a total of 1,842 people in the theater, of whom 591 were killed. The two balconies, including seats and people standing, held 889 people. Only three persons were killed on the first floor. This would make 588 deaths out of 889 people in the two balconies.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Otis Henry Brand, for twenty-one years city editor of the Janesville (Wis.) Daily Recorder, is dead.

Sarah Cecelia Earl, well known on the stage a quarter of a century ago, is dead in New York city after a long illness.

Jesse R. Williams, prominent in the early history of Wisconsin, died Friday of cancer at La Crosse, aged seventy-eight.

Dr. Chauncey Hobart, for nearly seventy years an ordained minister in the Methodist church, is dead at Red Wing, Minn., after a week's illness of pneumonia.

Ruth Cleveland, the eldest child of former President Cleveland, is dead at Princeton, N. J., the immediate cause of death being a weakening of the heart action during a mild attack of diphtheria.

Former Governor Charles Foster, who was secretary of the treasury under President Harrison, died suddenly at Springfield, O., from the effect of cerebral hemorrhages. Mr. Foster was seventy-six years of age.

Parke Godwin, from 1837 to 1852 editor of the New York Evening Post, of which he again became editor a few years later, and well known as editor and author of several books, is dead, aged eighty-eight years.

George J. Fuller is dead at "The Hermitage," Nashville, Tenn., at the age of sixty-nine. He was one of the greatest drivers of trotting horses in the country and at one time had charge of the stables of the czar of Russia.

General George L. Becker, for half a century prominent in public life in Minnesota, is dead. General Becker represented Minnesota in congress in 1857 and was twice Democratic candidate for governor. He was seventy-five years of age.

General John B. Gordon, one of the foremost leaders of the Confederacy and with one exception the last of the Confederate major generals, died Saturday night at his home near Miami, Fla. The cause of his death was congestion of the stomach and liver, following an acute attack of indigestion.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Nine persons were injured in a wreck on the Burlington at Rockford, S. D.

Three trainmen were killed by a collision of two trains on the Brooklyn Elevated railroad.

Three deaths from typhoid fever occurred Friday at Butler, Pa., raising the total to ninety-eight.

Supervising Engineer C. L. Linley fell sixty feet to his death while making an inspection of the Iowa state capitol building at Des Moines, damaged by fire last week.

Not in the history of the present generation have the conditions in the Allegheny river been so alarming. The ice is gorged at intervals for nearly fifty miles, the gorges ranging from five to fifteen feet in height.

Seventeen persons were killed and thirty-seven injured in a collision between a Rock Island passenger and cattle train at Willard, Kan. Carelessness of the crew of the passenger train is given as the cause of the wreck.

Fire that started in the big building occupied by the J. V. Ritchey Furniture company and the Wyman-Rand Carpet company at Burlington, Ia., damaged half a block of business houses, entailing a loss of $200,000.

The steamer Clallam, on the Seattle and Victoria run, went down in a storm in the straits of Juan de Fuca. Of the eighty-three persons on board fifty-two perished, a majority of them losing their lives after leaving the sinking vessel in lifeboats.

There are approximately 1,000 cases of typhoid fever in Montreal and the half dozen smaller municipalities which join it on the three sides. The health officers of the various suburbs say fresh cases are being reported constantly despite their efforts to check the disease.

Children's Reading.

Many mothers fail to realize the importance of carefully supervising their children's reading. They seem to forget that properly selected food for the brain is as necessary as suitable nourishment for the body. If from the beginning only the best books are put into the child's hands a taste for the best will be cultivated which will stand him in good stead through life. Later, when he is left free to browse for himself in libraries stocked with all sorts and conditions of books, he will naturally select the good from the bad.

Books serve many purposes in a child's development aside from the cultivation of good taste in literature and the accumulation of knowledge. The wise mother knows that they are her greatest allies in cultivating patriotism, in quickening the imagination and in developing humor. She also realizes that she can make her child strong morally by means of stories as in no other way.—Chicago Tribune.

Social Functions.

"The most successful social functions are those managed by a host and a hostess," says a society scribe, "not by either alone. Leave a man to make up a party and he is sure to forget that Mrs. B. was engaged to C. before she married D., and that Mrs. C. is aware of this fact, and that the D.'s and E.'s have long been at daggers drawn, and he will have no eyes to detect the designs of Mrs. H. On the other hand, a woman gets nervous and fatigued with the constant effort to keep the ball rolling and falls just where a man would succeed. What is wanted is a division of labor, and if this were done oftener there would be less disappointment on the part of entertainers and entertained."

ANNUAL TOWN ELECTIONS.

New Law Makes Important Changes—New Office is Created.

The laws relating to the election of supervisors and other town officers have been amended by an act of the 1903 legislature (Ch. 64) and it is very important that all town officers post themselves, in readiness for the forthcoming town elections in March. The Gazette presents the requirements for the benefit of its readers.

At the annual town meetings hereafter, there shall be elected three supervisors one of whom shall be elected for three years, one for two years and one for one year, so that one shall go out each year. The number of years for which each is elected shall be indicated on the ballot, and one shall be designated and known chairman. At each annual meeting thereafter, one supervisor shall be elected for three years to fill the place of the one whose term expires at that time. There shall also be elected at the annual town meeting in each town one clerk, one treasurer, one assessor, two justices of the peace, two constables and one overseer of highways for each road district in said town. Justices of the peace and constables shall be elected only once in two years, except to fill vacancies.

The is another provision entirely new, and one which it will be necessary to carefully consider, with the view to obtaining good men for the position, Chapter 43 of the 1903 laws provides for the election of a town school superintendent in every organized town which forms part of a common school district, containing 20 or more townships—this word township seems to be an error, as no school district in the state is so extensive as to comprise 20 townships. The word sections was evidently intended. If so then the legal voters of every organized town forming part of a common school district containing 20 or more sections, must, at the annual town meeting, in addition to the other officers elected elect a town school superintendent, whose duties shall be to advise the board of trustees of the school district, look after truants, visit the schools and report the condition thereof, and perform other duties at a compensation to be determined by a vote of the town at any annual meeting.

NEARLY A LYNCHING.

McIntosh People Go After Human Fiend for Necktie Party.

Crookston Journal: G. O. Johnson chief of police at McIntosh came in last night bringing with him Herman Wold, a farmer who lives in the town of Winger, and who is charged with the crime of rape, the victim being his own daughter.

The girl is not yet sixteen years old and she alleges that the assault occurred Thursday night as she and her father were going from McIntosh to their home.

At the time Wold, so the girl says, told her if she ever said a word concerning the matter to the family, or anyone else, he would go to McIntosh, buy a revolver and three coffins for the mother and two daughters, and that would be the end of the family.

Notwithstanding his threats, as soon as the father fell asleep the mother and daughters slipped out of the house, went to a neighbor named Nasseth and securing a team and driver proceeded to McIntosh where they arrived at five o'clock in the morning.

Chief Johnson at once prepared to go after Wold, but found that he had discovered the absence of the members of the family and had come to McIntosh. He was found wandering about the back alleys and was arrested.

Yesterday was set for a hearing but Wold decided to waive examination and came to Crookston to await the action of the grand jury.

The occurrence stirred the farmers about McIntosh deeply, and today those from the vicinity where Wold lives as well as others from other portions of the southeastern part of the county who were in McIntosh, were wrought up to such a pitch of excitement and disgust over the affair that they threatened to lynch Wold, and this would undoubtedly been his fate had a leader been present to organize the movement, or even take the initiative.

Chief Johnson was warned and spent the greater part of the day before leaving with his prisoner at the door of the jail, heavily armed and prepared to defend his prisoner.

Wold enters a general denial of the charge and simply says he knows nothing about it.

MIGHT NOT HAVE PERISHED.

Had C. E. Winslow Registered He Would Have Been Saved.

"If C. E. Winslow had registered at the Palmer house in Chicago, he undoubtedly would not have been a victim of the Iroquois disaster," said D. N. Winton, of the Thief River Falls Lumber company, to a Crookston Times man last Friday morning. Mr. Winslow arrived on the early train from Chicago, where he has spent the past three weeks with friends enjoying a vacaion. Mr. Winton was in Chicago the day of the fire, and had called at the hotel for Mr. Winslow who had forgotten to register. The clerk, however, accepted a letter to him from Mr. Winton, and agreed to deliver it should he register. The letter requested him to await the writer's arrival at the hotel late in the afternoon, but Mr. Winslow through carelessness or neglect did not register, and the letter was not delivered. Consequently instead of waiting at the hotel Mr. Winslow went to the theatre with a party of friends, and when the awful catastrophe occured, was occupying a seat in the front row of the second gallery and was killed almost instantaneously, without moving from his seat, by the flash of flame and gas. Mr. Winton, who is manager of the concern for which Mr. Winslow kept books, was deeply affected by the affair, as he and Mr. Winslow were the best of friends and co-workers. Mrs. Winslow and her son, a bright boy of 16, will make their home with relatives at LaCrosse, Wis.

WILL FIX THE TRACK.

N. P. Contractors Here To Start Work On Mill Spur.

Several Northern Pacific officials were callers here the first of the week, and made arrangements for the repairing of the spur to the mill of the Northern Minnesota Milling Company.

The work will likely commence today and it will take twenty-five men about two weeks to complete it. The pile driver will arrive the first of next week to help on the bridges. it being the intention of the company to make the spur serviceable for all needs.

This will be of great benefit to the Northern Minnesota people, as it will do away with the expensive process of teaming flour to the cars.

Secretary Johnson informs The Gazette that the company desires to employ as many men here as possible, and asks that any carpenters wanting work notify him.

NORTH DAKOTA CLAIMS.

Two Sections of Land In Cavalier County to be Opened.

Two sections of land in Cavalier county North Dakota will be opened for entry at the Grand Forks land office on Feb. 15. The land is described as sections 3 and 10, township 162 north, range 62 west. The land is located on a lake and the receding of the waters left two sections of land for survey and this survey has been approved by the government. It is said that squatters are located numerously on the two sections to be opened for entry, most of them living there for a number of years.

The Hen as a Producer.

The American hen is achieving a reputation not second even to the celebrated American hog. She has in fact become one of the wonders of the world. As a wealth producer she ranks with Aladin's lamp and the Kimberly Diamond mines, with this improvement over either, that what she produces is good to eat. A summary from the statistical reports as to what this wonderful fowl can do and has done, makes mighty interesting reading.

Her annual output is greater in value than all the output of the mines of gold and silver in this bully country and you may also throw in the product of the copper mines by way of good measure and still the hen has the whole aggregation beat to a frazzle. There are 250,000,000 chickens in the country. The value of the poultry sold in the markets during the year was $136,000,000 and the value of the eggs harvested was $144,000,000 making a total of $280,000,000 to be credited to the hen. The value for 1902 exceeded the total value of the exports of animals and animal products during all the years down to and including 1900. The value of all [illegible] in the United States last year was only one-third the value of the output of the American hen. The value of the wheat crop of 28 states added together was not as great as the value of the eggs and poultry sold in a single year. If the eggs produced in a single year by the American hen were loaded on one train of cars the caboose would be 900 miles to rear of the engine. If all the joyous cackles that were cackled announcing the laying of the untold millions of eggs were compressed into a single cackle of triumphant joy the volume of sound would make the thunder of Niagara seem by comparison like the sound of the drip falling from the schoolboy's nose on a frosty morning.

OLD RESIDENT GONE.

John Sutter, one of the Pioneers of Red Lake County, Passes Away.

At the family home in this city last Friday afternoon occurred the death of Mr. John Sutter, an old and respected resident of Red Lake county.

While not wholly unexpected, the news of his death was nevertheless a sad shock to the community, as it was hoped that he would eventually recover from his illness.

In 1896 Mr. Sutter was stricken with paralysis, and since that time he has been an invalid, having no use of his left side, although being able to sit up at [illegible] ways appearing [illegible] his affliction with [illegible]

Several week[illegible] a very serious [illegible] tenderly cared for [illegible] gradually failed [illegible] death came to [illegible] long and patient suffering.

John Sutter was born May 29, 1829 in Wilendinger, Baden, Germany, and emigrated to America fifty-two years ago, locating at Cleveland Ohio. Later moving onward to Pennsilvania, Mississippi, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin; yet not satisfied in those states, came to Minnesota, saw the Twin Cities in their infancy, and Fort Snelling just springing into a trading post. After exploring nearly the entire state located at St. Cloud, where he lived for two years, afterwards settled down in Alexandria where he remained for ten years.

With his wife and small family, he came to Red Lake Falls 22 years ago, where they have since resided, having built up a beautiful home and been held in high esteem by a wide circles of friends. Having a desire to visit his mother country, he once more took an extended trip to Europe a few years ago, returning with a feeling that "Home Sweet Home" was only in America.

The only relative Mr. Sutter had in America was a cousin, Captain Sutter, who first discovered the shining gold in the Sacremento Valley, California, in 1848.

Besides the bereared widow, two sons, Simon and Leo, and five daughters, Magdalene, Anna, Rose, Mrs. H. J. Fritz and Mrs. Chas. J. Chapman, of Duluth, mourn the absence of a noble hearted father whose reward came to him by the Almighty Father who doeth all things wisely and well.

The funeral was held Monday, services being conducted by the Rev. Father Ansgar.

The beautiful casket bore many floral tributes. The remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery.

WHO WILL BE THE ICE MAN?

From Present Indications We'll Be Short This Necessary Feature.

Indications are that Red Lake Falls will be faced by a large-sized ice famine during the coming summer season, unless someone takes it upon himself to be the "ice man."

T. V. Thibodeau who for the past several years has furnished ice to the citizens, announces that owing to poor health he will not prepare to meet the demand next summer, and as no one has yet announced his intention to take up the work, Red Lake Falls will be shy on this necessary article for lemonade and [illegible] so welcome during the [illegible] days.

[illegible] of the saloons, hotels and [illegible] put up their own ice [illegible] but the demand for fam[illegible] promises to be large.

[illegible] Thibodeau has offered his ice house [illegible] business for sale at a bargain and there is a good chance for some one step into a profitable business.

SAYS RESVERATION WILL OPEN.

Krakta, of Thief River Falls, Thinks Chances Are Good For The Opening.

To a Crookston Times reporter Mayor Kratka of Thief River Falls expressed himself at some length regarding the proposed opening of the 11 townships of the Red Lake Indian reserve. According to Mr. Kratka this summer will see the land opened for settlement and Thief River Falls will benefit accordingly. The land which comprises some 256,000 acres is one of the choicest tracts on the reserve, and is composed mainly of rolling prairie grass land. It directly adjoins the city of Thief River Falls on the north and east, and if opened will prove a very fertile farming country. Congressman Steenerson is favorable to the opening of the land, and [illegible] zens of the Falls hope to see passed. Senator Platt has reported on the matter for settlement without the need of a treaty with the Indians Mayor Kratka who has been a staunch supporter of the opening movement during the past two years has worked energetically and untiringly for the opening and has spent some $5,000 in behalf of the project. He hopes to see the matter successfully put through the present session of congress and is of the opinion that the land will be sold at auction to the highest bidders who are actual settlers.

The work will likely commence today and it will take twenty-five men about two weeks to complete it. The pile driver will arrive the first of next week to help on the bridges, it being the intention of the company to make the spur serviceable for all needs.

This will be of great benefit to the Northern Minnesota people, as it will do away with the expensive process of teaming flour to the cars.

Secretary Johnson informs The Gazette that the company desires to employ as many men here as possible, and asks that any carpenters wanting work notify him.

NORTH DAKOTA CLAIMS.

Two Sections of Land In Cavalier County to be Opened.

Two sections of land in Cavalier county North Dakota will be opened for entry at the Grand Forks land office on Feb. 15. The land is described as sections 3 and 10, township 162 north, range 62 west. The land is located on a lake and the receding of the waters left two sections of land for survey and this survey has been approved by the government. It is said that squatters are located numerously on the two sections to be opened for entry, most of them living there for a number of years.

The Hen as a Producer.

The American hen is achieving a reputation not second even to the celebrated American hog. She has in fact become one of the wonders of the world. As a wealth producer she ranks with Aladin's lamp and the Kimberly Diamond mines, with this improvement over either, that what she produces is good to eat. A summary from the statistical reports as to what this wonderful fowl can do and has done, makes mighty interesting reading.

Her annual output is greater in value than all the output of the mines of gold and silver in this bully country and you may also throw in the product of the copper mines by way of good measure and still the hen has the whole aggregation beat to a frazzle. There are 250,000,000 chickens in the country. The value of the poultry sold in the markets during the year was $136,000,000 and the value of the eggs harvested was $144,000,000 making a total of $280,000,000 to be credited to the hen. The value for 1902 exceeded the total value of the exports of animals and animal products during all the years down to and including 1900. The value of all the wool produced in the United States last year was only one-third the value of the output of the American hen. The value of the wheat crop of 28 states added together was not as great as the value of the eggs and poultry sold in a single year. If the eggs produced in a single year by the American hen were loaded on one train of cars the caboose would be 900 miles to rear of the engine. If all the joyous cackles that were cackled announcing the laying of the untold millions of eggs were compressed into a single cackle of triumphant joy the volume of sound would make the thunder of Niagara seem by comparison like the sound of the drip falling from the schoolboy's nose on a frosty morning.

OLD RESIDENT GONE.

John Sutter, one of the Pioneers of Red Lake County, Passes Away.

At the family home in this city last Friday afternoon occurred the death of Mr. John Sutter, an old and respected resident of Red Lake county.

While not wholly unexpected, the news of his death was nevertheless a sad shock to the community, as it was hoped that he would eventually recover from his illness.

In 1896 Mr. Sutter was stricken with paralysis, and since that time he has been an invalid, having no use of his left side, although being able to sit up a[illegible] ways appearing [illegible] his affliction wi[illegible]

Several week[illegible] a very serious [illegible] tenderly cared [illegible] gradually failed [illegible] death came to r[illegible] long and patient suffering.

John Sutter was born May 29, 1829 in Wilendinger, Baden, Germany, and emigrated to America fifty-two years ago, locating at Cleveland Ohio. Later moving onward to Pennsilvania, Mississippi, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin; yet not satisfied in those states, came to Minnesota, saw the Twin Cities in their infancy, and Fort Snelling just springing into a trading post. After exploring nearly the entire state located at St. Cloud, where he lived for two years, afterwards settled down in Alexandria where he remained for ten years.

With his wife and small family, he came to Red Lake Falls 22 years ago, where they have since resided, having built up a beautiful home and been held in high esteem by a wide circles of friends. Having a desire to visit his mother country, he once more took an extended trip to Europe a few years ago, returning with a feeling that "Home Sweet Home" was only in America.

The only relative Mr. Sutter had in America was a cousin, Captain Sutter, who first discovered the shining gold in the Sacremento Valley, California, in 1848.

Besides the bereaved widow, two sons, Simon and Leo, and five daughters, Magdalene, Anna, Rose, Mrs. H. J. Fritz and Mrs. Chas. J. Chapman, of Duluth, mourn the absence of a noble hearted father whose reward came to him by the Almighty Father who doeth all things wisely and well.

The funeral was held Monday, services being conducted by the Rev. Father Ansgar.

The beautiful casket bore many floral tributes. The remains were interred in St. Mary's cemetery.

WHO WILL BE THE ICE MAN?

From Present Indications We'll Be Short This Necessary Feature.

Indications are that Red Lake Falls will be faced by a large-sized ice famine during the coming summer season, unless someone takes it upon himself to be the "ice man."

T. V. Thibodeau who for the past several years has furnished ice to the citizens, announces that owing to poor health he will not prepare to meet the demand next summer, and as no one has yet announced his intention to take up the work, Red Lake Falls will be shy on this necessary article for lemonade and [illegible] so welcome during the [illegible]r days.

[illegible] of the saloons, hotels and [illegible]s put up their own ice [illegible] but the demand for fam[illegible]mises to be large. [illegible]bodeau has offered his ice [illegible] business for sale at a bargain and there is a good chance for some one step into a profitable business.

SAYS RESVERATION WILL OPEN.

Krakta, of Thief River Falls, Thinks Chances Are Good For The Opening.

To a Crookston Times reporter Mayor Kratka of Thief River Falls expressed himself at some length regarding the proposed opening of the 11 townships of the Red Lake Indian reserve. According to Mr. Kratka this summer will see the land opened for settlement and Thief River Falls will benefit accordingly. The land which comprises some 256,000 acres is one of the choicest tracts on the reserve, and is composed mainly of rolling prairie grass land. It directly adjoins the city of Thief River Falls on the north and east, and if opened will prove a very fertile farming country. Congressman Steenerson is favorable to the opening of the land, and has [illegible] zens of the Falls hope to see passed. Senator Platt has reported on the matter for settlement without the need of a treaty with the Indians. Mayor Kratka who has been a staunch supporter of the opening movement during the past two years has worked energetically and untiringly for the opening and has spent some $5,000 in behalf of the project. He hopes to see the matter successfully put through the present session of congress and is of the opinion that the land will be sold at auction to the highest bidders who are actual settlers.

The Right and Wrong Way of Taking Off Hides.

In skinning beef hides and calf skins keep the back of he knife close to the hide and draw lightly with left hand and you will not be liable to cut or score them. Observe the dotted lines on the beef on the foreleg; the knife should go down to tbe armpit; then forward to point of brisket, not back of brisket as many do, Never cut the throat across-wise; always take out horns and tail hone, but leave the switch on cow or horse hides.

Except in freezing weather all hides should be salted. To salt the hide throughly take a water bucket full of salt for a 60lb bide larger and smaller hides; kip and calf skins in proportioo Rub it on well and roll them up: or spread them out smooth one on top of the other, when killing often. If salt is all absorbed, put on more especially in warm weather before rolling up to ship.

It is estimated that the loss to butchers, farmers and trappers in this country exceeds one millioo dollars per year by improperly taking off hides and furs and not properly handling or cureing them.

To prevent this loss as much as possible we have had this cut made illustrating the right, with instructions so plain that a child can soon learn to do a good job.

The cut shows the animal on its back the dotted lines the course the koife should take and the result.

There are numerous wrong ways but only one right way. It is as easy to do right as wrong when you see how it is done. Wrong shaqed hides are classed as damaged hides, dven if not damaged by cuts and when they are dried on the fence or ground, exposed to the sun the weather for a coosiderable time, they get hard and are only fit for glue and are worth but half value of good hides.

Every farmer should have a regular butcher skinning knife i. e. a curved knife with such a knife you can avoid cutting holes or deep scores in the hide

Lack of space prevents our giving illustrations and instructions on the proper metnod of taking off and handling the skins of fur bearing animals, but a book of 56 pages beautifully illustrated, telling how to catch them and how to prapre their skins for market. also prices of hides and furs will be sent up on recnipt of a 4cts in stamqs to pay the postage by tne Northwestern Hide & Fur Co, Minneapolis Minn., If you mention this paper.

Congratulations,

John H. Cullom, editor of ths Garland, Texas, News, has written a lettsr of congratulations to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as follows; "Sixteen years ago wbsn our first child was a baby be was subject to cronpy spells and we would be vsry uneasy about him. We began using Chamberlain's Cough remedy in 1887, and finding it such a reliable remedy for colds and croup, we have never been without it in the house since that time. We hava five children and have given it to all of them with good results One good feature of this remedy is that it is not disagreeabla to take and our babies really like it. Another is that it is oot dangerous, and there is no risk from giving an overdosa. I congratulate you upon the success of your remedy." For sale at Schreiters Drug Store.

SITUATION IS EMBARRASSING.

No Provision for Selection of Republican Delegates in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Jan. 18.—The Globe says Minnesota Republicans ara more than worried over the neglect of the Republican national committee to provide for the selection of delegates from Minnesota to the national convantion, which meets in Chicago next June.

The worry comes from the fact that the peculiar predicament in which Minnesota Republicans find themselves is almost sure to result in a contesting delegation from this state.

The president's lieutenants in Minnesota declare that the national committee has made a grievous blunder in neglecting to provide for the manner of selecting delegates to the national convention from Minnesota, the only state in the Union which has a direct primary law.

Elmar Dover, private secretary to Senator M. A. Hanna, issued the call, which provides that the delegates from the congressional districts shall be named by conventions held in the same manner as are held the conventions which nominate representatives in congress. Under tbe Minnesota primary law no such district conventions are held, all of tbe candidates for office, except for state officers, heing selected hy the primary system, or direct vote of the people.

It is contended that the national call should have provided for a call of district conventioos in Minnesota hy the prasent methods or by temporary committees selected by the state committee or national committeeman. In the Sixth, Seventh and Ninth congressional districts there are no congressional committees, and the situation is regraded as a most embarrassing one.

Minnesota Agricultural Society in Session at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Jan. 14.—James J. L. H. Kerrick of Bloomington, Ill., opened tbe afternoon session with a talk on "Cattle Breeding," which caused considerable discussion.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

FAR EASTERN SITUATION.

Two large vessels belonging to the Russian volunteer fleet, carrying troops, passed through the Bosphorus Thursday bound for the Far East.

The Japanese government has impressed into transport service the three steamships of the Oriental Steamship company plying between San Francisco and the Far East.

Owing to apprehension of a daring dash on the part of the Japanese at Port Arthur the authorities there have taken extraordinary precautions in and about the town and along the whole line of the Manchurian railroad.

State department advices from Japan indicate an extraordinary activity in the preparation for war. These add to the pessimistic feeling already existing at Washington respecting the probability of amicable adjustment of the Russo-Japanese trouble.

A Russian force has occupied the terminus of the new branch of the Shanghaikwan-Newchwang railroad, recently completed by the Chinese. The terminus is 100 miles northwest of Newchwang and will be an important strategic base in the event of war.

German official opinion regarding the probability of war between Russia and Japan has suddenly changed. Intelligence received at the foreign office has caused the government, for the first time since the controversy began, to believe the situation is extremely tense.

The British foreign officials said, after reading the Japanese reply to the last Russian note, that it only takes the crisis a step further in a less hopeful direction. The advices received by the foreign office made them fear that Russia would not accept Japan's reiterated demands.

The Japanese minister, M. Kurino, has delivered the Japanese reply to the Russian foreign office. The reply is now under consideration. The Russian foreign office says the present stage of negotiations is an advance on previous stages in certain respects. The two governments had approached an understanding on some points, but not on others. Hopefulness reigns in many quarters where pessimism had hitherto prevailed.

Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister at Washington, called on Secretary Hay and informed him that the Japanese reply to the last Russian note had been delivered Thursday morning. The reply amounts to a denial of all the important Russian propositions and Japan's counter proposals, it is said, are of a nature that almost will certainly make them unacceptable to Russia. Therefore a most pessimistic view of the future is taken at Tokio.

Senator Hanna has again declared that he is not a candidate for the presidency. In an interview at Pittsburg he said: "I have sent out 2,000 personal letters denying that I am a candidate for the presidency and I do not want to be considered as such. It can be stated by authority that the administration does not contemplate paying one dollar out of the United States treasury to Colombia on account of the secession of Panama. Nor will it go before The Hague tribunal as a party to any proceedings growing out of that secession. It is stated that to do either of these things would be to commit the administration to an admission that it had been guilty of wronging Colombia.

A HISTORICAL DUEL.

THIRTEEN SWORDSMEN SLAIN BY ONE MAN BEFORE AN ARMY.

A Scene More Exciting Than Any Battle in the Annals of Modern History—Ten Thousand Witnesses to the Terrible Work of One Sword.

To give an idea of what a brave man can do if he knows fencing thoroughly and but keeps cool and collected in danger we will relate a historical duel. So extraordinary is this combat that it would be held a romance had it not been witnessed by a whole army. The hero is Jean Louis, one of the great masters of the beginning of last century, and the duel happened in Madrid in 1813. He was the master-at-arms of the Thirty-second regiment of French infantry. The First regiment, composed entirely of Italians, formed part of the same brigade.

Regimental esprit de corps and rivalries of nationality caused constant quarrels, when swords were often whipped out or bullets exchanged. After a small battle had occurred in the streets of Madrid, in which over 200 French and Italian soldiers had taken part, the officers of the two regiments, in a council of war assembled, decided to give such breaches of order a great blow and to re-establish discipline. They decreed that the masters-at-arms of the two regiments should take up the quarrel and fight it out.

Imagine a whole army in battle array on one of the large plains that surround Madrid. In the center a large ring is left open for the contestants. This spot is raised above the plain so that not one of the spectators of this tragic scene—gayly dressed officers, soldiers in line, Spaniards, excited as never a bull fight excited them—will miss one phase of the contest. It is before 10,000 men that the honor of an army is about to be avenged in the blood of thirty brave men.

The drum is heard. Two men, naked to the waist, step in the ring. The first is tall and strong. His black eyes roll disdainfully upon the gaping crowd. He is Giacomo Ferrari, the celebrated Italian. The second, tall, also handsome and with muscles like steel, stands modestly awaiting the word of command. His name is Jean Louis. The seconds take their places on either side of their principals. A deathlike silence ensues.

"On guard!"

The two masters cross swords. Giacomo Ferrari lunges repeatedly at Jean Louis, but in vain. His every thrust is met by a parry. He makes up his mind to bide his chance and caresses and teases his opponent's blade. Jean Louis, calm and watchful, lends himself to the play, when, quicker than lightning, the Italian jumps aside with a loud yell and makes a terrible lunge at Jean Louis, a Florentine trick, often successful. But with extraordinary rapidity Jean Louis has parried and rispósts quickly in the shoulder.

"It is nothing," cries Giacomo; "a mere scratch." And they again fall on guard. Almost directly he is hit in the breast. This time the sword of Jean Louis, who is now attacking, penetrates deeply. Giacomo's face becomes livid, his sword drops from his hand, and he falls heavily on the turf. He is dead.

Jean Louis is already in position. He wipes his reeking blade; then, with the point of his sword on the ground, he calmly awaits the next man.

The best fencer of the First regiment has just been carried away a corpse, but the day is not yet over. Fourteen adversaries are there, impatient to measure swords with the conqueror, burning to avenge the master they had deemed invincible.

Jean Louis hardly had two minutes' rest. He is ready. A new adversary stands before him. A sinister click of swords is heard, a lunge, a parry, a rispost and then a cry, a sigh, and all is over. A second body is before Jean Louis.

A third adversary advances. They want Jean Louis to rest. "I am not tired," he answers, with a smile.

The signal is given. The Italian is as tall as the one who lies there a corpse covered by a military cloak. He has closely watched Jean Louis' play and thinks he has guessed the secret of his victories. He multiplies his feints and tricks; then, all at once, bounding like a tiger on his prey, he gives his opponent a terrible thrust in the lower line. But Jean Louis' sword has parried and is now deep within his opponent's breast.

What need we to relate any more? Ten new adversaries followed him, and the ten fell before Jean Louis amid the excited yells and roars of an army.

At the request of the Thirty-second regiment's colonel, who thought the lesson sufficient, Jean Louis after much pressing consented to stop the combat, and he shook hands with the two survivors, applauded by 10,000 men.

From that day fights ceased between French and Italian soldiers.

This wonderful and gigantic combat might be held a fable were not all the facts above stated still found in the archives of the ministry of war.—Lippincott's.

Knew Three of Them.

Dearborn—Do you know the seven wonders of the world?

Wabash—Well, I know three of them.

"Only three?"

"Yes; I've only been married three times, you know."

Working Up to It.

Emma—And, Charlie, dear, would you have really shot yourself if I had refused you?

Charlie—Indeed I would. I had already sent to four houses for price lists of revolvers.

Fire and sword are but slow engines of destruction in comparison with the babbler.—Steele.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902.
Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.
S. P. BROOKINGTON.

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

German official opinion regarding the probability of war between Russia and Japan has suddenly changed. Intelligence received at the foreign office has caused the government, for the first time since the controversy began, to believe the situation is extremely tense.

The British foreign officials said, after reading the Japanese reply to the last Russian note, that it only takes the crisis a step further in a less hopeful direction. The advices received by the foreign office made them fear that Russia would not accept Japan's reiterated demands.

The Japanese minister, M. Kurino, has delivered the Japanese reply to the Russian foreign office. The reply is now under consideration. The Russian foreign office says the present stage of negotiations is an advance on previous stages in certain respects. The two governments had approached an understanding on some points, but not on others. Hopefulness reigns in many quarters where pessimism had hitherto prevailed.

Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister at Washington, called on Secretary Hay and informed him that the Japanese reply to the last Russian note had been delivered Thursday morning. The reply amounts to a denial of all the important Russian propositions and Japan's counter proposals, it is said, are of a nature that almost will certainly make them unacceptable to Russia. Therefore a most pessimistic view of the future is taken at Tokio.

Mr. Bryan predicts Democratic victory in the coming presidential election. He believes a dark horse will capture the Democratic nomination.

The Ohio legislature, by separate ballot of the house and senate, voted to return Marcus A. Hanna to the United States senate for a second term.

The Democratic national committee has selected St. Louis as the place for holding the national convention in 1904. The date fixed for the convention is Wednesday, July 6, at 11 a. m. There were two roll calls to select the city. On the first St. Louis received 23 votes, Chicago 20 and New York 6. On the second ballot St. Louis received 28 and Chicago 21.

Senator Hanna has again declared that he is not a candidate for the presidency. In an interview at Pittsburg he said: "I have sent out 2,000 personal letters denying that I am a candidate for the presidency and I do not want to be considered as such. I consider all such talk a 'closed incident.' The alleged opposition to the nomination of President Roosevelt has been overestimated and magnified greatly by Democratic papers and others with Democratic proclivities."

The constitutional convention of the new republic of Panama held its first session Friday.

Admiral Coghlan cables the navy department from Colon as follows: "Report from Cartagena states cruiser Cartagena now about to transport troops to gulf of Darien. Troops are arriving at Barranquilla quite rapidly. Four thousand men now there. Castina from Caledonia harbor reports Indians unfriendly. Chief at Sasardi now wears uniform Colombian force."

It can be stated by authority that the administration does not contemplate paying one dollar out of the United States treasury to Colombia on account of the secession of Panama. Nor will it go before The Hague tribunal as a party to any proceedings growing out of that secession. It is stated that to do either of these things would be to commit the administration to an admission that it had been guilty of wronging Colombia.

A HISTORICAL DUEL.

THIRTEEN SWORDSMEN SLAIN BY ONE MAN BEFORE AN ARMY.

A Scene More Exciting Than Any Battle In the Annals of Modern History—Ten Thousand Witnesses to the Terrible Work of One Sword.

To give an idea of what a brave man can do if he knows fencing thoroughly and but keeps cool and collected in danger we will relate a historical duel. So extraordinary is this combat that it would be held a romance had it not been witnessed by a whole army. The hero is Jean Louis, one of the great masters of the beginning of last century, and the duel happened in Madrid in 1813. He was the master-at-arms of the Thirty-second regiment of French infantry. The First regiment, composed entirely of Italians, formed part of the same brigade.

Regimental esprit de corps and rivalries of nationality caused constant quarrels, when swords were often whipped out or bullets exchanged. After a small battle had occurred in the streets of Madrid, in which over 200 French and Italian soldiers had taken part, the officers of the two regiments, in a council of war assembled, decided to give such breaches of order a great blow and to re-establish discipline. They decreed that the masters-at-arms of the two regiments should take up the quarrel and fight it out.

Imagine a whole army in battle array on one of the large plains that surround Madrid. In the center a large ring is left open for the contestants. This spot is raised above the plain so that not one of the spectators of this tragic scene—gayly dressed officers, soldiers in line, Spaniards, excited as never a bull fight excited them—will miss one phase of the contest. It is before 10,000 men that the honor of an army is about to be avenged in the blood of thirty brave men.

The drum is heard. Two men, naked to the waist, step in the ring. The first is tall and strong. His black eyes roll disdainfully upon the gaping crowd. He is Giacomo Ferrari, the celebrated Italian. The second, tall, also handsome and with muscles like steel, stands modestly awaiting the word of command. His name is Jean Louis. The seconds take their places on either side of their principals. A deathlike silence ensues.

"On guard!"

The two masters cross swords. Giacomo Ferrari lunges repeatedly at Jean Louis, but in vain. His every thrust is met by a parry. He makes up his mind to bide his chance and caresses and teases his opponent's blade. Jean Louis, calm and watchful, lends himself to the play, when, quicker than lightning, the Italian jumps aside with a loud yell and makes a terrible lunge at Jean Louis, a Florentine trick, often successful. But with extraordinary rapidity Jean Louis has parried and risposts quickly in the shoulder.

"It is nothing," cries Giacomo; "a mere scratch." And they again fall on guard. Almost directly he is hit in the breast. This time the sword of Jean Louis, who is now attacking, penetrates deeply. Giacomo's face becomes livid, his sword drops from his hand, and he falls heavily on the turf. He is dead.

Jean Louis is already in position. He wipes his reeking blade; then, with the point of his sword on the ground, he calmly awaits the next man.

The best fencer of the First regiment has just been carried away a corpse, but the day is not yet over. Fourteen adversaries are there, impatient to measure swords with the conqueror, burning to avenge the master they had deemed invincible.

Jean Louis hardly had two minutes' rest. He is ready. A new adversary stands before him. A sinister click of swords is heard, a lunge, a parry, a rispost and then a cry, a sigh, and all is over. A second body is before Jean Louis.

A third adversary advances. They want Jean Louis to rest. "I am not tired," he answers, with a smile.

The signal is given. The Italian is as tall as the one who lies there a corpse covered by a military cloak. He has closely watched Jean Louis' play and thinks he has guessed the secret of his victories. He multiplies his feints and tricks; then, all at once, bounding like a tiger on his prey, he gives his opponent a terrible thrust in the lower line. But Jean Louis' sword has parried and is now deep within his opponent's breast.

What need we to relate any more? Ten new adversaries followed him, and the ten fell before Jean Louis amid the excited yells and roars of an army.

At the request of the Thirty-second regiment's colonel, who thought the lesson sufficient, Jean Louis after much pressing consented to stop the combat, and he shook hands with the two survivors, applauded by 10,000 men.

From that day fights ceased between French and Italian soldiers.

This wonderful and gigantic combat might be held a fable were not all the facts above stated still found in the archives of the ministry of war.—Lippincott's.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902.
Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

A STUDY OF GOLD.

The Wall Street Journal has been studying the movements of gold to and from the United States with interesting results. The statistics it uses cover the twenty-four years from the resumption of specie payments in 1879 to the close of the fiscal year 1903.

In that period the aggregate exports and imports of merchandise, including silver, amounted to 42 billion dollars (42,000 millions). The excess of the exports over the imports was 5,500 millions. If foriegn countries had had no way of settling this balance except with gold it would have taken the entire stock of gold now existing in the world, and left Europe bare.

Actually the movement of gold has been comparatively small. The total, both ways, for the twenty-four years is about 2,200 millions, and the net excess of importations has been only 107 millions.

Pursuing the study of this movement of gold more in detail the interesting fact appears that the outward movement has always been heaviest when confidence in our money situation has been weak, while the inward movement has been heaviest when confidence was strong. For instance, between 1891 and 1896 inclusive our net loss of gold to other countries was 270 millions. Between 1897 and June 30, 1903, our net gain was 212 millions. Thus the recent years of prosperity and sound money have almost restored to us through importation alone all the gold we lost in the preceeding years of adversity and financial doubt, while allowing us to keep at the same time for our own use the entire gold product of our own mines.

Among other things shown by the analysis of the figures is that the movement of gold in the first half of the year is usually outward, while in the last half of the year it is inward. More than 77 per cent of all the exports were in the first half of the year, and more than 68 per cent of the imports in the last half. May is the month of heaviest exports, October the month of heaviest imports. There has not been a single month in the entire twenty-four years in which there were not both exports and imports in gold.

The Crookston Times announces that it will install a new Linotype machine and commence the publication of a morning as well as an evening daily. The assurance is given that a 4,000 word Associated Press report has been secured for the morning issue, which if carried out will give northern Minnesota people the news several hours earlier than they are now getting it. There is room for such service in this section of the state, and there isn't any reason why Crookston's morning dailies shouldn't be successful.

UNFAITHFUL.

Says last week's Fairbault Journal: Governor Van Sant has become noted for turning down his friends. He did it in this county. He did it in Steele County, where a successful fight was put up for him that left sores which have not been healed. This is also true in other sections of the state. Van Sant was under obligations to no one greater than he owed to the state auditor, but on him too he has turned his back. The follwing from the Preston Times recalls facts with which many people are familiar:

"When Van Sant's election hung in the balance in 1900, Bob Dunn came to his rescue with the strongest speech of the campaign—a speech which was printed in nearly every Republican newspaper in the state and sent broadcast in pamphlet form by the hundreds of thousands by Van's campaign committee. Again in 1902 when strenous efforts were made to pursuade Bob Dunn to become a candidate for governor he steadfastly refused and once more tendered Van Sant his hearty support. It is only 1903 now, yet the governor appears to have forgotten the man who twice befriended him and is actually planning to bring about his defeat. Such is political gratitude."

The Review (of what?) discovers that at a special meeting of the board held September 10, "$82,000 in ditch bonds were sold, and the public didn't get to hear of it through the newspapers until the 25th of November—nearly three months after." Well, well, that fellow is a genius at discovering things. The fact is that every paper in the county printed this as a matter of news at the time the bonds were sold, and the reason that the official proceedings were not published was merely because Auditor Ford held them back until the matter was completed—the last week in November, too, by the way—thereby doing away with the publication of several long-winded resolutions of no interest to the people or anyone else. The Review's criticism and abuse of the officials of Red Lake county just because they haven't recognized it as anything but an ordinary, very ordinary sheet, may help them in the end, but if the Gazette doesn't miss its guess these reviewers have bit off considerable more than they can chaw.

The county printing in Red Lake county this year, under the bid submitted to the commissioners at their recent meeting, will be done by five newspapers of the county, and each will receive between $300 and $400 for their lapor. The great Review guy, who so sincerely loves the taxpayers, wanted the board to pledge him the work at $1000, if he could secure a legal paper, giving him nearly three times as much as any one paper receives under the present plan and the county getting less than the 280 circulation required by law. The bluff that these fellows desire to save the taxpapers money, or are anything but the coarset kind of grafters, is a poor one and the people of Red Lake county can't be expected to swallow it. The commissioners have been called vile names by little boys before, but then we all remember what Pat said when the Jack-ass kicked him.

The newspapers over in Marshall county got together and only put in one bid for the county printing—to be done at legal rates and published in all the papers in the county. But gracious, don't tell that Review fellow about it, or he will be hollering "thief" and asking to do the Marshall county work for another $1000. Cheap man, that.

Gen. John B. Gordon, the famous ex-Governor of Georgia, died at Miami, Florida, last Sunday while the band at the Grand Opera house was playing "Dixie." Forty years ago many a poor fellow died to that same music remarks Editor Schaeffer of the Adrian Democrat.

What the Democratic party really wants is an asbestos curtain between itself and William J. Bryan says a bright exchange.

Unless the men look out the women of this country will supplant them in many things says the Princeton Union. In many offices throughout the country fair females practically look after the business and women are getting very numerous in the auxiliaries to the lodges, while in the churches they have long held sway and men have taken the back seats or no seat at all. It has long been a common thing for many men to do business under their wives' names and if the practice of letting the women look after the affairs of the world continues to grow it will not be long before men will become as "sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal."

'Tis indeed interesting to read accounts of how these fellows so dearly love the taxpayers, and how they "so gladly saved the public large sums of money", and in the same breath insinuate that the commissions soaked the public when they didn't do just as some people had figured they would. The commissioners of Red Lake county have prove long before now that they are working for the people's interests and certainly they do not deserve the choice epitaphs hurled at them by several publishers during the past week.

We might say, friend Review, that a "real newspaper" up in these diggings consists of something besides seven pages of plate and patent "insides" and one page of stuff copied from the other papers of your town. That might have passed muster near "Des Moines" but the general public ain't used to such service hereabouts.

Can it be possible that a mutual admiration society is to be formed between the two newspaper "saviors" of Red Lake county? To a man up a tree "it listens like it."

Cashier Dully, of the Merchants State Bank, tells The Gazette that they now have the bank money orders for sale, and asks the people to come in and see them. This form of order was endorsed at the last meeting of the State Bankers' association, and is ahead of the bank draft. It is on the plan of the postal money order, only that it comes cheaper, the purchaser getting a receipt the same as with the government order. The new plan is a convenient and safe way to remit money.

Chas. Ackerlund came over from Crookston yesterday on some business before the Probate Court, and spent the day here. Charles still holds his job as mail carrier at Crookston and reports himself as prosperous and happy. They will go to St. Louis to spend a month at the great fair, and will make a good showing for Northern Minnesota.

The passenger on the branch line was nearly two hours late yesterday owing to slight smash up at Fargo. Engineer Milligan brought one of the crippled engines out on his train, and it looked like it had certainly been in a mix-up of some kind.

The Surprise Store has a brief pointed announcement in their regular advertising space this week. They tell you to "get the habit" of going to the Surprise for your clothing wants, and a community of satisfied customers will testify that it is a desirable habit to acquire.

The branch passenger is sporting a brand new varnished car, and Conductor Withey wore an expansive smile last Saturday, the day of its initial run. The public is of the opinion that there is nothing too good for the branch passenger or the popular crew of fellows in charge of it.

The report comes from St. Paul to the effect that the Soo has let the contract for building 50 miles of its extension from Emerson south, and that work will be commenced on that end of the line early in the spring. If work is commenced on both ends at once it will not take long to complete the line.

County Attorney Grady made a flying trip to Bemidji Tuesday night on a business mission. The Gazette says "flying trip" because a man must necessarily fly to travel over two hundred miles, replevin a whole bunch of horses say hello to his many friends and get back to work all within the course of one day, and this is what Frank did. He didn't lose any time doing it either.

Sheriff Dan Linnihan and H. L. Veigel left on last Saturday's train for the southern part of the state—Dan to visit at his old home in Waseca and H. L. to spend several days with his family, who are visiting at Mankato. He expects to be away until sometime in March and will take in all of the places of interest on the North Pacific while away. L. C. Simons of Red Lake Falls expects to join him here that evening and they will make the trip as far as Seattle together. Mr. Simons will tour southern California, while Mr. Smith will spend considerable of the time with his sons, Fred and Will.

Crookston Journal: Local ice dealers are experiencing considerable difficulty this winter in getting blocks of ice which are sufficiently thick for packing. Several starts have been made on the annual ice harvest and considerable thin ice has been packed, but the large houses are awaiting the thick ice. Snow is being kept off the ice plots that they may freeze thicker. The scraping of the ice is a rather peculiar procedure and an evidence of the mild winter which the valley is experiencing. A local ice dealer stated today that the ice was thinner this winter than for several years, and that the additional cost of keeping the field clear of snow to facilitate freezing would be considerable.

Mrs. N. W. Tarrant was a Thief River visitor last Friday.

Secretary Johnson, of the Northern Minnesota Milling company, tells The Gazette that his company has shipped five carloads of flour over the Great Northern during the past week.

A number of the girl friends of Miss Margaret Taylor gathered at her home last Thursday evening and pleasently surprised her. The evening was spent in playing games and candy making.

A pleasant party of friends congregated at the Ed. Bray home on Third street Tuesday evening, and a pleasant time was enjoyed until the early hours of morning. Refreshments were served the guests.

Don't scowl and strain your eyes. If you have any difficulty in seeing naturally and clearly, or any pain or uneasiness in the eyes, let us examine them and fit them with glasses.—H. W. Anderson, optician; State Graduate.

Crookston Times: Mrs. Quesnell, of Red Lake Falls, who has been a patient at the St. Vincent hospital during the past two weeks, was operated upon this morning and is doing nicely. The operation was a very difficult one but with the many appliances and conveniences of modern surgery which the St. Vincent hospital is equipped with, was done very successfully.

Thief River News: Stock in some of the Texas oil companies has proven to be worth at least thirty cents. K. M. Hanson of Thief River Falls can easily testify to this fact. He purchased 100 shares in a company, which did not go entirely broke and paid three-tenths of a cent dividend on each share. Mr. Hanson received a check Tuesday for thirty cents, being his share of the spoils.

Anyone who has received a communication in a goverment envelope will remember that it always has printed on it the warning: "Penalty for private use $300." A Polk county farmer, who received some seeds from the agricultural department in an envelope of this kind, interpreted the warning as personal and sent the seeds back, saying he knew of no public use to which he could put them.

The regular monthly concert by the Red Lake Falls band was given at the Metropolitan opera house last Friday evening to the largest crowd that has assembled for a like event in several months. The band management had promised something out of the ordinary, and the promise was certainly fulfilled in every respect. The grand selections by the band were enthusiastically received, while the soloists were given encores to the limit. The male quintette, brass quartette and Messrs Berthon and Onstad's violin and cello duet were pleasing numbers, and the large audience felt fully satisfied with what they got Red Lake Falls people are, and have cause to be, proud of this organization.

A crowd of friends of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Crompe perpetrated a surprise on them at their home last Saturday night and the evening was pleasantly spent. Games were played and refreshments served, and the crowd was greatly pleased with the evening's entertainment.

The official directory and shippers guide of the Northern Pacific railroad has been issued and is an artistic and comprehensive piece of work. It contains very valuable articles and descriptive write-ups of the towns on the N. P. and should be a good advertisement for the road and the advertisers. The Gazette is indebted to Agent Mizen for a copy.

After the ceremony the party were driven to the home of Clement P. Mercier where a wedding spread was set before them. The afternoon was spent in receving the congratulations of their many friends. Crookston Times: Doctors of the city are looking forward to the quarterly meeting of the Red River Valley Medical society which will be held next Tuesday, Jan. 26th, with anticipations of a very successful meeting. The doctors derive considerable enjoyment through the quarterly exchange of views and the good fellowship which usualy develops from the bringing together of fellow physicians. The papers are prepared with considerable thought, prove very interesting in some cases develop mild discussions on the subject of which they treat.

THE PRICE OF TWINE.

Board of Control Fixes It a Half Cent Lower Than Last Year.

The state board of control, after a conference with Warden Wolfer of the state prison, have announced the prices at which binding twine will be sold to Minnesota farmers this year. They are as follows:

Sisal, 500 feet to the pound, 8¼ cents.

Standard, 500 feet to the pound, 8¼ cents.

Standard manilla, 550 feet to the pound, 9 cents.

Mixed manilla, 600 feet to the pound, 10 cents.

Pure manilla, 650 feet to the pound, 11 cents.

These prices are half a cent lower on each grade than the prices of 1903. As the season's output will be about 9,000,000 pounds, the saving to farmers will be $45,000 more than last year. The board has already purchased or contracted for practically all of the raw material, and is able to figure out the price very closely. The sisal is bought direct from Yucatan, and large quantities of manilla are imported for the prison direct from the Philippines.

Fred Williams Dies.

Fred Williams was found dead in his room at Minneapolis last Friday, death being a result of alcoholism; it was claimed.

Mr. Williams was well known here, having worked for Berthon & Armstrong several months when they first opened up the Suprise Store. He was a bright fellow and an exceptionally good clothing salesman, but his appetite for drink got the best of him and prevented his holding a situation for any length of time.

The Minneapolis papers stated that his parents were quite well off, residing somewhere in the east, and that Mr. Williams received a monthly allowance of $55, nearly all of which he spent for drink.

It is indeed sad that so bright a mind should be addicted in that manner, but it is merely another of the queer things of this world of ours.

A Piano at a Nominal Price.

Chicago's largest music house, Lyon & Healy, announces a clearing sale of Pianos. This is owing to the fact that their ware-rooms are being entirely remodeled. Several hundred splendid instruments are offered without reserve until all are sold. In this stock are a number of Steinway and Knabe pianos, and new and second-hand pianos including instruments of the following well-known makes: Miller, Mason & Hamlin, Hazelton, McPhail, Sterling, Huntington, Vose, Fischer Weber, Chickering, etc. In square pianos there are fine-toned instruments at $20, $40, $60 and upwards In upright Pianos neat instruments at $100, $120, $140, $150, $165, $190, $200, and upwards. In Baby Grands some nice specimens at $200 and upwards. Nearly all these pianos were intended to sell for much more than these clear-sale prices. Lyon & Healy will send a list and full particulars upon application. Any piano not proving entirely satisfactory may be returned at their expense. Address Lyon & Healy, 1, Adams St, Chicago.

Distance is no obstacle in taking advantage of this remarkable chance to obtain a piano, for in proportion to the saving to be made the freight charges are insignificant. If you do not already know Lyon & Healy by reputation, any banker will assure you of their entire responsibility and record of forty years for honorable dealing. Write at your early convenience so as to avoid disappointment.

* * *

Alice Erickson, Carrie Patnode, Clara Allison, Athenian Reporters.

Remember Friday is the day for the debate.

Final examination in English history this week.

The Higher Algebra class now take about thirteen pages a day as a lesson.

The high wind that Spartan Hicks predicted came Monday morning and continued all day.

Prof. Whitley has not been at school very much during the last few days. Expect it's on account of a new interest at home.

The Virgil class is learning a new song, and its beautiful strains can be heard every afternoon from 1:30 until 2:20. Listen.

Dollie Matthies is in Crookston having her eyes treated. There seems to be a vacancy in the High School since Doll left.

One of the High School girls was having her fortune told by palmistry, and when asked about certain lines on the third finger she innocently asked, "which is my third finger?"

The clock presented by the class of '01 refused to work Monday. When the class of '04 gives the High School a remembrance it will be something that will bear a guarantee to last at least three years.

Quaker Doctors, or their shadows, appeared in the High School room Monday noon and a fine entertainment was the result. But all was suddenly stilled. It was a shame to spoil that war dance.

Square dances in the basement of the High School building are the latest among the boys. They report pleasant times, only the dust is terrible. We are afraid they are not very light on their feet if they raise such a dust.

One of the High School boys was passing a raditor Monday when the steam was up at the highest. Just as he passed the burr on the steam valve came off and the escape of steam made such a noise that the poor fellow was scared out of a year's growth.

The following sentence appeared before one of the English classes: "Sweet as the smiles when fond lovers meet, and soft as their parting tear." Now they are wondering what it means. The dictionaries have been used so much that the pages are nearly worn out.

A High School girl, and a Senior, too, was passing down the street not long ago when she came to a bill board, on which was a life size picture of a man. Instantly her arms were extended to embrace him. Upon closer examination her mistake was revealed, and the most profound promises were exacted from her companions never to tell.

Entertaining Newspapera Features.

Probably no other newspaper in the United States can show so brilliant an array of special features as is found in the columns of The Chicago Record-Herald.

The daily and Sunday news and special features of The Chicago Record-Herald include the letters of William E. Curtis and Walter Wellman. The Record-Herald's special New York dispatches, its unparaleled foreign news service, embracing its own special cables with those of the New York Herald, the New York World and the Associated Press; its pages devoted to the markets and financial and commercial intelligence—exhaustive to the most satisfactory degree—its popular sporting page, its extended editorial department, Kiser's humorous "Alternating Currents," "Stories of the Day," the departments of railroad and insurance news, music and drama, society and clubs, the columns of book reviews, the continued story, the "Woman Beautiful" department, the daily fashion articles, "Meals for the Day," news of the great lakes, etc.,—all uniting to furnish to the people of Chicago and the Northwest a news paper which commends itself to discrimminating readers as only a newspaper can which combines the metropolitan newspapers of modern times.

Now Is Your Chance.

I have a few cutters and two-seated sleighs which I will sell at cost in order to close them out.—Wm. Findeisen.

Card Of Thanks.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our kind friends for their assistance during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father.

Mrs. John Sutter and family.

If you are thinking of going to school this winter, you should write to J. C. Sathre for a new catalogue of the Crookston College. Tuition is $6 per month, and good board and room in private family for $3 per week. Have several places on hand where girls can do a little work for board and room.

DUELING IN AMERICA.

The First Fatal Meeting Was Upon Historic Boston Common.

The first fatal duel fought in what is now the United States was upon Boston Common, between Benjamin Woodbridge and Henry Phillips, on the evening of July 3, 1728. These young men had quarreled over cards at the Royal Exchange tavern in King street, now State street, and under the influence of drink had agreed to settle their differences with swords in the public grounds above named. They met at a little after 8 o'clock in the evening, and Woodbridge was mortally wounded and was found dead the following morning.

Both were gentlemen of good social position. Phillips was a brother of Gillam Phillips, who married Marie, the sister of Peter Faneuil, the builder of Boston's famous hall. Woodbridge had not completed his twentieth year. He was a young merchant who had recently been admitted to business as a partner with Jonathan Sewall, one of the most active merchants of the place. Henry Phillips, a young graduate of the college of Cambridge, was about four years older than Woodbridge, having at the time of this melancholy affair completed his twenty-third year. Woodbridge was the son of a gentleman of some distinction in Barbados, one of the magistrates there, who had formerly been settled in the ministry as pastor in Groton, Conn.

The place of meeting was on the rising grounds of the Common, not far from the great elm, near where in the olden time a powder house stood. Small swords were used. No one but themselves participated. Woodbridge fell mortally wounded and died on the spot before the next morning. Phillips was slightly wounded and at midnight, by the aid of his brother Gillam and Peter Faneuil, of famous memory, made his escape to the Sheerness, a British man-of-war then lying in the harbor, and before the sun of the next morning had fully discovered to interested friends the miserable result of the unfortunate meeting he was on his way to France, where he died in less than a year of grief and a broken heart.—United Service Review.

Rebuking an Emperor.

Once, so the story goes, Emperor Nicholas of Russia asked Liszt to play in his presence. The musician complied, but during the performance the czar started a conversation with an aid-de-camp. Liszt stopped playing at once. The czar asked what was the matter. "When the emperor speaks," said Liszt, "every one must be silent." The czar smilingly took the hint, and the playing proceeded.

TAMING A HORSE.

Three Articles That Will Subdue the Most Savage Animal.

There were trouble and excitement one day on a ranch in Colorado. A high spirited, half broken stallion was prancing about the yard attached to the rancher's house. He had just thrown a cowboy who boasted there was nothing on four legs he could not ride, and he was rearing and bucking so that not even the pluckiest man on the ranch dared to approach.

While the men were standing around wondering what to do the rancher's sixteen-year-old daughter came out of the house and calmly walked up to the excited animal.

When he saw her he ceased rearing, whinnied and stood still. She just put her hand on his mane, stroked his nose and then vaulted lightly on his back and rode around the yard, to the amazement of the men.

"How do you manage it?" one of them asked her. "Before you tackled him he was as savage as a tiger."

"It is simple enough," the girl replied. "Any woman can handle a horse better than a man can. See this"—showing the man a small round object she had in her hand—"this is horse castor. Horses love the smell of it and will go up to any one who has it.

"Any horse has sense enough to know the people who love it. That stallion began to quiet down as soon as he saw me. When I got near him he smelled the musty horse castor in my clothes, for I always carry a little piece in my pocket.

"That pleased him so much that I was able to stroke his head. While doing so I rubbed his nose with a few drops of oil of cumin, which I had poured into the palm of my hand. Horses positively love that scent. Then, did you notice that I put my hand into his mouth? The object of that was to pour a few drops of oil of rhodium on to his tongue from a tiny vial which I always carry.

"With these three articles any horse can be tamed. Where do you get them? Well, the cumin and rhodium can be bought at any drug store; the horse castor must be cut from a horse's forefoot. It is a warty growth there."

It is a fact that horses are very fond of these scents. They are often used by women in the tropics and west in the training and breaking of horses.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Doing Europe.

Facilities for traveling nowadays are so accelerated that it is quite possible for the tourist to pass through five European countries in fourteen hours, barring accidents—namely, England, France, Belgium, Germany and Holland. Take the express from Charing Cross to Dover and cross over to Calais—two countries. Then with the intercontinental express you proceed to Brussels—three countries. From the Belgian capital by train to Aix-la-Chapelle, which is German territory, making the fourth country, and after allowing time for a meal a drive to Vaals, in Holland, makes the fifth country—and all in fourteen hours.

An Odd Collection.

An entertainer who visited the Fiji islands and gave his performance before the natives had the following receipts for one night: Four sucking pigs, 800 cocoanuts, 1,000 of a common class of moonstone collected on the beach, 40 pearls, 23 model canoes, 200 yards of native cloth, 42 Fiji costumes, 3 whale's teeth, hundreds of sharks' teeth, one or two cart loads of beautiful coral, war implements, such as spears, knobsticks and knives, native mats and pillows and 7 grog bowls.

A Natural Misapprehension.

"You say the audience laughed when you recited 'Marco Bozzaris' in Chicago?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes. "You see, when I came to the lines beginning 'Strike!' the people thought it was a local allusion."—Washington Star.

When a man will kill himself because a woman refuses to marry him it is conclusive evidence that the woman was right.—Baltimore Herald.

Hangnails.

Fingers that would otherwise be pretty are often disfigured by hangnails. Nothing can well be uglier than these little red tags of flesh at the corners of one's nails. Sometimes they are caused by pushing the skin down when it is dry or using a sharp instrument, like the edge of a pair of scissors. When the skin has grown upon the nail soak the finger tips in warm water for five minutes, then push it down gently with the towel. If one makes use of this gentle process two or three times a day or remembers to dry the ends of the fingers by rubbing down instead of up the nails ought to keep a good shape without the danger of making hang nails.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

EVENTS OF THE WEEK THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Angered at her reproaches for his drunkenness Louis Burke of Minneapolis shot and seriously wounded his wife.

Joseph H. Martin, a former president of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce and one of its present board of directors, is dead, aged sixty years.

A rear-end collision on the Northern Pacific occurred at Elk River between the local freight and passenger train No. 5. The caboose was almost torn to pieces, but no one was hurt.

The handsome clubhouse of the Minnetonka club, located on an island in St. Louis bay, Lake Minnetonka, burned to the ground early Thursday evening, causing a loss of $25,000.

Mrs. J. C. Pope, wife of a prominent attorney of Mora, committed suicide by drowning. Long suffering from nervousness and insomnia led the unfortunate woman to take her life.

W. W. P. McConnell, state dairy and food commissioner, has been reappointed by Governor Van Sant as a member of the state live stock sanitary board for the full term of five years.

During the past three months 2,356 cattle have been tested for tuberculosis and 176 killed, according to the report of Dr. S. M. H. Ward, secretary of the state live stock and sanitary board.

Nathaniel W. King of Minneapolis, sentenced to the state penitentiary for three years in connection with the municipal scandals in that city, has been denied a pardon by the state board of pardons.

The Crookston city council has accepted the terms of Carnegie's library offer and advertised for bids for a site. The building will be erected next year and will cost $12,500. The city furnishes $1,250 per year for its support.

The Interstate elevator at Evansville, filled with wheat, was totally destroyed by fire. The Minneapolis and Northern elevator was also set on fire but was saved. Waste saturated with kerosene gave abundent evidence that both fires were set.

Freight rates established by the railroad and warehouse commission for the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern roads, applicable to Crookston, Fergus Falls, St. Cloud and Moorhead, have been upheld by Judge Kelly of the Ramsey county district court.

William Sutton, serving a life sentence at the Stillwater penitentiary for self-confessed complicity in the murder of Henry H. Krier at Owatonna, is in a desperate condition physically and mentally and it is believed that he cannot live but a short time.

C. N. Cosgrove of Le Sueur has been elected president of the Minnesota State Agricultural society for the third time. B. F. Nelson of Minneapolis, formerly first vice president, was elected second vice president, and Chester R. Smith of St. Paul was made first vice president.

A. Delacy Wood, who bears the distinction of having founded more newspapers than any man in the country and who has made Minnesota his home for more than a third of a century, has completed arrangements for starting the Progress at Scanlon. According to Mr. Wood this will make his thirty-ninth paper.

Jene Cein, a colored trapper living six miles north of the village of Little Forks, near Bemidji, was killed by wolves last week. His body was completely destroyed by the hungry animals. His jawbone, shoes and part of his clothing were found near the spot. Cein was well known in the northern section of the state.

Three switchmen employed by the Northern Pacific road at Minneapolis have been arrested by detectives upon warrants charging them with grand larceny from freight cars. For the past five years the Northern Pacific cars have been robbed systematically and the police believe they have broken up the gang by the arrest of the three men.

Bankers, land men, real estate dealers and merchants of Crookston have perfected a charter and bylaws for an organization to be known as the Crookston Immigration and Advertisement Bureau. The objects of the bureau are to advertise the valley and Crookston and to encourage settlement by procuring cheap railway rates for homeseekers.

The dispute between the Minneapolis building contractors and the building laborers, which has been pending since last summer, has been settled. The arbitrators refused the contention of the laborers for a nine-hour day at 5 cents an hour and said in unmistakable terms that there should be no discrimination in the employment of union and nonunion men.

The running of electric trolley cars throughout the length and breadth of the Red River valley may be one of the progressive movements of next year if plans originated by J. P. Booker and other capitalists of Crookston work well. The idea is to connect Crookston, Grand Forks and Fargo and run a line out through the rich agricultural country east of Crookston to Maple Lake, the popular summer resort. Eastern capitalists have agreed to put $100,000 into the enterprise if local capital can raise a like amount.

Warden Wolfer and the members of the state board of control met last week and fixed the following prices for the various grades of twine for the ensuing year: Sisal, 500 feet to the pound, 8¼ cents; standard, same weight, 8¾ cents; standard manila, 550 feet, 9 cents; next manila, 600 feet, 10 cents; pure manila, 650 feet, 11 cents. The output for this year will be 9,000,000 pounds, 2,000,000 pounds more than last year. It is estimated that the 9,000,000 pounds of twine turned out by the prison factory will save the farmers of Minnesota $315,000 on the regular market price of other twine.

HOW HYOMEI HELPS THE BREATH.

Kills the Germs of Grip, Catarrh and Colds, "Costs Nothing If It Fails," Say A. L. Reichert.

Now that Hyomei can be obtained in nearly every town and city in the country, it is possible to buy from druggists a health giving climate, to be carried in the purse or pocket. By breathing it a few minutes four times a day you can soon cure grip, coughs, colds and even the worst and most chronic cases of catarrh.

A. L. Reichert has seen so many remarkable cures made by the Hyomei treatment, that he sells it with the positive agreement to return the money if it fails to cure.

A complete outfit costs but $1, and consists of the pocket inhaler, medicine dropper and sufficient Hyomei to last several weeks.

It effects a cure in the worst catarrhal troubles and if breathed at the commencement of a cold or the grip, will check it quickly and prevent sickness. Extra bottles can be obtained for 50c.

When breathed through the inhaler, the germ-killing and health-giving Hyomei goes to the most remote cells of the throat and lungs, killing all the catarrhal germs, soothing the irritated mucous membrane and vitalizing the blood with ozone.

At this season of the year, every one should have a Hyomei outfit to prevent cure catarrhal troubles, and ward off attacks of grip, pneumonia and similar germ deseases.

A TIRELESS WORKER.

The Marvelous Energy That Was a Part of Macaulay.

No life was ever lived at higher pressure than that of Macaulay. He was not only "like a book in breeches," as Sydney Smith said of him; he was also like an intellectual steam engine. His thirst for knowledge was only equaled by his amazing capacity for retaining knowledge and by his passionate interest in all the aspects of life. "I wish I knew as much of anything as Macaulay knows of everything," said Melbourne, and, though the epigram may have been intended as a gibe, it approximated to the truth. To the average dullard of the world it must have seemed that this tempestuous man was literally omniscient. He plunged into Italian like a boy rejoicing in a new toy; he took up Spanish with an appetite growing by what it fed on, and then he returned to Greek with a joy which he found indescribable. He amused himself in going to India by learning German and mitigated the distress of a voyage across to Ireland by committing "Paradise Lost" to memory, claiming, doubtless with truth, that if by any inconceivable mischance the great epic were to be utterly destroyed he could from the tablets of his memory give it back to the world.—London News.

A Highland Dinner.

"The highland dinner is a very smart affair, and one that is never seen south of the Tweed," says the London Queen. "The laird wears his full dress kilt every night, and every one with any claim to a clan does the same, so that often there are more kilted men around the table than black coats.

"The full kilt dress is splendid, and a man to the manner born looks far better in it than in any other clothes. It gives width, height and dignity to the wearer, with its skeyd, sporran and brooches. Not only does the laird wear his highland dress, but toward the end of dinner his piper, who has played in the hall outside during the meal, comes into the room and marches around the table. The pipes are a little deafening, but the player looks so fine that one is glad to see him. Most of the pipers in the more noble families have inherited the position from their ancestors and are rightly proud of the post. After dinner, if there is a big house party, there is often a dance. Then the piper is at his best, as he plays his pipes for the lightsome reels to be danced, beating time with his foot the while."

The Value of Politeness.

If those who are doubtful as to the correct course to pursue in any given situation will remember that even the wrong thing is overlooked if one is but absolutely polite in the doing of it, their relief might be great.

A gentleness of demeanor and a courteous response or question can never be out of place. A man may wear a business suit of clothes to an evening wedding less noticeably than a truculent air of insolence. If he be perfectly well bred as far as behavior goes, it matters not so much what his outward garb, although by an unwritten law of social observance certain clothes are the correct thing for certain occasions.

Politeness is never wrong. Its practice goes nearly all the way toward the goal of the right thing in the right place. We hear of polite insolence, but insolence is never polite, and it is never under any circumstances polite to be insolent.

Clock Plant.

The clock plant is a native of Borneo, and in that country even it is said to be rare. The plant derives its name from its peculiar habits, which are known to but few who have not studied it from a scientific standpoint. The plant has leaves of two sizes, one of which acts in the capacity of a minute hand, which keeps moving until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the other keeps going until morning. The larger leaves act as the hour hands. Starting in a position when all the leaves lie close to the stem, with the points hanging down, they rise gradually until they turn toward the top, and then they drop to their former position. It takes the smaller leaves about one minute to go through this performance and the longer leaves just about an hour.—Melbourne Times.

A Bornean Weapon.

The Bornean mandau, or "head taker," is a modification of the Burmese dah. It is a heavy, thick bladed cutlass, from twenty to thirty inches long, and the edge is ground from the right side only, the left side being forged slightly concave. The blade is also slightly curved to the right, so that the cutting section of the weapon is like that of an enormous gouge. Only two strokes can be dealt with the mandau—from right to left downward and left to right upward.—Chambers' Journal.

Indication of Interest.

"Teacher is interested in you, pa."

"How so?"

"Why, today, after she told me seven times to sit down and behave myself, she said she wondered what sort of a father I had."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Friend.

A friend whom you have been gaining during your whole life you ought not to be displeased with in a moment. A stone is many years becoming a ruby. Take care that you do not destroy it in an instant against another stone.

Happily Married.

"When may a woman be said to be happily married?"

"Not until she has had the pleasure of refusing several men."—Detroit Free Press.

In every family there is a genius who can't prove his genius. Their kind doesn't count.—Atchison Globe.

RADIUM!!

RADIOS! RADIOS! RADIOS!

Stupendous offer made by a well-known Phila. firm.

RADIOS! RADIOS! RADIOS!

Thousands of persons in all sections of the country have been healed by this wonderful discovery.

DEAR FRIENDS:,

Don't read this advertisment if you expect to get something for nothing, because you won't. We have a good article and we want money for it. Be sensible.

If you had something that was worth a dollar would you give it free? When you read an advertisment where you get something for nothing, that something is either no good or else they are up to some "flim flam" game.

We are not running a patent medicine business, so rest easy on that subject.

We do not know the word failure—never have and never will. The educated and higher classes are the ones we want to reach. We reach men and women in all walks of life. Men and women, who today are before the public as national characters have had our confidence and the benefit of our experience. It is a 20th century product, one that will be more appreciated the more it is tried.

"Fresh from the bath and as good as she looks." This old saying describes our clients to a T. We have a VITILIZER—not a patent medicine. It tones the system, centralizes weaknesses of all descriptions—makes an even temperature all over the body and in fact it makes a new man and woman. Radios will within a few years be a part of every hospital and surgical institution of our land. No germ can stand the force of contact with this new discovery. Rheumatism and debility flee before it. The mighty force of the turbulent waters of Niagara are in comparasion with this new product as an old fashioned CANDLE is to RADIUM.

One person writes, "Why did not some one discover it before?"

Another says, "So simple, it is hardly creditable."

From the far west comes the unsolicited response, "A God-send to humanity."

Wallcott Christie, of New York, the well-known author, says, "My success in a great measure is due to "Radios."

Weakness of certain organs is responsible for all diseases. We build up your system so that a disease is an impossibility. If your digestive organs are out of order, if your blood is impure, if you can't sleep, eat or attend to business, I will cure you and guarantee to do so. I will give you a written guarantee. Could you ask anything more.

"RADIOS."

Delight your friends, astonish relatives, and make wonderful experiments with this new metal—RADIUS SULPHIDE of Zinc activity 500,000, mgr. 0,800,500. We give you this as a present when you order "RADIOS." This alone is worth several dollars of any man or woman's money. Acts the same as X-rays. Simply wonderful. REMEMBER THIS IS A PRESENT.

DRUSILLA'S GARDEN

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

The garden was really only a box on the fire escape, but there were pansies in it in the spring, and later a tiny rosebush bloomed. Then geraniums held full sway until winter, when Drusilla took the box into the house and raised a few pale violets.

Every morning Drusilla picked off the withered blossoms, and in the evening she watered her plants, for Drusilla was busy all day, polishing and filing the nails of the patrons of the manicure establishment in which she worked.

When a typewriter was first placed at the window of the big office opposite the fifth floor of the tenement in which Drusilla lived and a dark young man seated himself in front of it the young girl watched the installation over the heads of her purple pansies.

But when the young man looked across and smiled Drusilla stepped over her threshold and shut the door with a slam.

"Impertinence!" she ejaculated in the dimness of her room, but her lips smiled in answer to the look that the young man had given her.

But the blossoms cried out for water, and presently Drusilla's fair head, adorned with a perky black velvet bow, bent over the pansies. The hands of the young man remained suspended over the keys. Then he rose and walked to the window, but Drusilla picked off some dried leaves and brought out an infinitesimal watering pot. She made a cool picture in her white shirt waist. A little whiff of damp earth blew across, cooling the heated atmosphere.

The evening hour grew to be an important one to Drusilla, for she arrived home at 6, and the dark young man did not leave until 7. She sat up late nights to finish a certain blue lawn that had a train that trailed over the iron steps of the fire escape, to the further undoing of the infatuated young man over the way. She hummed little tunes that caused the complete cessation of the "clickety-click-click" of the machine opposite.

But still she kept her eyes to herself, for Drusilla had a full sense of her dignity as a workingwoman. There were certain conventions that could not be dispensed with in her circle, and one of these was the formal introduction.

"He's a dear," she confided to Mazie Dunn as the two girls arranged their little trays and got out their shining instruments and the pink powder and creams. "But I'm not going to let him think I'm easy."

With which rather inelegant summing up of the case Drusilla showed that she was a true conqueror of men.

So for many weeks Juliet on her balcony remained cold, while Romeo at the typewriter sighed in vain. He threw small balls of paper in among the pansies, and Drusilla brushed them calmly into a neat little dustpan, but when the dark young man had gone she picked them out carefully and read the fervid messages:

"You are my pansy blossom." "There's only one girl in the world for me."

Only once, however, did she condescend to an exchange of civilities.

On a certain damp morning the young man coughed. That night he coughed again. Drusilla was worried. Finally she retired into the obscure recesses of her room. When she reappeared she had a bottle in her hand. She set it on the fire escape shelf. In huge letters on the label was the admonition:

"For Coughs Take Spear's Specific."

Then before the young man could nod enthusiastic response she whisked back into her room, leaving him alone with her suggested remedy.

The next morning a similar bottle adorned the young man's desk, and he took a dose conspicuously, standing close to the window while he measured it into a spoon.

But the cough continued, and the next day Drusilla wrote on a slip of paper:

"Shut your window."

The young man clicked off something rapidly on his machine and planted his reply carefully on the ledge:

"I would rather die."

"Well, he is devoted," said Mazie Dunn. "If he won't shut a window between you. But maybe if you talked to him you might get him to be careful of himself."

"I guess I am not responsible if he is a fool," was Drusilla's sharp comment as she soaked her finger tips in warm water preparatory to giving them a treatment.

But that day the sun came out, the dry, soft air of the spring was like balsam, and the cough stopped. So stopped also the exchange of courtesies, and the young man sighed for illness or worse if it would only bring a look of warmth to his lady's eyes.

And worse came.

It happened one day at half past 6. Drusilla's shade was down, but the dark young man knew that she was in her room, for once her pink tipped fingers had adjusted the curtain and a savory odor told of her supper cooking.

"Clickety-click-click," went the typewriter, and then suddenly "Clang-clang," deadened by its distance to the fifth floor, came the ring of the fire engine bells.

The dark young man leaned out. Far below him he saw great crowds gathering. The smoke floated up from the puffing engines. Then all at once he caught his breath sharply. The windows of the third floor of the tenement were lighted with a golden glow, growing redder as he looked.

The smoke poured out and joined the smoke of the engines, while the black masses drifted up the fire escape and over the blooming little garden.

The young man shouted hoarsely.

"You," he began. What should he call her? He had never heard her name. "Young lady, little girl!" he shrieked. But there was utter silence across the way.

Then he began to cough. "Help!" he gurgled. "Help!" This brought Drusilla, in a pink wrapper, with a little frying pan in her hand. She opened the door and looked out anxiously.

"What is it?" she demanded, coming to the railing.

"Look!" shouted the young man.

Already the flames were working up. Firemen were crawling up ladders like flies, and shrieks came from the people within.

"Run down; run down," ordered the young man. "It's the only way to save your life. Down the fire escape. Go at once," he continued peremptorily as Drusilla wavered.

So down she fluttered, frying pan and all, looking like a pink blossom as she grew smaller in the distance.

Then the young man, watching her, saw her turn and come back. As she reached the floor where the flames were raging she swerved aside and ran desperately up the steps.

"My garden, my garden!" she gasped as she saw the terror in his face. "I couldn't leave it to burn."

But the young man did not stop to hear the end. Like a madman he ran to the elevator. Then he sped to the street and began the climb toward Drusilla. Far above him she was staggering with her heavy burden, half blinded by the smoke.

At the fatal third floor she stopped. Across the iron fire escape swept waves of flame. Two firemen just below, unconscious of the girl above them, were trying to turn a stream of water on a window. The noise was deafening. The dark young man shouted frantically, and at last his voice reached them.

"Turn it this way; turn it this way!" But they saw the motion of his hand and the pink gowned girl above them and comprehended. As the water played for a moment over the blistering iron the dark young man plunged through and dragged Drusilla to safety.

They were all drenched—Drusilla and her rescuer and the little garden. When they reached the street the dark young man led Drusilla to a secluded niche in the doorway of the big office building. All about them raged the excitement of a terrible catastrophe, and Drusilla, safe in the little haven, quietly proceeded to faint away. The dark young man caught her in his arms and mopped her face with his wet handkerchief. Then she opened her eyes and saw the informality of his attitude and blushed.

"We haven't been introduced," she reproached faintly, but she did not draw away from him.

"As if that mattered," said the blissful dark young man.

Elastic Marble.

In one account of Rome the author mentions five or six slabs of elastic marble as being in the possession of the Prince Borghese. Being set on end they bend backward and forward. When laid horizontally and raised at end they form a curve. If placed on a table and a piece of wood or any other substance is laid under them they fall into a kind of curve, each end touching the table. The Abbe Fortis was told that they were dug up near the town of Mondragon, in the kingdom of Naples. The grain is like that of fine Carrara marble or perhaps of the finest Greek. They seem to have suffered some attack of fire. A slab of marble similar in every respect to those described and highly polished has been exhibited for years at the British museum. M. Fleuriau de Belvae succeeded in making common granular limestone, a granular quartz, completely flexible by exposing it to a certain degree of heat. In Lincoln cathedral, England, there is an arch built of white marble which is quite elastic, yielding to a heavy tread and returning or rebounding to its original position on true elastic principles.

Two Convincing Reasons.

Lord Peterborough, who lived in the reign of Queen Anne, was very frolicsome, and one day, seeing from his carriage a dancing master with pearl colored stockings lightly stepping over the broad stones and picking his way in extremely dirty weather, he alighted and ran after him with drawn sword in order to drive him into the mud, but into which he of course followed himself.

This nobleman was once taken for the Duke of Marlborough and was mobbed in consequence. The duke was then in disgrace with the people, and Lord Peterborough was about to be roughly handled. Turning to them, he said:

"Gentlemen, I can convince you by two reasons that I am not the Duke of Marlborough. In the first place, I have only 5 guineas in my pocket, and in the second they are heartily at your service."

Preferred Arrest.

A thief broke into a large mansion early in the morning and found himself in the music room. Hearing footsteps approaching, he hid behind a screen.

From 7 to 8 o'clock the eldest daughter had a lesson on the piano.

From 8 to 9 o'clock the second daughter took a singing lesson.

From 9 to 10 o'clock the eldest son had a violin lesson.

From 10 to 11 o'clock the other son took a lesson on the flute.

At 11 o'clock all the brothers and sisters assembled and studied an ear splitting piece for piano, violin, flute and voice.

The thief staggered out from behind the screen at half past 11 and, falling at their feet, cried, "For mercy's sake have me arrested, but stop!"

FRANK E. HUNT, General Hardware....... Established in 1878.....

If one-tenth as much attention were devoted to the fools among the middle and working classes as is devoted to the fool sons of the rich, we should be in danger of believing with Carlyle that the people are "mostly fools." It is true that the culture of the suddenly rich is cruder and narrower than the culture of those who have had generations of wealth and leisure, but culture is relative. The culture of the most cultured classes in the old world is the result of large wealth possessed for generations. Culture is a matter of growth, but it never grows in poverty. The cheapness of the culture of the very rich in this country as compared with that of the aristocracy of old countries is simply the difference between youth and age, a difference of experience. There is a comparative cheapness in the culture, bearing and manners of the people of the west as compared with those of the east, and for the same reason. The aristocracy of the south and of New England have a refinement quite unlike that of the newly made rich in New York and Chicago and the west. They have been longer in the making.—Gunton's Magazine.

Shaving the Bridegroom.

The shaving of the bridegroom on his wedding day is a Bulgarian custom which, handed down from pre-Christian days, is still observed with due formality, especially in country districts. While the barber is at his task a dancing crowd of young folks surrounds him and the bridegroom. As the latter's hair is cut the snippings are carefully collected by some of the girls for preservation in one of the bride's chests. The barber, when his work is done, receives a small white linen cloth as a present and also a trifling sum of money from each person there. Then the bridegroom kisses the hands of the girls, washes his face and dons his wedding dress, which must first be carefully weighed three times by one of the boys.

Highland Makeshifts.

A few years ago accommodations in the highlands of Scotland were very primitive. It is related that the young Duchess of Gordon, on inquiring how the late duchess managed to entertain so much company at Kinrara, where there seemed no room, was told by the butler that for weeks at a time he had slept on the top of the kitchen dresser. A niece and two other young ladies were known to have slept in the duchess' bedroom, which probably was not large, for they were sent out to wash in the neighboring brook. Miss Macdonell of Glengarry, who told this, said also that there was a waterfall near Ochtertyre which the late Sir William Murray and his brothers used as their shower bath.

Creases In Drawings.

Creases in drawings, engravings, etc., may be leveled out by following these instructions: Fasten the engraving or drawing by drawing pins on a board, face downward, on a sheet of paper; on the back place another sheet of paper which retains a very slight quantity of moisture. Over this place flannel or blotting paper, and, taking a hot iron, pass it carefully over the part where the creases have been made until they disappear and then submit the drawings or engravings to pressure between printer's glazed boards.

Papa Did Too.

"This is my son Frederick, Mr. Fosdick," said Mr. Glanders proudly, introducing his five-year-old boy to his caller.

"Well, Frederick," said the caller, "do you obey your mamma?"

"Yes, sir," replied Frederick promptly, "and so does papa."

Out of Harm's Way.

He—Why does this theater have its orchestra concealed?

She—Why? Just wait until you hear it play.

Uncertain.

He—Was that you I kissed in the conservatory last night?

"About what time was it?"—Life.

He who wishes to secure the good of others has already secured his own.—Confucius.

WILL OPEN RED LAKE INDIAN RESERVATION

The Bill Authorizing the Opening of the Eleven Townships in Red Lake County Passes Both Houses of Congress.—Land Will Likely Be Sold During the Coming Summer.

The long delayed opening of the Red Lake Indian reservation seems at last to have been brought to a point where within the next twelve months these eleven townships will be thrown open for settlement.

The bill passed by the House and Senate authorizes the sale, subject to the homestead laws of the United States, of the eleven townships in tracks of 160 acres, at public auction to the highest bidder. It shall be sold for not less than $4 per acre one-fifth of the price to be paid down and the balance in five Equal annual installments, the land to be forfeited with payments made in case the conditions are not fulfilled.

The reservation land is generally fair, and will without doubt bring a good price.

Red Lake county will enjoy a prosperous season the coming year, and will make a long jump towards the point aimed for—that of the leading county in the state.

TERMS OF THE BILL.

Does Not Have To Be Ratified By The Indians.

The Red Lake bill as it finally passed both houses of congress Saturday is not the same bill which Senator Clapp introduced in the early days of the present session. That bill was an exact copy of a bill which passed both houses last session, and which the Indians refused to ratify, on the suggestion of Major Scott. It provided for the sale of land in twelve townships in Red Lake county, subject to the homestead laws, without commutation rights for not less than $4 per acre, the Indians to ratify the legislation.

As soon as the bill passed the senate this session, Representative Steenerson began to bestir himself. He drafted a substitute measure, predicated on the Lone Wolf decision of the supreme court which says that the consent of Indians to the sale of their lands need not be secured, in certain cases. His substitute provided for the amendment of the agreement of 1902, whereby the Indians disposed of their lands to the government for $1,000,000 cash. The amendment was to the effect that the government should be, not the purchaser of the land but the trustee of the Indians, and should sell their lands subject to the homestead laws; for not less than $4 per acre, the Indians to have the proceeds. Any land not taken within five years to be sold without any conditions, but at not less than $4 per acre. This provisons to cover those parts of the twelve townships which are marshy and therefore will not be bought by homesteaders. These marshes after the end of five years, can be bought by large companies, drained and reclaimed, and then disposed of to the settlers. Another section of the Steenerson substitute provides that although certain citizens may already have exhausted their homesteads rights they may purchase this new land if they desire. The section will open the land to thousands of well-to-do farmers of northwestern Minnesota who exhausted their homestead rights years ago.

EVEN LOVERS SHOULD RETAIN INDIVIDUALITY

By Mrs. FRANK LESLIE

ONE of the many advantages proposed to themselves by those ingenious persons who "make love" to other persons of the opposite sex is the coming into POSSESSION of a kindred soul to which he or she may communicate every thought as it arises, find AN ECHO for every opinion and sympathy for each emotion. Those of us who have ever experienced the tender passion probably "have our opinion" as to the working advantages of this theory. We know how easy it is to find a soul, kindred or otherwise, of which it is wise or profitable to MAKE A MIRROR of our own and have proved quite thoroughly the comfort of expressing each sentiment as it arises, our likes and dislikes, wishes, prejudices and opinions. Let me state just here, for fear of misapprehension, that, in the words of Artemus Ward, "This is intended to be sarkastikal," and that my sober and serious opinion is that this absolute sincerity and perfect unity of mind, speech and conviction are merely one of those ROSE COLORED DELUSIONS hanging like sunrise clouds about the dawn of love and sure to be dispelled when the orb of light either arises in his strength or goes behind a cloud.

People who have found time to study the subject say that no two leaves upon a tree, no two flowers upon a stalk, no two pebbles or grains of sand or crystals upon the shore, are exactly alike, but the microscope, if not the naked eye, will discern enough difference to insure INDIVIDUALITY, and it is said that a trained shepherd knows every one of the sheep in a flock of hundreds as positively as his wife does the lambs of her nursery.

AND IF GRAINS OF SAND, LEAVES AND SHEEP EACH HAVE AN INDIVIDUALITY AND CAN NEVER BECOME PRECISE FACSIMILES OF EACH OTHER, IS IT NOT RATHER A FOOLISH IDEA TO TRY TO FORCE TWO PERSONALITIES INTO THE SAME MOLD, AND SHOULDN'T WE SUPPOSE EVEN LOVERS MIGHT RETAIN SENSE ENOUGH TO SEE THAT THEIR TWO MINDS, HEARTS OR SOULS ARE AND WILL REMAIN TWO AND WOULD BE VALUELESS IF THEY WERE ONLY THE HALF OF ONE, AS THEY PERSIST IN CALLING THEM?

NEW SERVICE MONDAY.

Mail to Come on Northern Pacific After That Date.

As announced last week the mail for Red Lake Falls will be carried over the Northern Pacific beginning next Monday, the 22nd inst.

To Congressman Halvor Steenerson's persistent efforts, more than to any other cause, can be attributed the success of the application for this service,

Judge A. P. Toupin last week received a letter from Congressman Steenerson which said:

Washington, Feb. 8, 1904

Dear Mr. Toupin;

I enclose herewith a copy of a letter from General Shallenberger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, stating that the Northern Pacific Railway company has accepted the proposition of the government for the establishment of mail service over its line to Red Lake Falls, service to start February 22. I hope this will be satisfactory to the people of your town.

I remain, very sincerely,
H. STEENERSON.

The letter enclosed states that while the new service will cost the government considerably more than at present, nevertheless the depart- could not see its way fit to turn down the constant urging of the request by Congressman Steenerson.

Mr. Steenerson and those who prompted him to take up the work in our behalf are certainly entitled to the thanks of the multitude.

Nels G. Otterness, of St. Hilaire, one of Red Lake county's fairest and most popular sons, is a candidate for mayor of his home town at the coming spring election and last week's St. Hilaire Spectator is authority for the statement that he will advocate the enacting of a village ordinance reading as follows; and while it is not thought that any young lady will be punished by its enforcement because she didn't "pop" to the mayor, nevertheless Nels' friends believe he intends taking the proverbial "stitch in time." Here is the proposed ordinance, according to the Spectator:

Whereas, the past few years have been a season of unexampled prosperity, in which the only untoward feature in this community has been the dearth of marriages—the Hymeneal altar having been but too seldom approached by fond and trusting hearts, desirous of being wedded in happiness by the heat of the domestic hearth—thus debarring many from experiencing the pleasures of connubial bliss at their own fireside; depriving the business interests of the increased trade, concomitant on the establishment of new households, and cutting short the revenue of dominie and justice; and, whereas, there is in this vicinity a large surplus crop of available bachelors, which we believe is not altogether their fault, but rather the result of their timorous dispositions, extreme bashfulness and excessive meekness; now, therefore,

Be it ordained, by the village council of the incorporated village of St. Hilaire, Minn., inasmuch as the present year entails upon the ladies the year previleges, and that it is their own fault if they don't exercise it; that all spinsters, bachelor maids and old maids be hereby directed to seek and secure their heart's delight, soul's affinity, conjugal mate or household provider, ere the first day of January, 1905, under the pains and penalties hereinafter provided. Be it further provided,

That the preachers and justices of the peace in this said village of St. Hilaire, be hereby instructed to perform the marriage service free of charge for all ladies who proceed under this act.

That after January 1, 1905, all spinsters, grass-widows, bachelor maids, or old maids, between the ages of 20 and 30 years shall pay an annual tax of $20. Between 20 and 40 years an annual tax of $10, and over 40 years $5 per annum until they assume the matrimonial state except, that any spinster, bachelor maid, grass-widow, or old maid, who can prove by an affidavit, filed with the village recorder, that she has proposed unsuccessfully, to three different eligible parties, within the year 1904, shall be exempt from the penalties of this act.

Joe Likes the West.

In a personal letter to the Gazette Joseph Koke states that he reached Washington all O. K., and likes the country. He says in part:

"Am getting quite used to city life and am now able to follow a street car line, especially when I am in the car. Phil is starting a book, stationery and art goods store here and will propably have it running soon.

The weather has been fine so far, only yesterday and Sunday it snowed some; but a week ago Sunday I was out walking and saw roses blooming. It never got below freezing, though, since I was here and people told me just now was the coldest weather they had this winter. I tell you, the trip out here is a grand thing, and especially to one who has never seen anything in the line of mountain scenery before. It is a feast for the eyes, and you can imagine how greedy mine were. I took in everything there was to see that I ever heard or read about, and besides there was a fellow in the sleeper who had made the trip several times before and he was always telling us just when and what to expect."

NORTHERN PACIFIC TO BUILD LINE OUT EAST

In Railroad Circles a Rumor Says that the Old Red Lake Transportation Company Line Will Be Bought by the Northern Pacific and Line Built to Connect With Road Here.

From present indications it would look as though Red Lake Falls would have a through line of the Northern Pacific railroad inside of another year.

It is reported on good authority that the Northern Pacific will buy the line of road of the bankrupt Red Lake Transportation Company and extend a branch west to connect with their line here, giving them an outlet for their heavy northwestern business, and opening up a new country that has not at present railroad accomodations of any sort.

It has long been known that the Northern Pacific contemplated building east from this city, and if the report that they will purchase this Red Lake line is substantiated, there is no question but what it is their intention to take up the eastern extention immediately.

The business of the northwest is increasing at a rapid pace, and to handle what comes to them, the Northern Pacific must in some way provide another line to the cities. At present the road from Winnipeg Junction into the cities is overtaxed with work. All the through trains as well as those in the Winnipeg line are now run over the road to Winnipeg Junction, which makes a congested condition all the time, while a line east from here would give them additional territory as well as relieving the other line to a great extent.

A party of surveyors passed through the eastern part of the county the first of the week, working west, and it looks as though before the summer is over an important move will be made.

Red Lake Falls is ready to offer inducements to the Northern Pacific to extend their line through here and if it is done, it will be of great benent to the people out east, as well as to the the county at large.

CRIMINAL INSTINCT MAY NOT BE A MISFORTUNE

By CESARE LOMBROSO

WHEN criminal anthropology first advanced the idea that the criminal COULD BE MADE TO PAY, instead of imposing tremendous taxes upon state and society, the idea met with the usual amount of ill natured criticism and sneers. The present author will, therefore, undertake to prove the feasibility of the scheme. And let me here say that criminal tendency need not be regarded as a most deplorable misfortune. Criminal instinct TURNED INTO OTHER PATHS may prove, and indeed often has proved, of tremendous service to mankind.

The history of all nations proves that crime cannot only be made profitable, but that criminals themselves frequently have turned out REAL BENEFACTORS OF HUMANITY.

Criminals being abnormal, like anomalies, they make GOOD LEADERS—every book of history attests this—and the surplus of energy they spend is often phenomenal. This service is at the disposal of any idea that promises them and the masses a better livelihood. In war and peace certain disagreeable work has to be done. Why not engage criminals to do it? They have the energy, the courage and the insensibility.

* * *

Swindlers on a large scale work great damage to individuals, but the human race is indebted to many of the fraternity for GENUINE PROGRESS. The swindler works for his own pocket, it is true, but his inventive mind dispenses new ideas broadcast. Where an honest man, hampered by his conscience, honest experience and by regard for others, cannot achieve success, swindlers attain it through the LACK of these qualities and by reason of unusual energy and a certain impulsive violence.

While in our heart of hearts we condemn the speculator in hunger, though he is often a very respected citizen, in case of drought or war THIS SAME CRIMINAL MAY BE HAILED SAVIOR OF THE NATION.

The adulterer of commercial products, particularly of foodstuffs, is a despicable scoundrel, but his genius for invention has shown honest men many a trick that, PROPERLY EXECUTED, has proved beneficial on a large scale.

ARTIFICIAL SILKS, ESSENCES FOR WINE PRODUCTION, HALF WOOLEN STUFFS AND OTHER SUBSTITUTES—ALL WERE FRAUDS WHEN FIRST PLACED UPON THE MARKET. THEIR INVENTORS WENT TO PRISON. TODAY ORGANIZED RESPECTABILITY WAXES FAT BY THEIR METHODS, ONCE CONDEMNED, NOW TERMED LEGITIMATE.

Crime, then, means ingenuity, invention, alertness, energy—QUALITIES INDISPENSABLE FOR SUCCESS. Unlawfully applied, these characteristics, themselves the acme of commercial achievements, become a menace to society, but only for the reason that society has not sense enough to lead them into proper channels. I have no doubt, however, that the time is near when law makers will find ways and means for utilizing the good that is hidden away in the recesses of crime AND THUS MAKE CRIMINALS USEFUL MEMBERS OF SOCIETY. This applies to habitual criminals as well as occasional ones.

Crime, then, means ingenuity, invention, alertness, energy—QUALITIES INDISPENSABLE FOR SUCCESS. Unlawfully applied, these characteristics, themselves the acme of commercial achievements, become a menace to society, but only for the reason that society has not sense enough to lead them into proper channels. I have no doubt, however, that the time is near when lawmakers will find ways and means for utilizing the good that is hidden away in the recesses of crime AND THUS MAKE CRIMINALS USEFUL MEMBERS OF SOCIETY. This applies to habitual criminals as well as occasional ones.

GOOD REASONS WHY?

The Red Wing Republican has an editor who has a happy way of expressing himself, as can be seen from the manner in which he gives the reasons why Bob Dunn is his choice in the gubernatorial race. He says:

"To begin with, "Bob" Dunn is as true a Republican as they make 'em. He has fought the battles of the party in season and out of season. He has accepted honors and responsabilities when they came his way, and he has trudged along just as cheerfully as a private in the ranks when that place was assigned to him. There is no treachery and no sulking in his nature, and a mighty sight less selfishness than it is usual to find in the active, practical politician.

"He is a square man. Everybody trusts him. Everybody knows that he is honest; not merely in the strict technical sense of that term, but in the sense that he would be governed by consideration of public duty; that he would not make his office contribute to his private political interest; that he would hold the state and its service above all other things. That he is a kind of man that we much need in the governor's chair.

"He is a competent man. This is no untried politician, but a man who has filled a most important place and discharged its duties beyond criticism. We know just what kind of a governor we should have in "Bob" Dunn, and there are none better."

The ceremonies at Havana last week told a story unique in history. They likewise put to confusion a good many prophets that the United States would never withdraw from Cuba, said the Washington Star. The situation, we were told, would make such a thing possible. It was too much to expect that the Cubans would ever be able to manage their own affairs, or that, in any circumstances, a strong power like the United States once in control of such valuable territory would ever let go. The Cubans are getting along excellently, and the United States has let go. In an age denounced by railers and pessimists as the most sodden and commercial the world has ever known there is performed an act without parallel among nations for sympathy and unselfishness. The greatest of republics after heavy sacrifices in blood and treasure, frees a small neighbor from tyranny, and stands by until the people are in full command of their own interests. President Palma's acknowledgments for the Cuban people were very gratefully expressed.

SHAW, CUMMINS AND HARMONY

The particular brand of harmony which is in use by the two Iowa Republicans, Governor Cummins and Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, cannot commend itself by its fruits. Both of these leaders made speeches on Lincoln's birthday both of them devoted attention to the subject of Canadian reciprocity, and each of them showed himself in diametrical opposition to the other.

Governor Cummins' "Iowa idea up to date" is that "we are blind if we do not make an honest, faithful effort to maintain our hold upon Canada and to increase our exports into its markets."

Secretary Shaw's idea of the mat· is that Canada is seeking "free trade in natural products" and offering nothing in return. He also asserts that Democratic congressmen have have been making speeches on Canadian reciprocity "largely to cause unrest and dissatisfaction in Republican ranks."

The secretary speaks with much more party authority than the governor can lay claim to, and it is left to the latter to show, with the progress of events, whether he has been victimized by the Democratic wiles or is acting under the imperious pressure of facts.

The call for the Republican National convention has been received by the local Republican committeemen. The convention will be held in the city of Chicago on Tuesday, the 21st day of June. While the call doesn't so state, it is here that that the next president of the United States will be nominated by acclimation, and it will none other than the hero of San Jaun hill and the idol of the American people—Theodore Roosevelt.

St. Louis has succeeded in securing a $4,600,000 loan from the government for its exposition. Many Republican leaders were opposed to it, and the opinion is beginning to prevail that the country is holding too many national expositions and that it is time to call a halt upon raids on the national treasury for this purpose.

The proposition to raise the saloon license at Crookston was turned down at the city council meeting there last week, and the saloons will continue to pay $500 per year. The oppositinn to the raising of the license was bitter, and the fight that resulted was a pretty one. The low-license crowd celebrated their victory.

A reception was held at the Woodman hall there that evening and several young people from here attended the festivities. The groom is a member of the firm of Dupont & Sons, general merchants, and the bride is one of Terrebonne's popular young ladies. The Gazette extends congratulations.

Thief River Press: A deal was consummated Wednesday whereby Jesse LaBree purchased the interest of Allen W. Wood in the Murphy & Wood implement business. The new firm should prove to be an especially strong one as both Mr. Murphy and Mr. LaBree are good business men and have a wide acquaintance throughout this vicinity. It is understood that Mr Wood is to remove to the Twin Cities where he will engage in professional business.

Thief River Press: City Attorney Lee announces that it is time for the Kratka forces to withdraw their appeal to the supreme court and settle up the costs of the case to date and sue for peace. If this is not done Mr. Lee will see to it that trouble of a serious nature is made not only for Mr. Kratka and his backers but also for the city at large as he will leave no stone unturned in order to win now that victory has perched on his banner during a portion of the strife. He says the opposition is now fighting him alone but that this will in no way lessen the danger to them if they do not quickly run up the white flag in token of surrender. Mr. Lee intimates at illigal actions on the part of the city authorities which can be used as a lever to bring his opponnents to terms.

The weather was so disagreeable last Friday evening that the St. Hilaire people who had planned on coming down to attend the band concert were compelled to abandon their trip. However, when the roses bloom again (if they ever do) we shall look to see St. Hilaire represented often at these concerts.

The flag was swung at half mast from the city hall flag staff Tuesday, because of the death of Senator Marcus A. Hanna. The flag at half mast wasn't noticeable to any degree on the 12th—Lincoln's birthday—and while we all admit that Senator Hanna was an able statesman and grand American it remains questionable whether he was entitled to honors not bestowed upon the martyred Lincoln.

The Leap Year party given at the Met. Tuesday evening turned out to be the swell event in the present social season, and the young ladies carried out their personification of the sterner sex in a manner that brought envy to the "girls" of the evening. The opera house was prettily decorated and furnished with settees, couches, etc., and to the music of the local orchestra the crowd danced away a pleasant evening. Frappe and ice-cream and cake were served as refreshments, and the whole affair was an enjoyable one.

The Appleton Press suggests that when you get a catalogue from a big mail order house just look it over and see how much they will pay you for your produce. Also, investigate and see what their terms of credit are in case you do not have the ready cash. How much they will give to keeping up the sidewalks; just write and ask how much they will give toward the erection of a church; how much they will give to assist the poor. After you have done this and received a reply, see if your home merchant don't treat you better in every way, being an important factor in the growth and prosperity of the entire community.

P. E. Pirath has received the reports of the insurance companies he represents in regard to their losses in the great Brooklyn fire. The Continental, of New York, writes that their loss will be one million dollars and that it will be promptly met; the Liverpool, London and Globe company's loss is estimated at $1,000,000, and in addition to paying this they have contributed $10,000 to the relief of the sufferers. His other company, the American Fire Insurance Co., of Philadelphia, write that they lose $150,000 by the fire, and that the same will be met promptly. The fire was a hard one on the insurance companies. and those fortunate enough to be insured in reliable concerns have reason to be thankful.

A VALENTINE PARTY.

Pleasing Function By Children of Sewing Circle At Emard Home.

The "Daisy Sewing Circle" entertained on Valentine's Eve, at Wood bine cottage, invitations being sent to sixteen little boys making thirty-two present. Each little lady brought a heart-shaped valentine tied with a ribbon of her favorite color and decorated to suit her own fancy, the result being sixteen beautiful and dainty peices of workmanship. These were pinned to a curtain and each little gentleman, after drawing a slip of paper upon which was a number written, took their places in line according to number drawn, and from a designated spot, tried their luck at hitting the heart they thought prettiest, with a small bow and arrow. Each was given three trials and if he did not succeed in hitting a heart, passed to the rear to wait his turn again. Some little men proved good marksmen, hitting a heart the first time trying, while others not so fortunate passed to the foot of the line.

Each boy, on turning the heart, found the initials of the girl who made it on the back, and making his way to her, presented a golden key attached to a ribbon of his favorite color, wherewith to open this heart which was supposed to contain all good resolutions for the coming year.

The little boys were not a bit behind the little girls in bringing beautifully decorated keys and each was pleased with their souvenirs of the party.

Each little boy fastened the heart to the lapel of his coat and each little girl fastened the key and ribbon to her dress, after which they marched once through the house and to little tables where each, being furnished with a pin, they proceeded to find out who could pick up with a pin the largest number of small squares of paper in a given time. A tiny bow of blue ribbon rewarded the winners, who were Ferdie Gerlach and Clara Rue. Refresment came next in order after which a few more games were played, notably a potato race, in which potatoes were rolled across the room with only a pin to guide them. This race was won by Marcens Marshall. Promptly at 10 o'clock a big sleigh stopped at the door and, amid much laughing and chattering, the little folks were taken home as rapidly as possible.

Washington School Notes.

By fifth and sixth grades.

The school board has had the Washington school propped up on the west side so that it will not fall over.

There was a very large attendance at our program last Friday. The High School will have to hurry if they are going to draw the crowd.

The tri-yearly examinations for the banners will be held about two weeks from last Wednesday, and we are working very hard for them.

Last Friday the fifth grade of the Washington school had a valentine box. It was filled as full as it could be and every one got a good many.

John Rodgers, who has been absent for four weeks on account of sickness, has recovered and is back to school again. We are very glad to see him back.

The fifth and sixth grades of the Washington school have challenged the fifth and sixth grades of the Lafayette school for a spell down, to take place the coming Friday.

The fifth and sixth grades have formed a society. We have decided to call it the "Minerva Literary society." We hold our meetings every other Friday, at 2:30 p. m. We have reclations, stories, readings, essays, letters, and etc. Every one is cordially invited.

The Minerva Literary society gave a program last Thursday and found it very successful. The following was the program rendered:

Song, "America," School.
Essay, "The Life of Lincoln," Laura Zaiser.
Story. "Lincoln and the Pig," Laura Porter.

Senator Mark Hanna Dies

Associated Press dispatches Monday night announce the death of Senator Marcus A. Hanna at the family apartments in the Hotel Arlington, Washington, D. C., at 6:40 that evening. Senator Hanna's illness has lasted nearly two months during which it was often thought his recovery was certain. These apparent recoveries were followed by relapses and finally drifting into typhoid fever, which in his weakened condition he was unable to withstand.

When the end came all members of Senator Hanna's family were in the room except his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hanna. Mrs. Hanna had left the room only a few minutes before. The last sinking spell began at 6:30 o'clock. Drs. Carter and Osler were in attendance.

They did not conceal the fact that life was about to end, and all members of the family were summoned. Mrs. McCormick, one of the senator's daughters, and Miss Phelps, a neice, were present when the end came. Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hanna were first arrived and they withdrew immediately to the chamber of the Senator's wife to summon her to the bedside.

It was while they were absent that the Senator breathed the last. Just after Mr. Hanna's eyes closed in death Mrs. Hanna was able to go into the room.

The courage which has been dishlayed by Mrs. Hanna was the subject of great surprise. She had been in almost constant attendance on her husband, though realizing that there was no hope for recovery

Funeral arrangements were made at once and they occured today at noon in Senate chamber, President Roosevelt, the cabinet, congress, public officials being present.

Senator Hanna's remains will be interred at Cleveland, Ohio.

A Bargain for Farmers

The New-York Tribune Farmer, a national illustrated agricultural weekly of twenty large pages, has no superior as a thoroughly practical and helpful publication for the farmer and every member of his family, and the publishers are determined to give it a circulation unequalled by any paper of its class in the United States.

Knowing that every enterprising, up-to-date farmer always reads his own local weekly newspaper, The New-York Tribune Farmer has made an exceedingly liberal arrangement which enables us to offer the two papers at so low a price that no farmer can afford to lose the opportunity.

The price of The New-York Tribune Farmer is $1.00 a year and The Gazette is $1.00 a year, but both papers will be sent for a full year if you forward $1.25 to The Gazette, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Send your name and address to The New-York Tribune Farmer, New-York City, and a specimen copy of that paper will be mailed to you.

CROWDED THE HOUSE.

The Successful Scheme of a Theatrical Press Agent.

An agent who was in despair owing to his failure to get any advertising that had not been paid for found himself in a big western city with his attraction playing to strong competition and something desperately needed to attract public attention to his show. In one scene of the play a pair of handcuffs figured. The agent had an inspiration. He had the star snap a handcuff on her wrist, and then the agent concealed the key, saying it had been lost. The star was compelled to finish the act wearing the handcuff dangling from her wrist. The audience knew it should not be there, and comment was aroused. Between the next two acts the agent drove the actress swiftly to police headquarters, near at hand. The police captain was mysteriously called out. He was informed that the actress must have the handcuff removed at once and secretly, as she did not wish news of her predicament to get out. The chief brought out a big bunch of keys, and finally the handcuff was removed, but not until a dozen alert reporters had snuffed a "story" and were plying the reluctant press agent with questions. Finally the whole story was pumped out of the agent, the star having returned to finish the play. Next morning the first page of every local paper had a fine story, descriptive of the plight of the actress who had accidentally fastened a handcuff to her wrist. The public was interested and flocked to see the play, and the resourceful agent went on to the next town wondering what new thing he could spring on the sensation lovers there.—William Loftus in Reader Magazine.

Marriages In Burma.

Burma is unique among the countries of the east in the position accorded to women. There is no purdah there, and, gentle as she looks, the married woman is the head of her house. The girls before their ears are pierced, which is equivalent to a coming out reception, are allowed to roam about the streets playing boyish games with their brothers and their friends, and afterward there are many opportunities for young men and women to meet at festivals, boat races and other gayeties. Marriages in Burma therefore are usually love matches, and the unmarried woman is in no hurry to change her state. Burmese women are charming, generally slender, dainty and demurely coquettish. They wear gayly colored garments, which make them look like flower beds, and their hair, which is shining and smooth, is always uncovered and decked with flowers.

Why Your Coffee Is Bad.

Bridget is an excellent cook; but, like most women of her profession, she is opinionated and insists upon making all her dishes strictly according to her own recipes. Her mistress gives her full swing not only as to cooking, but as to the purchase of supplies. The other day her mistress said to her:

"Bridget, the coffee you are giving us is very good. What kind is it?"

"It is no kind at all, mum," said Bridget. "It's a mixter."

"How do you mix it?"

"I shake it one-quarter Mocha and one-quarter Java and one-quarter Rio."

"But that's only three-quarters. What do you put in for the other quarter?"

"I put in no other quarter at all, mum. That's where so many spoil the coffee, mum—by puttin' in another quarter."—New York Press.

The Japanese Hell.

The Japanese language has no equivalent for our word "hell," but has the word "jigoku" instead. Jigoku consists of, first, eight immense hot hells, ranging one beneath the other in tiers. Each of these hells has sixteen additional hells outside its gates, like so many antechambers, so that there are in all 136 hot hells. Second, there are eight large cold hells, each with its sixteen ante-hells, making the same number of cold that there are of hot hells. Besides these 272 hot and cold hells for offenders of the common sort the wily Japs have twenty mammoth "hells of utter darkness," into which will be consigned the spirits of children who take the name of Dai Butsa, or Great Buddha, in vain.

Why He Doubted the Map.

At a St. Andrew's society dinner one of the speakers told of a Scotch gardener, recently landed, who had great difficulty in acquiring a knowledge of American geography. The son of the household, failing to teach the gardener in any other way, brought out a huge, highly colored map. The Scot looked at it critically.

"Ah, yes, lad; that may be, but it's no to be trusted. It's laid oot in the plaid o' the leein' MacFeehtone," was his comment.

Wretch.

"George, did you ever love any other woman as well as you love me?"

"Oh, yes, my dear; several of them."

"Indeed! Why didn't you marry one of them instead of me?"

"Well, I suppose I'll be asking myself that question, too, some day."—Chicago Tribune.

HEALTH

"I don't think we could keep house without Thedford's Black-Draught. We have used it in the family for over two years with the best of results. I have not had a doctor in the house for that length of time. It is a doctor in itself and always ready to make a person well and happy."—JAMES HALL, Jacksonville, Ill.

Because this great medicine relieves stomach pains, frees the constipated bowels and invigorates the torpid liver and weakened kidneys is necessary in the home where Thedford's Black-Draught is kept. Families living in the country, miles from any physician, have been kept in health for years with this medicine as their only doctor. Thedford's Black-Draught cures biliousness, dyspepsia, colds, chills and fever, bad blood, headaches, diarrhœa, constipation, colic and almost every other ailment because the stomach, bowels liver and kidneys so nearly control the health.

No DOCTOR

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

Perfect Confidence.

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasiness and worry in the household when a child showed symtoms of croup, there is now perfect confidence. This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease.

Notwithstanding what many physicians say, heart disease can be cured.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians.

It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises. if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past."—F. P. DRAKE, Middletown, O.

If the first bottle does not help you, the druggist will refund your money.

BY THE HAND OF A CHILD

By HARRIET G. CANFIELD

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

"Martha Raymond ain't changed none since she was twenty, 'cept to get redder headed," the village dressmaker said to Deacon Lindsley's wife.

"I don't know," Mrs. Lindsley replied. "Seems to me she's more independent than ever since her pa and ma died."

"Think so? Well, she's still on the sunny side of thirty-five and got more taste than any young girl in town. She never wears red next to her hair—always black or white or green. I tell you an artist don't understand colors better'n Martha does. I wonder if Phil Gardner's proposed to her yet this spring?"

"I guess not. It's usually a little later'n this he asks her—'bout when I'm half through house cleanin'."

Every one in the village knew that Philip Gardner annually proposed to Martha Raymond and was annually rejected, but only the rejector and the rejected knew that old Mrs. Gardner was the cause of Philip's woe. Every year he had said, "Martha, won't you marry me now?" and Martha had replied, "Not if I must live with your mother, Phil."

Strange to say, he had never asked her to be more explicit. He had no idea of her reason for refusing to live with his mother. It was enough for him that she refused.

This year it was later than usual. Mrs. Lindsley had finished house cleaning when he climbed the steep hill road that led to the old Raymond homestead. It was early in the evening, and Martha was busy among her flower beds. She looked up with a conscious smile when the little gate clicked behind him.

"Good evening, Phil," she said. "Did you come to get some violets?"

"No," he replied bluntly. "I came to get you. Can't I, Martha?"

"Not if I must live with your mother, Phil," she said, with an air of finality.

To her surprise, he did not, as before, turn dejectedly away. There was a determined look in his eyes before which she trembled.

"I—I must go in," she said.

"Not until you've mentioned what you have against my mother." And he deliberately barred her way.

Martha's temper rose. "I wouldn't live with her for a farm!" she cried.

"AUNTIE'S GLAD YOU PUT THE PRETTY 'B'U F'OWER' IN HER HAIR."

"She's as still as death. I like to sing and laugh and make a cheerful clatter, but your mother's house is as silent as a tomb. You can hear a pin drop there any time."

Philip heaved a great sigh of relief. "Mother wouldn't object to your clatter," he said smilingly. "Is that all?"

"All? Isn't that enough? Besides, I don't believe in living in the same house with my mother-in-law!"

Philip's face clouded. "I can't turn my mother out even to please you, Martha," he said.

"No one wants you to turn her out, I'm sure. But I don't see why she can't live in the city with your brother."

"Mother can't sleep when she's there. It's too noisy."

"That's it. I should have to keep still all the time, and I'd set my heart on having a canary and a piano and one of those talking machines when I was married."

Philip smiled sadly. "If you change your mind about mother," he said, "you can let me know, otherwise I'll not ask you again."

Martha laughed scornfully. "I'm not likely to change my mind," she said. "When I do you'll see me wearing red flowers in my hair, and you know I'll never do that."

A year went by, and spring came again, but Philip, to the astonishment of the entire village, did not "go courtin' Martha Raymond." The dressmaker exclaimed over the fact when she was sewing for Mrs. Lindsley:

"I declare," she said, "I believe Martha kind of misses it. When I was sewin' for her last week she seemed dreadful quiet like. I noticed she didn't sing much neither."

"Serves her right for givin' Philip the mitten so often. I heard Widow Ramsey's son had been goin' there some."

"Yes, but she wouldn't give no encouragement, for she said he wasn't good to his mother. She says a man that ain't considerate of his mother won't be considerate of his wife."

Another spring came, and every eye was on Philip. "He will go to see Martho now," they said to one nnother, but Philip did not climb the hill road. He hod looked in voin for red flowers in Martha's hair.

One beautiful Sobboth morning in June Martha Raymond sat on the broad doorstep waiting for the "first bell" to ring for church. Her brother ond his wife ond little daughter were visiting her. Ruth was to accompany her to church. The child was playing in the old fashioned garden where lorkspurs and roses ran wild. Martha called her, and she came running up with her hands full of blossoms.

"Pitty f'owers," she said. "Rufe put some in Aunt Marfa's hair." And she climbed up on the broad stone and peeped roguishly into Martha's face.

"Only the blue flowers, dearie—the larkspurs. Auntie doesn't wear red in her hair."

"Yeth," lisped the sweet baby voice, "pitty b'u f'owers in auntie's hair." And she tucked a crimson rambler among the soft red coils. Then she slipped her little hand into Martha's, and they went to church together.

Philip and his mother sat directly behind them. The old lady looked inquiringly at the little child, but Philip's eyes sought Martha's hair, just as they had done in vain for two long years. He half rose from his seat, for there was the blessed red signal at lsst. He rubbed his eyes and looked ogain, and when the minister read, "What went ye out to see?" he murmured, "A red flower, of course." His mother laid a reproving hand on his arm. "Hush!" she whispered, just as she had whispered years ago to the restless youngster beside her.

Early that afternoon he climbed the hill road. Martha's brother answered his knock. She was in the garden with little Ruth, he said. He found them there among the roses and larkspurs.

"Martha," he cried, hurrying down the gravel path, "how can I thank you, dear?"

"Thank me," she said tremulously, "for what, Philip?"

"For wearing this." And he took the withered red rose from her hair.

Her eyes opened wide with surprise. "I didn't know it was there," she faltered. "I guess Ruth did it."

"Yeth," the baby lisped. "I dess I did—pitty b'u f'ower."

Philip's face fell. "So it's all a mistake," he said sadly.

But Martha put her arms around her little niece and held her close.

"Tell him," she said, "that auntie's glad you put the pretty 'b'u f'ower' in her hair."

Seeing Six Generations.

A generation is admitted to occupy on an average a space of thirty-three years. Horace Walpole relates the following amusing instance of seeing six generations: "I was ten when I was presented to George I. two nights before he left England for the last time. This makes me appear very old to myself and Methuselah to young persons if I happen to mention it before them. If I see another reign, which is but too probable, what shall I seem then? I will tell you an odd circumstance. Nearly ten years ago I had already seen six generations in one family, that of Waldegrave. I have often seen and once been in a room with Mrs. Godfrey, mistress of James II. It is true she doted. Then came her daughter, the old Lady Waldegrave; her son, the ambassador; his daughter, the Lady Harriet; her daughter, the present Lady Powis, and she has children who may be married in five or six years. And yet I shall not be very old if I see two generations more, but if I do I shall be superannuated, for I think I talk already like an old nurse."

The Battle of the Nile.

But for a pin prick there would have been no battle of the Nile. At one moment Nelson was fretting his heart out in vain quest of the French, with no one to furnish a clew as to their whereabouts. Next minute the secret was out—in a lady's boudoir. Sir John Acton, commander in chief of land and sea forces at Naples, was in his wife's room when her maid was putting the finishing touches to her ladyship's dress. The maid drove the point of a pin into her mistress and apologized. Some one had at that moment handed the maid a letter from her brother, a French sailor, from whom she had not heard for some time, and its receipt had startled her. Sir John Acton, foreseeing possibilities, offered to read the letter while the maid continued her attentions to her mistress. The moment he had read it he dashed off to find Nelson. The letter gave all the information as to the whereabouts and intentions of the French. Upon this Nelson acted, and the battle of the Nile resulted from that pin prick.

Sugar as a Stimulant.

One of the numerous physical culture teachers departs from the faith of trainers in advising his pupils to eat all the sugar they can get. Either in taking off flesh or in putting on flesh his advice is to make sugar in some form or other a liberal part of the daily diet.

"Sugar is a very powerful stimulant and a great producer of nerve force," he said. "I spent two winters in the Klondike, where the miners eat enormous quantities of sugar and molasses. They even sweeten salt pork with it. Men who simply soak themselves in sweets do twice the work of men who let sugar alone. Swiss mountaineers always carry a liberal supply of sugar in their kilts. Negroes in the harvest fields grow fat on sugar cane.

"In hot or cold climates a liberal diet of sugar will put a man in the finest possible condition. Whotever hod effects sugar may have at first are soon remedied by exercise. It hos been a fod for two or three years to howl against the use of sugar, but there is no sound physiological reason for it."

NEW SHORT STORIES

When Mr. Bissell "Talked."

The late Wilson S. Bissell was a close friend of President Clevelond, and when he was a member of the cabinet the president talked very fronkly with him and often at him when he was really criticising some other member of the cabinet. Among other things which the president did not like were coblnet interviews, and one day he expressed his mind freely upon the subject, saying thot the constant interviews with coblnet officers in the public press on all sorts of trivial subjects were undignified. The day this lecture took place a newspaper man had interviewed Bissell about affairs in the postoffice department and had prepared a very good story, using quotation morks freely. There was not much in the interview, no subject of importance, and it appeared in different papers under headlines such as "Interview With the P. M. G.," "Discussed by Bissell," "Mr. Bissell Tolks," etc.

The next day a dozen messengers informed the interviewer that the postmaster general wonted to see him. When he entered the office he found that official in a state of frenzy. His lorge face was red with excitement and passion.

"What do you mean," he shouted "by interviewing me? What did you put me in quotation marks for? Don't you know that cabinet officers must not be quoted?" And much more to the same effect.

When the newspaper mon got a chance he asked if there had been a misquototion and received a negative reply. "Why, I was fixing up a little story for your benefit," the journalist said. "I thought you would want people to know that you were a member of the cabinet and attending to business. Now, reolly, general, you ought to feel flattered."

"Oh, I know there's no harm in it, and you meant well, but I must not be quoted or interviewed. Cabinet officers must not tolk. And look at the headlines," he continued, flourishing a poper. "'Mr. Bissell Talks,' blankety blank it!"

The newspaper man could stand it no longer and laughed outright, and finally the good natured Bissell joined him, although he was still far from pleased. The interview and the headlines, coming on the heels of the Cleveland lecture about cabinet officers talking too much, had greatly disturbed him. He was apparently the first man to violate the new instructions.

He Took It Quietly.

John Morley in his life of Gladstone tells how the latter received his first invitation from Queen Victoria to form a ministry. It was in 1868. He writes: "On the afternoon of Dec. 1 he received at Hawarden the communication from Windsor. 'I was standing by him,' says Mr. Evelyn Ashley, 'holding his coat on my arm while he in his shirt sleeves was wielding an ax to cut down a tree. Up came a telegraph messenger. He took the telegram, opened it and read it, then handed it to me, speaking only two words, "Very significant," and at once resumed his work. The message merely stated that General Grey would arrive that evening from Windsor. This of course implied that a mandate was coming from the queen charging Mr. Gladstone with the formation of his first government. After a few minutes the blows ceased, and Mr. Gladstone, resting on the handle of his ax, looked up and, with deep earnestness in his voice and with great intensity in his face, exclaimed, "My mission is to pacify Ireland." He then resumed his task and never said another word till the tree was down.'"

"MY MISSION IS TO PACIFY IRELAND."

Ready For the Test.

A teacher in one of the schools near Philadelphia hod one day been so disturbed by the buzzing of lips and shuffling of feet of the children that she wos on the verge of distraction. Finally she said: "Children, I cannot stond so much noise. Please be quiet for a little while at least. Let me see if you can't be so still that you could hear a pin drop."

Instantly every child became os still as a mouse. Then a little boy in a back seot piped out with marked impatience:

"Well, let her drop!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

WANTS DAMAGES FROM STATE.

Perham Farmer Says That Prairie Chickens Destroyed His Corn Crop.

If the state is, as proclaimed by law the owner of all wild game, is not the state liable for depredations committed by game animals upon private property?

This is the query which G. B. Harrison, of Perham, puts up to the state game and fish commission apparently in all seriousness. Mr, Harrison is a farmer, and he has submitted to S. F. Fullerton, executive agent of the commission, a claim in regular form, for $54.55 for damage, which he says has been done to his corn by prairie chickens.

The bill is specific and sets forth that 300 prairie chickens poached daily on Mr. Harrison's corn field for a period cf four months, and that by reason of the game laws the owner was unable to protect his property by shooting the birds. The damage is computed at 45 cents per day.

All law for the preservation of game birds and animals in this state is predicated upon the fundamental declaration that all game is primarily the property of the state. Following this theory to what he considers a logical conclusion, Mr. Harrison contends that the state may be held responsible for the damage done by the game to private property.

A Rabbit "Fish" Story.

Crookston Times: Bernard Smith, one of the oldest homesteaders on Sturgeon Lake tells of a novel method used to kill rabbits without the expenditure of money for ammunition. Settlers he claims are taking large sheet iron snow shovels and scattering a little grain on them. The rabbits come up to eat the grain and the minute their tongues strike the cold iron they adhere and the rabbits are made prisoners. Bernard Smith says a day's hunting by this method usually results in catching seventy or eighty rabbits.

"Third Notice." Every editor has received them. The postmaster sends them to the editor. The postmaster is not to blame. For instance there is a man by the name of—well say Tim Short—who sent us three notices to stop his paper. He did not want it any longer. We wondered what was the matter. Upon investigating our subscription book we found that Tim was short $5.70. He had never paid a cent and so he stopped his paper as a matter of economy to us. A few evenings ago we stepped into church and Tim's melodious voice rang out loud and clear in the old soul-stirring song, "Jesus Paid It All." We might have been mistaken, but his earnestness impressed us. The next day we sent Tim a receipt in full begging his pardon for not knowing that he had made an assignment of his liabilities to the Lord.—Ex.

The famous Numedal-Norden case, in which to determine the residence of one Ragnell Running, was postponed to March 10, when the case will be heard at Thief River Falls.

Jas. Brady's bond was approved.

Auctioneers licenses were granted to O. G. Harlis and P. K. Olson, of Red Lake Falls.

Several applications for tax abatement were granted.

The petition of Mike Grassman for a new school district was referred to the county attorney.

Petition of J. B. Marcotte for a school district in Louisville was granted, same to be known as District 22.

The Illinois Bridge company was given the contract for the erection of a new 200 foot steel bridge over the Red Lake river north of Red Lake Falls. Sheriff Dan Linnihan bid for the company. The price paid was $6,655 and the work will be finished early in the summer.

A bunch of bills was allowed.

SIGNED THE BILL.

Red Lake Reservation Act Becomes A Law.

Monday of this week President Roosevelt signed the bill authorizing the opening of the eleven township of government land in Red Lake county and the bill, as announced in last week's paper, becomes a law. The land to be opened is good and will no doubt command a high price.

Red Lake county will see a big rush next summer, and this section will profit greatly as a result.

WONT MOVE THE MILL.

Grand Rapids People Arrange For Additional Power.

Secretary Germo, of the Commercial Club, has received word from the owners of the Grand Rapids paper mill, stating that Major Derby, in charge of the engineer district of the United States war department has consented to a plan whereby the water power of the Itasca Paper company at Grand Rapids, will not be interfered with by the repairs which are being made under the government supervision. The request for more water to operate the pulpwood grinders of the mill was made several weeks ago, and for a time the result was in doubt. It is now stated that sufficient water will be turned on to allow of the resumption of full operations at the grinding plant. During the interim of lack of water power the paper mill has been obliged to ship pulpwood to Brainerd, where it was ground and then reshiped to that point. Such a method was expensive and at one time it was announced the company contemplated moving the industry to some other town. With the assurance of plenty of water power the people of Grand Rapids feel certain the mill will be kept there.

The owners stated to Mr. Germo, however, that if any move was made they would certainly investigate the famous Red Lake Falls water power and possibilities before they moved.

A PROSPEROUS COMPANY.

Bray Mutual Fire Insurace Company In Excellent Condition

The Bray Mutual Fire Insurance company has passed its tench mile post, and its affairs are at present in a condition very seldom equalled.

At the annual meeting of the directors in January it was shown that $260,000 of insurance was in force, and as the increase has been steady and substantial since that time, there is at least $275,000 worth in force at present.

The company takes in eleven townships—Bray, Polk Center, Sanders, Rocksbury, Louisville, Red Lake Falls, Gervais, Wyandotte, North, Norden, Numedal, Black River and River Falls, and during their ten years of existence have been called upon to pay but five losses. They furnish insurance at rates considerably lower than old line companies, and have money enough in the treasury at present to pay at least one loss without calling an assessment.

To the diligent efforts of the officers is due the remarkable success of the company, secretary C. P. Swanson, of Bray, always having devoted a great deal of time to the work, and being ever on the alert for next business.

The Bray Mutual is an institution that Red Lake county people have cause to feel proud of, and that they do is evidenced by the support accorded it.

NEW FIRE BELL.

Council Orders One and Disposes of Other Matters.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the city council was held last Thursday evening, and the affairs of the public were looked after.

Bids for digging a well for fire protection on the North Side were opened, and the contract awarded to Fritz Gerke in the sum of $173.55. The well is to be 24 feet deep and ten feet in diameter and will be located on Seventh street between Broadway and Hamilton avenue. The well will furnish ample fire protection for the North Siders, and is an improvement long needed.

The honorable council authorized Clerk Toupin to order a new fire bell from the Waterons Engine Works company. The new bell is to cost $120 and will weigh 1075 pounds. The present bell will be taken in exchange as part payment.

It is expected that the new bell will answer all purposes and "rouse the dead" on occasions of need.

The council allowed the usual bunch of bills, and talked over matters of interest to their constituents.

SESSION OF STATE FARMERS' INSTITUTE

To Be Held Here Tuesday, February 1.—Red Lake County Farmers Should Attend.

A farmers' institute will be held at the Metropolitan next Tuesday afternoon, at which time Supt. Gregg and several other prominent people connected with these state institutes will address the farmers of Red Lake county.

The institute will be of benefit to every member of the family, as lectures and illustrations will be furnished demonstrating the work of every department of the farm.

These institutes have been drawing large crowd throughout the valley this fall, and the farmers of Red Lake county should make a special effort to attend this meeting.

Where practical advice and demonstration can be had free, and when it is of the recognized worth that these people are known for giving, it seems as though all farmers who desired to better their conditions at all times would jump at the chance of attending.

The men in charge of the meeting have conducted similar affairs throughout Minnesota for a great many years, and by practical experience have learned much that will be of benefit to the farmers, and being able to expound it in an intelligent manner can largely assist those who are following that noble calling.

Remember the date—Tuesday March 1—and be on hand to enjoy the session.

CREAMERY MEETING.

The meeting will begin at 1:30 and will be free to all. The meeting will be of great benefit to the farmers, and they should make a special effort to attend.

Notice.

Ditch fund warrents against Garnes ditch No. 1, Lambert ditch No. 1 and Garnes and Lambert ditch No. 1 are payable.

W. D. Quinn, Marseilles, Ill.

One thing is certain,—Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow. This is because it is a hair food. It feeds the hair and the hair grows, that's all there is to it. It stops falling of the hair, too, and always restores color to gray hair.

MARK HANNA.

The sorrow of the people of the United States is not over the loss of a distinguished senator from Ohio—but for the loss of a man, strong and good.

No man in recent years has contributed so greatly to the prosperity of the American people as did Mark Hanna. What he did was not inspired by any selfish motive, but for the great love he bore his friend, William McKinley.

A successful man of business, he entered the political field and became the target for the most bitter personal abuse because he had faith in his friend and believed in the principles which William McKinley advocated.

More to him than any other man is the country indebted for the maintenace of the financial honor of this nation and the election of the late William McKinley. It was also Mark Hanna at Philadelphia who obtained the consent of Theodore Roosevelt to accept the nomination of vice president. And it was Mark Hanna who put aside the demands of the corporate interests of this country, and refused to be a candidate against President Roosevelt.

He sought the election of senator from his state not for any personal ambition, but to be of further assistance to the president of his choice, and so faithful was he to that trust that he was only a few days ago elected for another term by the unanimous vote of his party representatives, which action has been pledged by the largest majority ever given candidates in his state.

While he was in the best sense of the word a successful politician, he was more than that, he was an honest, kind hearted and brave man. He dared to say what he thought, and was always the friend of the American workingman, and was frank with the people.

No man in recent years has been more bitterly villified by political enemies, yet he lived to see his name one of the most most honored and best beloved by the Americans. He appeal to the good judgement and sense of fair play of his country men, never faltering in the face of storm of misrepresentation and vituperation.

He won because of his strengh and his good heart.

When corporate greed refused to pay workingmen fair wages, Mark Hanna did not hesitate to speak in plain terms to the money kings, and single handed and alone won for the men a victory.

He was a rich man, his wealth being acquired by his own efforts, good judgement and executive ability. His prosperity did not delude him with the idea that he was made of superior clay to the common run of humanity, but his steady courage his warm sympathies for his fellow men, his great love for his illustrious friend, his keen interest for the progress of the world, and his private life as clean as his public services were patriotic, has stamped him as one of nature's noblemen, and the American people can today with one voice eqelaim, "A good man and a great man has gone to his reward."—St. Cloud Journal Press.

Farmers should not forget to call ... when In town ...

"The passage of Red Lake bill rang the death knell of the people of Rek Lake Falls so far as the permanent retention of the county seat is concerned. The "Frenchmen" had better get onto the hand wagon and we'll give them a free ride to a good town next year." says Syd Bagley's Thief River Press. If Syd really wants the court house why doesn't he come down and get it? No one in Red Lake Falls would be so unkind as to deny that wonderful town up the river any old thing they wanted to complete their happiness. Even the Chicago authorities are talking some of giving up the fight for the western supremacy, since hearing of Thief River Falls.

Mary McFadden, the Duluth News-Tribune's "News and Comment" paragrapher, has recovered from her attack of typhoid fever and is again editing her column in the Tribune. That interesting paper has many valuable features, but none that are more welcome to the fellow who reads the exchanges than Miss McFadden's newsy "News and Comment."

Of course, Minnesota is for Roosevelt. But just to make sure we will have the delegates instructed. They will stay hitched without watching, aptly remarks the Ada Index.

As usual the merchant of the country town is curtailing his advertising, following the holiday season because it is the dull season, remarks the Stanley Republican. We note however that the big department stores of the cities that have made the science of advertising a study, put forth their greatest efforts at this season. Expenses for clerk hire, rent, fuel, insurance, freight, etc., go on just the same. Why not make an effort to keep doing business? If there is one time more than all others when a merchant can make advertising pay it is at such a time as this. We give every man credit for knowing his own business better than we know it but there is a wide division of opinion among men in the same line of business as to what constitute good business. But common sense would indicate that the greatest efforts to secure trade should be put forth at the time that trade is hard to get and your help is loafing while the pay roll keeps doing more business—not when you have more business than you can properly take care of. This is a good time to clean up odds and ends and convert them into cash even if you don't make a good profit. Clear the decks for spring and summer.

Clerks of court have been notified by the district attorney that they are not to record affidavits of intention taken before U. S. Commissioners, as such are wholly void. It will now be necessary for persons to apply to a clerk of a district or supreme court of the state or a circuit or a district court of the United States, to procure their first papers. The requirement will be a source of much inconvenience and expense to aleins who wish to file upon land, as in many cases it will necessitate a journey of a hundred miles or more to reach a county seat, instead of being able to transact all the business with a commissioner near the land it is desired to enter. It would almost seem that since the railroad companies and other non-users of land have got about half the public domain the fences are being made closer and closer against the poor man and actual settler, says the Warroad Plaindealer.

There would be an upheaval ifthe people of the United States knew how much they lose by the non-existence of a parcels post like that of other civilized countries. The parcels post of the Great Britain will send a package from London to Oregon, across the Atlantic and the American continent for less than half what it costs to send it from New York to Philadelphia John Wanamaker, a man who knows, says the rate charged buy our postoffice for merchandise is six thousand per cent greater than that charged by Germany. He adds that "there are four insuperable obstacles to carrying parcels in the United States mail four express companies." Congress will listen to remonstrances by and by.

Salt will cure snake bites, according to an Alabama authority, says Miss News and Comment of the Duluth News Tribune. That may be so, but the average newspaper man will continue to carry along the same old cure for snake bites when he goes fishing next summer, notwithstanding the salt therory.

An exchange asks: "Who is the happiest, the man who possesses $100,000 or the man who has seven daughters?" to which an other exchange replies: "The man with the seven daughters, of course. The man with the money is not satisfiied and wants more. The man with the seven daughters is satified—he has enough."

The newspaper boys thruout the state should not be too hard on the administration office holders for their untiring support of the Collins candidacy. Good fat jobs can't always be held, and "de gang" knows Bob Dunn well enough to realize that their careers will be ended after the first of next January, unless, perchance, they can pull the wool over the people's eyes sufficiently to elect Judge Collins governor. If they do this, things will have to change mightily before the convention.

These National-Printer Journalist stereotyped puffs, at so much per, may go all right with the unsophisticated reader, but the Thief River Falls Review will have to put up a better article of newspaper, both from the news standpoint as well as typographically, before they can convince the fellows in the harness that they are what they claim to be. A $2 money order for a subscription to some of these journalist(sic) papers can get a notice for nearly any old attempt—as witness the one published in the last week's Review.

The Midway News, published at Merimain Park, midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, claims to be the only independent newspaper in St. Paul, and yet it is soaking Bob Dunn, and "jollying" Frank Eddy while the Collins leaning is too strong to disguise. Guess perhaps the News is only independent of those outside the state house ring, if the truth were known.

Don't Tell The Review.

Ada Index: Nearly all the state papers received at our exchange table during the past two weeks have contained that popular serial entitled "The Financial Statement"—continued for three weeks. The idea of having the official proceedings published in all the county papers at one legal rate is rapidly gaining favor and this arrangement between the commissioners and publishers is now in vogue in nearly every county in Minnesota.

Guy Carleton, a Crookston brakeman well known here, was injured in a wreck in the yards near there one day last week. One of his legs was so seriously injured that amputation was necessary. He is doing nicely, however, and will recover.

A letter from L. C. Simons states that he is enjoying the beauties of Washington, and that he is spending this week at Seattle, Tacoma and other points. It is expected that he will return by the first of the month, and without doubt he has been greatly benefitted by the trip.

The Red Lake river is comfortably filled with logs several miles above Red Lake Falls at present, and those that claim to know say that should the ice in the rivers go out with a rush this year, the presence of so many logs in the river would endanger the bridges and dams below here. The coming of an extended thaw will surely make some fun in the high water line this year.

Crookston Times: F. E. Packard, who for some months has been city editor of the Times, and Clifford Dufour, who has acted as reporter have resigned their positions to accept positions in the Journal office. F. L. Durand formerly editor of the Journal and N. S. Davis for several years city editor of the Grand Forks Herald have been chosen to fill the places made vacant on the Times by the resignation of Messrs Packard and Dufour. Washington's birthday was generally observed in Red Lake Falls. Old Glory was swung to the breeze from numerous flag poles, and the banks, postoffice and majority of the business places were closed during the afternoon.

The Argyle Banner tells some of the troubles of the country editors during the cold weather as follows: Cold weather and printing, like oil and water, are hard to mix. There were many days this winter when we burned all the wood within a block of the office and still the presses and type were cold.

Carl Nelson, of Minneapolis, an experienced machine man, has entered the employ of Joseph Helm here and taken up his work. Mr. Nelson is recommended as an A 1 machine man and patrons of that large implement house will find him genial and accommodating. His family is here, and the Gazette welcomes them as residents of Red Lake Falls.

Land agent Gonigam received word this week that W. A. Pope and Henry Gerrietts, of Manitou, Illinois, had their cars loaded and were starting for Red Lake county. Mr. Pope will occupy the Grimm farm in Lake Pleasant and Mr. Gerrietts the Connor farm in Terrebonne, each having rented these places through the Gonigam agency. Illinois will contribute a number of good farmers to the Red Lake county ranks the coming season.

Mayor Duffy tells The Gazette that he thinks the article in last week's paper in regard to the flag matter did him an injustice, inasmuch as he made every effort possible on the morning of Lincoln's birthday to find the flag and have it floated from the city hall, but all search failed to disclose the whereabouts of Old Glory, and Mayor Duffy concluded that the city was shy a flag and was preparing to ask the council to buy one. When he went to Friday evening's band concert, however, he discovered the flag in use on the stage for decoration purposes and Saturday he secured it, to be sure and know where it was the next time. The raising of the flag in honor of the late Senator Hanna was commendable, and merited by that great American, but to one not familiar with the facts it didn't look just as it should to see one great man ignored and another honored so soon after. The Gazette did not intend its local mention as a criticism of the mayor's official acts, and it is glad to be able to explain the reason for the conditions that existed.

Owing to the heavy snow storms the Northern Pacific did not get here at all Saturday, and two big snow plows were working all day Sunday and a part of Monday cleaning the cuts. The present winter has been one that railroad men will have cause to remember, as traffic has been impeded to a greater extent this year than at any time in many years.

Campbell Bruette, an old resident of Ives station, died in a hospital at Grand Forks last Friday night as a result of an operation to remove a tumor from the base of his brain. Deceased was the father of Mrs. McPeak of this city, and was well known throughout the southern part of Red Lake county. The funeral was held at Grand Forks Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. McPeak going over to attend the last sad rites.

Joseph Vaudrin a prominent Gentilly farmer, died yesterday morning after an illness of about six weeks with typhoid fever. Mr. Vaudrin was highly respected by his neighbors and acquaintances, and his death came as a shock to the community. Deceased was unmarried, but leaves a father and several sisters and brothers to morn his loss. The funeral will be held at Gentilly tomorrow.

The March Delineator contains much matter of interest and value in its household departments. Crookston Journal: A. P. Toupin of Red Lake Falls is amoung the members of the congressional committee who spent yesterday in Crookston. Mr. Toupin recently returned from a trip to Michigan, and reports weather conditions there as worse for the natives than the article we are getting up in the valley.

Rex E Beach, the new and clever writer of Western stories, whom McClure presented to the reading world last year with instantaneous success, has another excellent story in the March McClure's on "The Colonel and the horse-thief." It is humorous and graphic, full of life and color with the breeziness of the great plains blowing throught it. Will Crawford sympathetically illustrates the story.

"Gentlemen of the jury," said an Araphoe (Okla.) lawyer, "what kind of swearing has been done in this case? Here we have a physician, a man who from his high calling should scorn to tell an untruth. But what did he testify, gentlemen? I put the question before him plainly, "Where was he stabbed" Unblushingly, his features as cool and placid as marble, he replied that he was stabbed an inch and a half to the medial line and an inch above the umbilicus. And yet gentlemen, we have proved by three unimpeachable witnesses that he was stabbed just below the railroad station."

J. B. Armstrong returned Saturday from his several days' business visit at Cass Lake and points over east. Jim came as far as Tilden on the Great Northern, and after getting off there found that the N. P. train was stalled at Winnipeg Junction and would not run that day. He is nothing if not brave, however, so after a good warm dinner he pulled down his ear laps and "hiked" for home For a decidedly amateur pedestrian Jim did good work, making the twelve miles in a little better than three hours and a half, and that in the face of the fact that snow drifts ranging from one to twelve feet in depth were constantly in his path. The Gazette will put J. B. in training, and with a little more practice he can easily carry off the honors in the all-American "hiking" contest,

Mentor Herald: Miss Bertha LaFreniere, who has been employed at Northome for some months past, arrived here last Tuesday for a visit with friends and relatives and left this morning for her home at Red Lake Falls.

Frank Laplante went to Crookston Monday afternoon where he will enter St. Vincent's hospital and submit to an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Laplante has suffered considerably with this malady, and on the advice of his physicians thought it wise not to wait any longer before taking the steps to rid himself of the trouble.

Thief River Press: Oliver Pederson's cigar factory, located at Blackduck was burned last week entailing a considerable loss and throwing both he and Ed Coenen out of employment. The fire originated from the explosion of a lamp. The factory was owned by Mr. Pederson and Arthur LaPlante of Red Lake Falls and they have decided not to re-establish at Blackduck.

An exchange says: There is no use walking the floor with a felon says a gentleman who has had some experience in that direction. Wrap a cloth closely around the felon leaving the end open. Pour gunpowder in the end and shake down until the felon is covered, then keep it wet with camphor. In two hours the pain will be relieved and a perfect cure will follow.

Governor Van Sant has removed from office Sheriff Swan Torkelson of Clearwater county, it having been proven that he treated certain men he had arrested in a brutal and inhuman manner and insulted several persons who protested against his actions, besides firing a revolver at them. Such a man ought to be removed. The authority vested in a Sheriff is too great to be held by a man of unbridled temper and insulting tongue.

Crookston Journal: Clerk of Court Lanctot has issued announcements to the petitioners in the Red Lake county ditch matter stating that the final hearing of the petition would be given at the court house in Crookston before Judge Watts Friday. The petition has 63 signers from among the farmers and property holders along the proposed route and if the plan is thought feasible reviewers will be appointed by the Judge to report on the probable cost of the work and advisability of the routes suggested. The ditch will undoubtedly be built during the coming summer.

One of the new cases to be tried at the spring term of the district court is an action for divorce brougrt by Mrs. Beret J. Martinson against her husband, Rasmus Martinson, on the grounds of cruelty and inhuman treatment, alleging that he gets drunk and on such occasions, and also at other times, makes a practice of misusing her. She asks for alimony and the custody of the five children. Both parties are well known residents of the town of Norden. Mr. Martinson is in prosperous circumstances, he owning a farm adjoining the postoffice of Tweet.

J. F. Gray returned Tuesday from the big woods of Beltrami county. Mr. Gray has just finished a big logging contract for the Crookston Lumber company, having placed a million and a half feet of pine on the lake at the head of the Clearwater, north of Solway, to be floated down to the mill during the coming spring. Mr. Gray says that logging operations have not been nearly so extensive this season as has been reported, as several of the large concerns had considerable timber left over from last year that was not sent down to the mills. He thinks that there will be no trouble getting the logs to the mills on the Clearwater this year, as an exceptionally large head of water is held at the lake, and with the additional water the snow will furnish, logging operations will be much easier than during the last two seasons. Mr. Gray finished up his contract in fine shape, and made a good piece of money for his winter's work.

Josephat Corbeil was in from Lambert last week on a business mission and called at the Gazette office to renew his subscripton for another year: Mr. Corbeil, in company with Peter Hance, of Lambert, and Phil Chayer of this city, spent a couple of days at Crookston last week.

Drayman Ed. Bray has been awarded the contract to carry the mail to and from the Northern Pacific and started in on the work Monday. Ed. intends to purchase a regular bus and will make a business of carrying passengers, packages, etc. The people will find it convenient to have a means of transportation to and from the N. P., and Mr. Bray will no doubt do a good business in the passenger line.

Arrangements have been made for the reopening of the Commercial hotel at Crookston under the management of Brink Brothers who formerly run the Hotel Markham at St. Hilaire. The gentlemen are experienced in the business of catering to the public and the firm promises to be successful in a case where others have not been. The members have a host of friends and acquaintances in the upper country who will patronize the house, and their reputation as caterers will insure a good patronage from the start. They will conduct the house in a manner satisfactory to the traveling public and make it a credit to Crookston.

With the unusual quantity of snow in the country tributary to both the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers this winter, there are a lot of places that will be safer to live on than the banks of the Red Lake at Crookston and Grand Forks in the spring. With a warm spell lasting long enough to take both the snow and the ice from the river, people in Northern Minnesota will see these rivers reach their high water mark. Experts say that the valley has more snow at the present than during any time for the past twenty years, and Red Lake county certainly seems to have been favored with more than her share. There will certainly be no trouble in bringing the logs down the rivers this spring.

PRISONER OF FREEDOM

By IZOLA L. FORRESTER

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

It was the ideal brook for trout. Down between two hills it rambled in zigzag fashion, gray lichened rocks breaking its course into miniature maelstroms and little fussy, foaming cataracts until it reached the broad, willow shaded pond in the valley.

Burroughs tramped leisurely uphill. It was nearly noon, and he was due at The Pines at 1 for luncheon, but each deep, green pool tempted him to a fresh cast, and the air was warm and lazy. He chose a flat rock, shelving corner of the brook and seated himself for a final chance at the speckled charmers that flashed like quicksilver through the water now and then.

Far below him there was the faint popping of fireworks in the village, and beyond, out at the Narrows, the cannon of the forts boomed every once in awhile in honor of the birthday of freedom. But Burroughs was apathetic to the sound. There was a glamour about the wooded, rock ribbed hills and delicious silence that appealed to his city wearied mind.

Charley had promised him a Fourth of absolute peace and quietude if he would come down to The Pines. There was good fishing, fine trout especially. He could try the automobile if he chose, and finally Captain Hilbert and his daughter were to spend half of the day at The Pines and had long expressed a desire to meet the literary chrysalis of the hour.

"I KIND OF THOUGHT I'D KETCH YE, SONNY, THIS TIME."

"You don't have to show off, old man," his brother-in-law had said reassuringly. "They're old stock, you know, and live plain, but exclusive, even if the old tar has twin millions tied up somewhere. It will be just a pleasant little Liberty day party, and I think you'll like Bess Hilbert."

Burroughs rather thought he would too. He had seen her photograph, a large platino type, whose delicate tones brought out the beauty of the gay, girlish face, and it had appealed to his artistic sense.

The bamboo rod quivered gently, and before he could think twice he had a trout flashing upward in the sunlight. At the same instant a hand gripped his coat collar firmly.

"I kind of thought I'd ketch ye, sonny, this time. Jest drop thet pole."

"Clear out, will you?" gasped Burroughs wrathfully, but a friendly rap on the knuckles from a knotty stick sent the rod flying, and he faced his assailant. He was a tall, stoop shouldered old man, with shrewd, twinkling eyes, a broad brimmed straw hat and chin whiskers.

"I've been lookin' for you, sonny, for several weeks," he said pleasantly. "Kind of like our trout, don't ye?"

"I was not aware that I was trespassing," began Burroughs stiffly. "If you will take your hand off my collar I shall be glad to pay any fine due."

"Course you would; tickled to death and get off scot free of worldly examples, but the captain's orders, sonny, didn't contain any mention of fines. 'If you ketch the scamp, Hiram,' sez he, 'jest hang on to him, and we'll make a shining example of him on this glorious one day of freedom.' Right about face! March!"

One is at a disadvantage with a hand of steel on the collar, just where the knuckles can grind persuasively into the neck, and a hickory rod is being juggled over one's head. Burroughs made a desperate effort to wrench himself free and stumbled helplessly in the attempt.

"Say, look here," he cried. "I'll give you $10 if you'll let me go."

"Twenty!"

Burroughs set his teeth and marched with as good grace as possible. He had caught the word "captain." It must be Captain Hilbert whose trout he had unwittingly poached. He wondered with sudden horror whether the lank, incorruptible Nemesis at his heels would haul him before the captain and brand him a criminal in the presence of Miss Hilbert.

They had passed through a grove of oaks and walnuts. An old fashioned colonial mansion showed beyond an apple orchard, but he was turned away from it and taken to an old corncrib which stood between the orchard and the huge white barn. It was empty and nearly stifling. The double doors were ponderous and were barred from the outside.

"I reckon you'll be tolerable easy here till the captain gets home," said Hiram cheerfully. "I'll bring you some water and be handy in case of emergency."

"Now, see here," began Burroughs sternly. "Once for all, I had no idea of stealing your devilish trout. I am a guest of Mr. Merrill of The Pines"—

"That's all right, sonny," interrupted Hiram soothingly. "You lie down there in the corner and take a nap on it while you're waiting. I don't doubt your intentions one bit now, but you were stealing trout, and I ketched you in the act, and the captain sez, 'Hiram, if you ketch the scamp thet's stealin' my trout you keep him,' and I'm going to hang on to you."

The hours crept by. Burroughs walked back and forth in his prison. He wondered if they would send a search party after him. Hiram brought fresh water to him several times and chatted pleasantly through the broad cracks of the crib where the sunlight filtered through in broad rays of golden motes. But the hickory club was in readiness for possible mutiny, and Burroughs knew his cause was hopeless.

When twilight came and he lay down from sheer weariness of walking Hiram called out that the fireworks down at his friend's place were right pretty, and he thought grimly that no one was worrying on his account after all.

About 9 o'clock carriage wheels sounded on the drive, and after awhile Hiram opened the doors cautiously.

"He's right in here, captain," he said, with a chuckle. "I ketched him yanking out a dandy."

"Come out, sir," called Captain Hilbert heartily. "Come out,-you scamp!"

Burroughs walked out angry and indignant, yet half amused as he saw consternation in the captain's eyes. He explained his identity briefly, and Hiram sat down on the chopping block and whistled as the two linked arms and strolled to the house.

The blue eyes of Bess Hilbert twinkled with merriment when she heard the story of the capture over a late supper, but they also seconded her father's invitation to spend a week or more with them as atonement for his celebration of the Fourth.

"The trout fishing is very good here, Mr. Burroughs," she added demurely. "I enjoy it myself."

"And he's a mighty slick fisherman, thet boy," Hiram said three weeks later as he sat on the shelving rock over the trout brook and watched two figures farther down the hillside under the willows. "He certainly does land some beauties."

Under the willows Bess laughed happily.

"You'll be my prisoner for life now, Stanley," she said teasingly.

"In the glorious cause of freedom," answered Burroughs, kissing her as Hiram kindly turned his back. "I'll surrender to the captain tonight, sweetheart."

A Bargain for Farmers.

The New-York Tribune Farmer, a national illustrated agricultural weekly of twenty large pages, has no superior as a thoroughly practical and helpful publication for the farmer and every member of his family, and the publishers are determined to give it a circulation unequalled by any paper of its class in the United States.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

5421-2 Congress St.
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

WINE OF CARDUI

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materiale known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

Perfect Confidence.

Where there used to be a feeling of uneasness and worry in the household when a child showed symtoms of croup, there is now perfect confidence. IN SUPPORT OF OPTIONS.

Neat Argument Presented To Show What They Are.

Saturday afternoon a representative of this paper was calling at the office of the Edwards, Wood commission house in this city when a young man walked in. The manager asked him what his errand was.

"I don't wish to take much of your time," the young man said, "but last night several of ne fellows at the boarding house had an argument in regard to to the buying and selling of options in grain and stocks. Of course nobody has yet found any fault with one's buying grain and stocks outright and holding them for a profit. But I felt at the conclusion of the argument that I had been rather beaten in the debate on the option question. So I thought I would come in and ask you to give me briefly your stand regarding them."

"Well," said Manager Hatten with a smile, "I can think of no nicer way to come at the matter than by drawing a parallel case. A young friend of mine down in the country knows of a farmer who is about ready to retire, and will sell his farm, an elegant place, valued by its owner at $15,000. So that young man looks for a man who wants to buy such a place and discovers one. He then goes to the farmer and pays him a hundred dollars for the exclusive right to the disposal of that farm for a period of say ninety days. He then turns around and sells the farm to the buyer he found, for $20,000 taking as his share $5,000 which means a profit to him of $4,900. He never owned the land in fact, but he makes a nice bunch of money for his exercise of foresight. No one would pretend to say that he earned that $5,000 in the ordinary accepted sense of earning by working. But how many of your friends would call him a gambler or regard him as other than a clever business manipulator? There are men by the score in this city who are doing just what I have mentioned, and yet would roll their eyes in pious horror if a grain option were proposed to them. Can you see any difference in the two deals?"

"If options in grain were not a commercial possibility there isn't one young fellow in a thousand who could command enough money to buy cash grain in such a quantity that any ordinary rise in price would yield a profit worth considering. By taking an option he has the chance of realizing a nice profit. A young man who expects to make money by trading in options must study the markets carefully before giving orders to the broker, just the same as he would study any other business venture."

"Yes" added the young fellow, "and what tires me is to read or hear the remarks of some of these older business men who never miss an opportunity to warn young men about the terrible consequences of trading in options, when, were the facts known, nearly every last one of them is trading in the same options. I suppose they buy such large quantities that it doesn't hurt their conscience."

The young man buttoned his top coat in a thoughtful way and left the office with the remark, "I rather guess that argument of yours will leave the fellows very little to say. I'm much obliged to you."

Suicide Prevented

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

The announcement That S. Cunningham will leave the city will be learned with regret by the residents. During their residence here Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham have made many friends and their departure will not please the people.

During all next week special services will be had in the Presbyterian church all next week, excepting Saturday evening. Rev. Donald McKenzie of Crookston, will assist Rev. Knox. The Sunday following communion services will be held.

F. C. Westphal arrived from Clokio yesterday with his family and car of machinery and household goods and will farm a Red Lake county property recently rented of the Gonngam agency. Mr. Westphal is a prosperous farmer, and will make a valuable addition to our farming community.

The electric light company has moved its city office from the Freund building to the basement of the First State Bank, and are getting settled in the new quarters. The bank people have had the basement fitted up in nice shape and an outside stairway put in making excellent quarters for the electric light people.

Cashier Duffy, of the Merchants State Bank, has the money ready to turn over to Treasurer Tandberg for the late $6,500 ditch bond issue, having been given the contract to furnish same. Mr. Duffy has handled the ditch matters in a very satisfactory and prompt manner, and is entitled to credit for this work.

Joseph Laframboise and sons, Joseph Paul and Hugh, will leave early in March for North Yakima, Washington, where they will make their future home. The elder Laframboise recently returned from there and is enthusiastic over the prospects of that country. The family will have the best wishes of many Red Lake county friends in their new home.

The advertisement of the Racket Store, which appears elsewhere, announces a closing out sale of everything in the stock, and an extra effort will be made to move it inside of a short time. The proprietor, Mr. S. Cunningham, has made business arrangements elsewhere, ane desires to close up his affairs here as soon as possible. Read the ad. and then call and see the many bargains.

Romsos Bros., the enterprising Wylie merchants, occupy a large part of the Gazette's first page this week, advertising a special cash sale for next Wednesday and Thursday, March 2 and 3. A long list of attractive prices is quoted, and the sale should attract a large number of buyers in their neighborhood. Messrs. Romsos are strictly up-to-date and are receiving a patronage that is merited in the fullest sense of the word.

The final services of the Methodist Evangelical church people last Sunday morning were largely attended, the Presbyterian congregation joining with the others in listening to Rev. Nauman's farewell address. Rev. Nauman has labored faithfully and his efforts have been productive of much good. He has several calls from Washington to take up work in the ministry and will likely leave early in the spring to answer one of them.

Seven or eight Minneapolis bridge contractors were here this week to bid on the new bridge over the Red Lake river. They went back disappointed, however, as they were several thousand dollars higher than the bid of Sheriff Dan Linnihan, who secured the contract at a good reasonable price. The genial Dan will be the fellow who does the work. Dan may not live in Minneapolis, but he can give a lot of those fellows that do points on contract work of any sort.

Thief River Press: City attorney Lee went to Warren Monday to obtain from Judge A. Grindeland a temporary injunction restraining the burial of dead in the new cemetery site recently purchased by the congregation of St. Bernard's church just outside the northwest of city limits. The citizens of that portion of the city object to the location of the cemetery at that point on the ground that their water supply will be contaminated by reason thereof, the water draining from that direction toward their home.

Mr. and Mrs J. B. Demarais returned yesterday from their visit of two months at eastern points. While away they visited relatives and friends at Boston, Providence, Quebec, Montreal and other points in the United States and Canada and their visit was immensely enjoyable. Mr. Demarais tells The Gazette that while Red Lake county has considerable snow this winter it is nothing compared with the east. In Canada he says there is an average of four to five feet on the level and that the winter has been severe.

The paragraph below is from the Minneapolis Times and will interest all grocers who have kept a "poor box" in their stores: It has been the custom of many merchants to dump some cheap tobacco into an old cigar box and allow the public to fill its pipe gratis. Now Uncle Sam's minion step in the way and says this practice must stop. The original package must be placed in the box and the danger that customers will pilfer a week's supply at one time is appalling to the tradesman. When the cigar box was nailed gown a pipeful could be taken at a time. Now the whole package is likely to take wings.

The fifth and sixth grades of the Washington and Lafayette schools had a spelling match last Friday afternoon, and the little North siders cleaned up their opponents nicely. Twenty pupils from each school stood up and in eight rounds the Washington pupils missed 46 words and the Lafayettes 71. The final contest was a spell down in which all the spellers participated and was won by Miss Isabel Helm, of the Washington school, she having out spelled all of her own school mates as well as the Lafayette spellers, thereby winning the championship of the two schools. It is likely that more contests will be arranged.

The dairy meeting spoken of elsewhere was arranged for early last week, but The Gazette was entirely ignored by the prime mover, Mr. Lauritzson, and not even given a fact in regard to it. During Secretary Bischoff's management of the creamery business, The Gazette was always furnished with all items of interest in regard to the creamery and dairy industry, and the readers of course thought it strange that no notice of this dairy meeting appeared in the paper this time. Just why Mr. Lauritzson should do this is not plain to us, as The Gazette has always willingly published anything that would be of benefit to the creamery or its patrons. The gentleman may be a good creamery man, but there are plenty of school boys running around the streets of Red Lake Falls that could give him much needed instruction along the lines of common courtesy.

With the establishment of the mail service on the Northern Pacific, the government officials had advised the discontinance of the Star route between Red Lake Falls and Crookston on Sundays, as a rural route had been established from Crookston that supplied Gentilly and the department considered that the Star route from Crookston here could be dispensed with easily enough. Upon hearing this, Postmistress Marshall at once sent in a vigorous protest to the department showing where it was a necessity that the Sunday mail service should be continued, and her argument was so convincing that the department acceeded to her demands and have advertised for bids for the carrying of the mail on Sundays, which insures us the continuance of the Sunday mail service. Postmistress Marshall is deserving of great credit for her efforts in behalf of the people of Red Lake Falls, as she has persistently advocated improvements in the service at all times, and the results speak for themselves.

Washington School Notes.

By fifth and sixth grades.

We are glad to see Wilcia Proper back to school.

Wilcia Proper also was sick, and was absent two days last week.

John Rogers, Clara Bourdon and Albert Kreil were absent Tuesday.

On account of the warm day Friday the children were out sliding more than usual.

May Adler was sick Thursday morning. She came to school in the afternoon but went home at recess.

We are glad that Washington's birthday came on a school day this year so that we could have a holiday.

The fifth and sixth grades had a surprise party on May Adler last Thursday, and a large number attended.

The Minerva Literary Society are going to have a program next Friday and we hope a large number will attend.

We had a spelling match with the Lafayette school last Friday. The Washington school won. After we had gone around eight times the Washington school had missed forty-six words and the Lafayette school had missed seventy-one words. We then had a spell-down to see which pupil was the best speller and Isabel Helm, of the Washington school, stood up the longest.

An Epidemic.

The following piquant little story comes from Germany and is worthy of reproduction:

A prominent business man appeared at the office of his family physician and communicated to him with great concern that his son, the joy and hope of the family, to all appearances was suffering from diphtheria.

The doctor shrugged his shoulders in a sympathetic way. "Very sorry to hear it. No mother's son is safe when that sneaking disease comes around."

"But," continued the man, "the dear young lad has confessed that he caught the disease from the housemaid, whom he kissed."

"Well, what in the world shall one say to that? Young people are very thoughtless," remarked the doctor discreetly.

"But don't you see, doctor—how—to be plain—between you and me—I have also kissed the girl (the horrid thing) perhaps I, too, will be down with the disease."

"Yes by thunder, that is the next thing to expect—"

"And I kiss my dear wife every morning and evening, so we risk having her—"

"Gracious Goodness," exclaimed the doctor, bringing his fist down with emphasis, "then I, too, will have it!"

PROSPECTS FOR A FLOOD.

Old Timer In Grand Forks Indulges In Vision of Deluge

A great deal of interest is being taken just now in the prospects for a flood in the Red River valley this sping, says an old timer in the Grand Forks Herald. That there is a possibility of one is not doubted. But opinions differ as to the probability. One of the time-honored stories of the northwest is that when in the early days A. W. Bangs, father of the now famous Bangs brothers, came to Grand Forks looking for a location to practice law, after looking over the country he said to the elder of the brothers: "Tracy, let's find some other place. A country where the rivers run north, and the Irish vote the republican ticket is no country for you and me."

The fact that the river runs north has caused a great deal of sorrow. For 300 miles the river drags its sluggish way through a country that is almost a dead level. It drains territory nowhere less than 50 miles in width, and one of its tributaries, the Red Lake River, brings water to it from the great pine regions of Minnesota. The bed of the river is narrow, with high, precipitous banks, and a light precipitation over the great area of country drained is sufficient to change its level many feet. As a rule the water is flowing freely near the head from two to three weeks before the ice has broken at the mouth. This condition causes the ice to gorge all the way down, and when there is a heavy snowfall and the other conditions are right, high water is inevitable.

This year there is more than the average amount of snow in the valley, though its depth does not compare with that of the famous flood of 1897. Through the upper end of the valley the snow is comparatively light. Farther north there is more and it is blown into great drifts. The country tributary to the Red Lake river has more snow than for many years, and lumbermen are all looking for quite high water. In the spring of 1897 the bed of the river itself was blown full of snow, and the entire river was represented by a gigantic snow bank, 300 miles long, 50 feet thick, and the full width of the river. The prairies were afloat long before the snow bank was melted, and the waters from the south seeking an outlet, and failing to find it, were piling up against the accumulation of snow and broken ice.

Some of the old settlers say that some of the floods of the long ago were worse than the one of that year. However that may be, the government guage at Grand Forss showed a record of 47 feet 6 inches above low water mark, which is the highest official record. The ordinary peaceful stream became a raging torrent and its width was measured by miles instead of feet. On the Minnesota side near and below the mouth of the river of the Lower Snake, farm houses stood in water up to the second story and many were swept away by the waves that rolled across the farms.

From the present outlook such a flood is not to be anticipated this year, but there is ample opportunity for high water that will keep some of the residents busy. One thing that is noted by the old residents is the thickness of the ice. The ice on the Red river runs now from three to four feet thick, and it is still freezing. This means that it will take river longer to clear itself, and there will be a correspondingly large overflow.

Fearful Odds Against Him.

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such, in brief was the condition of an old soldier by name of J. J. Havens' Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with Kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he testifies. "I'm on the to complete recovery." Best on earth for Liver and Kidney troubles and all forms of Stomach and Bowel Complaints. Only 50c. Guaranteed by W. A. Schreiter, Druggist.

THREE PAPERS AT ONE PRICE

The Gazette Makes a Remarkable Clubbing Offer.—A Chance to Secure Cheap Reading.

The Gazette has made arrangements whereby it can give Red Lake county people the greatest value for a dollar that they ever got.

For the next month we will make the following remarkable proposition: To old subscribers who pay up arrearages and one year in advance, and to new subscribers who pay for one year, we will give The Gazette, the Twentieth Century Home and Farm and the St. Paul Weekly Dispatch, and for every dollar paid in advance will give besides one chance on a $75 dollar Old Hickory wagon. The wagon is brand new, and can now be seen at Joseph Helm's implement house. The chance does not cost you a cent. For your dollar we give three first-class papers, and make you a present of a chance on a wagon, one that the winner will have cause to be proud of.

This wagon was purchased outright from Joseph Helm, and a number, unknown to anyone, has been deposited in the First State Bank. When the chances have all been given away the bank people will draw out this number and open it, and the subscriber who has the corresponding number will win the wagon, or if preferred a buggy of equal value.

There is no limit to the number of chances you can secure, as for each year paid in advance the three papers and one ticket will be given.

Call in at once, as the number of tickets will be limited, and you cannot afford to let this chance go by. Tell your neighbor about it.

Let Us Hope So.

Crookston Journal: "Winter cannot last more than a few weeks longer said an old time resident to a Journal man yesterday. "The arrival of March 10th and at the latest St. Patrick's day will bring about thaws and warm weather. The present winter has been cold and rugged but the residents of the valley have not suffered. They are healthy, sound and prosperous. Beyond the purchasing of a considerable additional amount of coal and fuel and the resultant additions to the pockets of the coal men no serious results have occured. Ground hog day this year whether the old adage is a true one or not was a correct prophesier as the past few weeks of cold weather have proved. I thing however that we will be soon in the midst of spring freshets mud and slush, when the valley will be the prettiest spot on earth."

C. A. MITCHELL SPEAKS.

Leading Minnesota Republican Talks Regarding Dunn.

C. S. Mitchell of the Minnesota World's Fair commission, in an interview in the Poineer Press of Monday said of the reports that he will resign to take part in Mr. Dunn's campaign: "The reports were not wholly untrue, but were misleading I do not like to break into print but I am and always was an ardent admirer and supporter of Mr, Dunn. I believe that on his record he is entitled to the nomination, and I have always been ready at any time to do all in my power to help him get it. That I was ever asked, however, or expected to take charge of his headquarters and manage his campaign was rather absurd, as Mr. Dunn will manage his campaing himself. This has always been his custom, and it is a good one, for he will owe his nomination wholly to himself and to the loyalty of his thousands of friends throughout the State and not to any person or small group of persons. He needs no manager. Moreover, he has no headquarters.

"My work with the State board for the world's fair is such that I could not leave it at this time, however, much I might wish to, in justice to the members of the board who have given me their confidence and have the first right to my services. If however I can at any time leave this work and Mr. Dunn needs me I am certainly at his service. And moreover, whatever I may do, when the campaign is over, Mr. Dunn will be under no more obligation to me than to any one of the others in every county who are freely giving him every assistance possible in his candidacy. His support does not anywhere come from a hope of reward other than his nomination will bring

"Every one who knows him likes 'Bob' Dunn, and has absolute confidence in his fearlessness, his honesty and his absolute fairness. He has more ardent fighting friends than any other one man in the State with the exception of Senator Nelson When a man's own townspeople will do what the citizens of Princeton have done for Mr. Dunn, he has very little need for managers or headquarters in a political campaign As things look now, it seems to be another Japanese-Russian affair, with Bob in the role of the mikado and the sympathies of the people are divided in about that proportion. I hope and believe that the convention will simply make it unanimous.

"All the candidates are my friends but I consider this as Mr. Dunn's turn. Judge Collins has been repeatedly honored by the party, having been county attorney, member of the legislature and district judge and as justice to the supreme court held the highest office and the greatest honor the State can give a man in his profession. Mr. Dunn was always his personal friend and political supporter, and it is my feeling that he has no occasion at this time to resign the office to which he was elected to fill, to stir up a bitter conflict in the party that had so honored him. Personal ambition is well enough, but party loyalty and the State's good are, to my notion, much more admirable qualities."

TO SURVEY THE ROUTE.

Engineer George Ralph and Surveyors Working On New Ditch.

Crookston Times: Engineer Geo. Ralph with a crew of surveyors left last evening for Lambert near where the survey will be started for what will be known as the Judicial No. 4 which will connect Lost and Clearwater rivers, and will be part in Red Lake and part in Polk counties. The work will probably take a couple of weeks. Alex Johnson, J. A. McPhaul, G, W. Roberts, Will Phalen and Earl Ralph compose the crew that will do the work.

Mr. Ralph stated that all the office work had been finished and the office force laid off for a few weeks till business picks up some. This will probably take place in April.

In his office a complete statement as to the cost of construction and operation of ditches NO. 1 to 49 is about ready for publication.

The Growls of a Grizzled Bachelor.

Man proposes and woman forecloses.

Too many men with unbleached incomes marry women with hemstitched aspirations.

Marriages are made in heaven. The wise bachelor is content to wait until he gets there.

Whenever I hear a man boasting that his wife made him all that he is I wonder how many men will confess that their wives have unmade them all that they ain't.

The husband of the average hawk billed, deep-voiced reformer is perpetually whitecapped by his wife, until it is natural with him to be so thin that when he eats cranberries they stick out like buttons on his vest.

We are told that married men live longer than single ones. Out in Indiana there is a bachelor who is one hundred and seventeen years old. Possibly he would have lived no longer had he been married, but it is a safe wager that he would have been so much thinner he'd have looked longer.—March Woman's Home Companion.

The Conductor.

Conductor Warren of the C. & N. W. R. R. says: "I had been suffering with a severe cold for several days, and was so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. Nov. 16, I met one of Dr. Warner's agents on my train, he handed me a bottle of the White Wine of Tar Syrup, and one hour after taking the first dose my hoarseness commenced leaving me. In twenty four hours my voice was quite clear and natural the cold nearly cured. It is the best remedy I ever saw. A. L. Reichert.

INSTALL MODERN PROTECTION PLAN

First State Bank Provides For the Safety of Its Cash Box and Valuables of its Patrons.

The First State Bank this week installed a modern convenience that will mean much to the bank and its patrons, and which pratically eliminates any danger of loss through burglary.

The system is the one made by the American Bank Protection company, and it is hard to conceive of anything that could do the work in the manner in which this does.

The entire vault is covered with a double steel lining, the sheets being separated by a fraction of an inch, and the whole interior is heavily charged with electricity, so that a simple touch of practically any part of the vault immediately sets the several large gongs going, and creates a general alarm. The gongs are connected with invisible wires, but were it possible to get at the wire connections, the minute they were moved the alarm bells would commence their work of "raising the dead."

The electrical apparatus is complicated, yet does its work in a manner to create wonder to one who sees it. The mechanism is controlled by clock work, and during the hours which the alarms are set if any part of the vault is tampered with it not only sets the gongs going, but a tiny drop will show just where the trouble started.

With this system, the forgetfulness of a bank employee will cause a general alarm if not noticed, and prevents any carelessness on the part of those connected with the vault. If Assistant Cashier Wyer should go home and leave the vault down wide open, which is not at all probable, at a certain hour the whole system would be set in motion, and the din would be a reminder that something was wrong, while the electric drop would show what was amiss.

The system is so complete that it is absolutely impossible to tamper with any part of the vault without causing an alarm that would in the dead of the night awake a hundred people in a very few moments, and burglary could not be accomplished even with the use of dynamite before the public would be on hand to capture those attempting it.

To one unfamiliar with the system it is hard to convey an idea of its working, but the bank people are pleased to show their patrons how the thing operates, and it is certainly worth any one's while to look it over.

The First State Bank is a modern institution, and their efforts to provide the best that is going for their customers will be greatly appreciated.

THIEF RIVER BLAZE.

Several Buildings Go Up In Smoke Last Saturday.

Thief River Falls experienced a disastrous fire last Saturday morning, at which time five frame buildings were consumed and the firemen had hard work to save a large part of the business section. The fire started at Koening's bowling alley and destroyed that building, John Morgan's saloon, the Curtis drug store, C. J. Knox's office, K. M. Hansen's office and the building occupied by Pat Roark's saloon.

Most of the contents of the buildings were saved, and the losses are not large.

Plans are under way to erect modern brick buildings on the sites of the destroyed ones.

Washington School Notes.

By fifth and sixth grades.

We hope we have another spell-down

Carl Buse was absent a few days last week.

The fifth and sixth grade boys built a snow fort last week.

The tri-yearly examinations began Wednesday. We wish to win both of the banners.

We invited the third and fourth grades of room three to attend our program last Friday.

The fifth and sixth grades had their regular examination last Friday for the month of February.

The sixth grade had an experiment on oxygen and carbonic acid gas in reading class Wednesday.

The teacher was not well pleased with the results of the regular monthly examinations last week.

Candy was spied in one of the pupil's desks, which attracted the attention of some other pupils during school hours.

Nine of the scholars were late last week. The reason for their tardiness was that they were playing on the ice until the last bell rang.

If the fifth and sixth grades of the Washington school win the banners this term we are to have a celebration; so all the pupils are working hard.

The fifth and sixth grades gave a program last Friday and it was very successful. There were present seventeen grown people and six young ladies from the high school.

The pupils of the second room gave a program Feb. 26. The first room was invited in. All the children seemed to enjoy the exercise. Many visitors were present.

The Minerva Literary society gave the following program last Friday.

Thought to be in the Last Stages of Consumption.

Mrs. Minerva Burgees, of Byars, Ill., says: I have just received the White Wine of Tar. We think there is no medicine like it. It cured me when I was thought to be in the last stages of consumption. I will always recommend it to those that have any disease of the lungs. A. L. Reichert.

PLEASED WITH IT: Those who try our high grade "Gold Seal" flour pronounce it the best they ever used. It is especially excellent for biscuits pies, and other delicacies, and when used for bread, it pleases all the family.

DEAD AT AGE OF 111

OLDEST WOMAN IN MINNESOTA PASSES AWAY AFTER REMARKABLE CAREER.

Fayal Iron Mine at Eveleth Leads the World in Ore Production—Business Section of Brainerd Experiences Disastrous Fire—Thieves Make Rich Haul in Minneapolis Jewelry Store. General State News.

Le Sueur, Minn., Feb. 29.—Mrs. Pureheart Wakeley is dead of pneumonia at her home in Sharon, this county, and by her death undoubtedly the oldest woman of Minnesota has been removed from the scene of her remarkable life.

Mrs. Wakeley was 111 years of age. Despite the fact that she was married three times and became the mother of fourteen children yet all of her husbands, relatives and descendants died before she did.

Her life's experiences were remarkable. Three months before her birth, on July 3, 1793, her father, who was one of the imperial guards of the person of the dauphin of France, was killed by the Jacobin shoemaker, Antoine Simon, to whom the young prince was given in charge by the revolutionists. Her mother, who was English by birth, fled to England and died in giving birth to her only child, whom a distant English relative named Pureheart. Her father's name was Isidore Dumontiez.

At the age of sixteen Pureheart Dumontiez was married to a captain in the English army, who, two years later, was killed at the battle of Waterloo. The young widow came to the United States with a party of immigrants and, four years later, married a man named Edward Gray, who enlisted in the army and was the first American soldier killed by the Mexicans in the first attack upon the City of Mexico. She went to California with a large party of goldseekers in 1850 and there, in 1860, married Oscar Wakeley, a successful miner.

Two years later the Wakeleys removed from California to Johnstown, Pa., where all of their numerous descendants lived and where forty-three members of the family, being all of them except Mrs. Wakeley and one son, were destroyed in the flood of May 31, 1889. With this son Mrs. Wakeley came to this county and here she bought a large farm in Sharon township. Six years later they rented the farm and moved to Galveston, Tex., where the son lost his life in the storm and tidal wave that overwhelmed that city. Mrs. Wakeley escaped and came back to the farm here, where she resided till her death.

FAYAL IRON MINE LEADS WORLD

Minnesota Property Holds Record for Size of Output.

Duluth, Feb. 27.—Eveleth citizens find much to interest them in comparing the statistics issued concerning the output of iron ore from the Mesabo and Vermillion as well as from the other Lake Superior ranges for the season of 1903 and previous years.

The Fayal mine sustains, without even an approach on the part of any competitor, the reputation of being the greatest producer of iron ore in the world. Since 1899 this property of the United States Steel corporation has each year made the record for one property in the matter of iron ore production, and including that season the mark has been in excess of 1,000,000 tons per yearly shipments.

The total production and shipment of this property in the nine seasons has reached 7,865,625 tons. The record year was in 1902, when 1,919,172 tons were forwarded. In 1903, according to figures recently made obtainable, the shipments amounted to 1,460,601 tons.

BAD FIRE AT BRAINERD.

Business Section of the Minnesota City Suffers Heavy Loss.

Brainerd, Minn., Feb. 26.—Brainerd was last night visited by a devastating fire in the heart of the business center, entailing losses approximating $100,000; about two-thirds insured. Some of the leading business places were entirely destroyed, including large stocks of goods.

The Cale block caught fire after the flames were thought to be under control and was damaged to the extent of $25,000. The losses in the Koop building aggregates $75,000.

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE.

Annual Report of the Minnesota Commissioner.

St. Paul, Feb. 25.—E. H. Dearth, insurance commissioner, will investigate the reasons for the falling off in the marine insurance business in Minnesota in 1903 as compared with 1902, which is shown in the advanced sheets of his annual report just issued. The amount of marine risks written decreased from $117,442,032 in 1902 to $84,336,616 in 1903. Mr Dearth says that he is at a loss to explain this decrease and he will make an investigation.

There was a considerable increase in the amount of fire insurance business, both that transacted by American and foreign companies. The greatest increase is in the mutual fire companies, which wrote $15,706,544 in 1903 as compared with $13,984,419 in 1902.

JAMES S. O'BRIEN DEAD.

Deceased was one of Stillwater's most influential residents. He was well known throughout the United States by reason of his long and intimate connection with the turf. He retired from racing last summer to devote his attention to logging. Deceased was some years ago state senator, surveyor general of logs and lumber, and he served a term as member of the board of prison managers. He was fifty-six years old.

The Pantry Shelves.

The old fashion of covering pantry shelves with paper has fallen into disfavor. In fact, the custom was questionable from a sanitary point of view, as any one may know who has ever changed the paper coverings and observed the amount of dirt they managed to accumulate in a short time. Pantry shelves should be painted with several coats of white paint or covered with white oilcloth. Either plan is good, and the shelves may be scrubbed as often as necessary.

Washing Sleevelets.

To save your dresses provide yourself with washing sleevelets to slip over your dress sleeves when you are dusting or doing other household work. The easiest pattern is just a straight piece of stuff run together and hemmed at the top and bottom. Into the hems run elastic. When you find how quickly the sleevelets become soiled you will realize how much they save your gowns.

Fashion Hint For Mother.

"I don't pay much attention to hats," said Mr. Nason to his wife, "but I saw one on the train today that was very tasteful and becoming, and I thought to myself, 'I'll tell Sally about that hat, and perhaps she'll have one like it.'"

"Now describe it, Cyrus," said Mrs. Nason, her rubicund face alight with interest and pleasure. "Since the girls married and went off there's been nobody to pay much attention to my hats."

"Well," said Mr. Nason slowly, "it was a kind of a curious shape, very large and flat on the crown, except that there was some sort of bunches sticking up here and there. The brim was wide and kind of floppy on one side, and the other side was tied back some way in two places with some scarlet ribbon. I guess, come to think of it, 'twas what you'd call magenta. Then there were flowers springing round the brim in different places, white and pink, and some sprays of green leaves that fell over the edge, and I recollect seeing some berries here and there.

"But the best thing of all was a large white bow that waved around. It looked so—so careless and easy. It just gave the finishing touch."

"I should think it would have." And Mrs. Nason's tone was dry enough to dishearten a less enthusiastic person. "How old should you say the woman was?"

"Oh, she wasn't exactly a woman—didn't happen to be—the one who had it on," said Mr. Nason ingenuously. "She was—well, she might have been fifteen maybe."—Youth's Companion.

Woodcock and Snipe.

There is quite a long list of birds known as snipe, but the one most commonly regarded as the snipe is the Wilson snipe (Gallinago delicata).

There is only one American bird called woodcock. This (Philohela minor) is entirely distinct from the various snipe, yet is of similar appearance. From this resemblance, or snipelike appearance, the woodcock is incorrectly named (or perhaps we ought to say nicknamed) blind snipe, wall eyed snipe, mud snipe, big headed snipe, wood snipe, whistling snipe, etc. The various true snipe, the one woodcock (not really a snipe, but resembling them) and various sandpipers that also have long bills and bore in the mud all belong to one family (scolopacidæ).

All these birds have somewhat similar appearance and habits. They frequent lowlands or plowed lands, such as cornfields, where the soil is soft, so that they can use their long bills in probing for worms or insects, etc. The Wilson snipe is smaller, trimmer of figure and a better flier than the woodcock.—St. Nicholas.

Fortunes In Picture Frames.

Some splendid picture frames may be seen every year at the Royal academy exhibition, but the finest and costliest frame ever made for a picture was that which incloses the "Virgin and Child" in Milan cathedral. It is made of hammered gold, with an inner molding of lapis lazuli. The corners of this valuable frame have hearts designed in large pearls and precious stones. Some idea of its value may be gained when it is stated that the frame is eight feet long and six feet wide. Its estimated worth is £25,000. One of the pictures in the Vatican at Rome is in a frame studded with jewels. The picture is a valuable one, but the frame nearly equals the value of the painting.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN

NEWS OF THE WEEK

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

At about 1 o'clock Wednesday morning the Japanese made a desperate attempt to block the entrance of the inner harbor and dock at Port Arthur. With this object four merchant steamers, accompanied by torpedo vessels, were sent from two sides toward the entrance of the channel. This movement was perceived by the Retvizan, which was lying in the channel and which opened fire immediately. At the same time the guns of the forts on the Tiger peninsula, Golden hill and Electric cliff were turned upon the enemy and furious cannonading ensued, lasting until 5 in the morning. Then the firing slackened and became desultory. The Japanese had failed to effect their purpose.

Vladivostock has been blockaded by a Japanese fleet since Thursday, according to a London Daily Mail dispatch from Hakodate, which adds that incoming steamers report Russian cruisers on the east coast of Kinkwasan, in the bay of Sendai, Japan. Japanese warships have been reported in the vicinity of Vladivostock, but this report of a blockade, although considered probable, has not yet been confirmed from other sources.

Dispatches from Vladivostock and Newchwang state that the Japanese are preparing to attack Vladivostock in force. A large Japanese fleet has been seen cruising outside the harbor, evidently waiting to strike a blow at the Russians and co-operate with land forces in an attack upon the city. The fleet is composed of several battleships, cruisers and torpedo boats.

An American refugee from Harbin says the authorities there have discriminated in the expulsion of Americans, Japanese and British subjects. Persons of other nationalities have not been molested! This is virtually the situation at other places, especially Port Arthur, where nearly all the Germans are officials.

Native reports that the Japanese landed at Possiet bay, about seventy-five miles southwest of Vladivostock, and subsequently undertook operations against Hunchum and toward Kirin, Manchuria, have received qualified confirmation from English missionary refugees who have arrived at Newchwang.

Russia will ignore Japan's newly negotiated treaty with Korea guaranteeing the integrity and independence of the Hermit kingdom and has so informed the United States. Japan, it is stated, assumed practically the same indifference of attitude towards Russia's protest to the powers.

Details of a skirmish at Pingyang, Korea, show that fifty Russian cavalrymen approached the north gate of the Japanese camp and fired at 1,000 metres. A sharp fusillade took place and the Russians retired. All foreigners are safe. The fight took place on the morning of Feb. 28.

Private advices from Newchwang confirm the reports of the rough treatment of Japanese refugees at the hands of Russians while they were journeying through Manchuria and declare, moreover, that doubtlessly some of the refugees were murdered.

It is now said that the Russian Baltic squadron, comprising eight battleships, two armored cruisers, three protected cruisers, two large transports and thirty torpedo boats, will leave for the Far East at the end of June.

A London dispatch from Tokio explains the recent suspension of Japanese naval activity to have been due chiefly to bad weather in the gulf of Pechili, where there have been heavy winds, snowstorms and fogs.

A report to Paris from Port Arthur says the Japanese have dethroned the emperor of Korea and annexed the country. It is claimed that France, on behalf of Russia, has purchased the entire Chilean navy.

Following the dispatch from Major General Pflug saying the Japanese had again attacked Port Arthur Thursday morning and been repulsed Viceroy Alexieff has sent in an identical report to the czar.

The Japanese government has seized 670 tons of mess beef which was shipped from San Francisco on the steamer Korea, Feb. 2, and which was consigned to the Russian government at Vladivostock.

It is apparent that the Japanese are in full control of the Korean coast, and that they will strike whenever it seems to their advantage to do so.

The report is confirmed that seventy miles of railroad track and some important bridges have been destroyed between Harbin and Vladivostock.

Cabling from Chefoo on Feb. 23, a correspondent of the Morning Post says 40,000 more Japanese troops have landed at Chemulpo.

Three Japanese officers captured by the Russians while trying to blow up a railway bridge in Manchuria were promptly hanged.

Trains of twelve cars, each with eighty soldiers aboard, are now arriving frequently at Port Arthur.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Secretary Hay and Minister Bunau-Varilla have exchanged ratifications of the Panama canal treaty. This exchange marks the close of diplomatic negotiations looking to the acquirement by the United States of canal rights on the isthmus running back to the first quarter of the last century. What remains to be done now is nothing more than the adjustment of certain legal questions by the law officers of this government—the state department has filled its functions.

The orders of Edwin V. Morgan, appointed and confirmed as American consul to Dalny, to proceed to that port have been suspended. Mr. Morgan will not proceed until he has received further orders from Washington. There is no present intention of trying to force Mr. Morgan upon the Russian government.

The Russian note complaining of the violation of Korean neutrality by Japan is believed in Washington to be intended to pave the way for future heavy reclamations, indeed involving the seizure of Korea and its annexation for violation of neutrality in the event that Russia triumphs in the present struggle.

The war department has issued orders for the entire Third regiment of infantry to proceed to the Isthmus of Panama. The regiment will leave at the earliest possible time on the transports Sumner and McClelland from New York. The regiment is going to Panama to relieve the marines stationed there.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, has handed Secretary Hay Russia's communication to the powers protesting against Japan's alleged violation of international law.

Secretary Hay has received information that Japan has negotiated a treaty with Korea whereby she guarantees the independence and integrity of Korea.

CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS.

The United States senate Tuesday ratified without amendment the treaty with Panama for a canal across the isthmus of that name by a vote of 66 to 14. The only other vote was on the amendment offered by Senator Bacon, providing for an arrangement to compensate Colombia for loss of the territory of Panama. This was rejected by a vote of 24 to 49.

The house has passed the naval appropriation bill.

PHILIPPINE NEWS.

Legislation authorizing the Philippine government to execute an executive guarantee of 4 per cent per annum on $40,000,000 of bonds for railroad construction in those islands is to be introduced in the house shortly by Chairman Cooper of the house committee on insular affairs.

IS FOR DUNN.

The Ada index, easily one of tbe foremost Republican papers of the Northern Minnisota, came out for Bob Dunn for governor in its last week's issue, and gives excellent reasons for so doing. The Index editor has heen close to Republican headquarters in Minnesota for a great many years, and if tbere was any truth in all these charges against Mr. Dunn, made by the Collins machine, Editor Ligbtbourn would surely know something about tbem, and his support would not be thrown to the Princeton statesman. The Index gives the following reasons for its support:

"During all of Mr. Dunn's official life we found him to he upright and honorable and one of the most faithful aod capahle state auditors the state of Minnesota has ever had. A man of an unusual energy and character. One who has done something and has a record to stand on that the people of this state can and do point with pride. While Auditor Mr. Dunn saved the state $400,000 in land in the settlement of the Little Falls & Dakota Railroad land grant. He forced the Great Northern Ry. Co. to accept the lands in the Biermann deed and by this placed them oo the tax roll and the state reaped the benefit of the tax. He increased the taxes of the mining companies of this state from $25,000 to $800,000 and by his work the state school fund was increased to $4,800,000. He saved the state $80,000 by declining to pay the beet sugar bounty and hy remodeling the state printing law the state saved $50,000 the first year and is doing so today. He never deprived an actual settler of his home and right here in Norman county we have many of the early settlers who can testify to this. The above are but a few of the acts of Mr. Dunn, while state Auditor. His official career is an open hook and it is with the assurance that if nominated and elected to fill the high position he aspires, that the same fearlessness that has characterized his official actions in the past will prevail while as governor of this great state, that the Index enrolls itself among the numerous supporter of Bob Dunn, of Princeton, for governor."

The action of Puhlic Examiner Johnson in asking for the resignation of Depnty Puhlic Examiner Gunders is hardly warranted when the manner in which Mr. Johnson has conducted the office is recalled, says the Crookston Times. Mr. Gunders is accused of writing a letter to R. C. Dunn in which he said that nothing was unearthed in the examination made into the affairs of the office of state auditor. The letter was of a friendly and personal nature, hut Mr. Dunn saw fit to pubiish it, and Mr. Gunders was called upon the carpet for giving out information that should have first been placed in the hands of the governor. This was not a fault, when Mr. Johnson was examining into tne affairs of Polk county a year ago. Then he himself caused to be published not only the charges found, but announced in advance of their issuance that indictments had heen returned. It is an instance where circumstances alter cases.

The Crookston Journal has made rapid strides along the improvement lines during the past month and is one of the best papers in Minnesota at present. Its news service is highly appreciated by the peopie of the Valley, and the continued improvements are pleasing revelations.

A CRY FROM THE HEART.

Booker Washington's cry for tbe granting of the hare elements of justice to accused criminals of his race should pierce deep into the consciousness of tbe people of tbis country. Three negroes—one a woman—burned at the stake witbout trial or proof of guilt in a single fortnight, should be cause enough, even withont Mr. Washington's appeal, for the arousing of a "puhlic sentiment that will compel the mob to cease insulting our courts, our government and our legal authority, cease bringing shame and ridicule upon our Christian civilization."

Horribe as the recent record is, there exist nevertheless facts which relieve it in some degree, which give ground for hope that hetter things may come. In several of the southern sates the governors have set themselves seriously to tbe task of superseding lynchings hy speedy trials in court. A week or so ago the Governor of Virginia used troops to insure tbe legal trial of a negro guilty of an atrocious assault, while even as Mr. Washington was writing the Governor of Mississippi was personally directing the militia called out to proiect a negro murderer says the Chicago Record Herald.

The statistics of lynchings show that the crime is decidedly on the decrease. In the ten years 1885-1894 the average yearly numher of lynchings was 170. In the nine years since then the average has heen hut 128. Still more significant is the decrease during the last decade. For the years 1894-98 there were on the average 157 lynchings a year. For the years 1899-1903 the average has been hut 111.

The worst recent tendencies have heen that hurning at the stake is superseding hanging or shooting, and the northern states have been invaded hy the moh passion in its worst forms. Both of tnese tendencies should roughly suppressed, without waiting for the permanent resolution of tbe South's problem of order and safety.

Meantime the apologists for lyncbing in any form will do well to fasten securely in their minds the fact to which Mr. Wfishington calls attention that not one of the three recent burnings at the stake was for an assault upon a woman—the offsense so frequently and sc falsely referred to as the "usual crime."

Politics don't cut any great figure in the Minnesoia Editorial Association. Probably three-fourths of the editors are republicans, and yet hoth the president and vice-president are democrats. This honor is all that the democratic editors of this state have to look forward to, so it is well enough to keep them in good humor, says the Thief River Press.

Editor Bagley, of the Thief River Press, is planning to install a new press and engine, and make his office thoroughly up to date. Syd is giving the people of Thief River a newspaper that deserves to he supported to the fullest extent, and the boys of Northern Minnesota are glad to learn of his increasing success.

An exchange contains the following bit of philosophy: When a hog gets an ear of corn all the other hogs will trot along behind and beg, and are ready for a bite, but just let tbat hog get bis head fast in a crack and every son of a sow will jump on him and help tear him to pieces. Just so it is with men. As long as one is prosperous, has money, he can't keep his friends off with a base ball bat. The moment he is unfortunate and his wealth gone he is not only snuhbed by his former friends, but they hegin to do bim all the harm possible. When a man starts down the grade tbe world steps aside and greases the track.

Editor H. J. Miller, of the Luverne Herald, is a candidate for the nomination of congressman in the Second district, against Congressman McCleary. Brother Miller is one of Minnesota's ahlest statemen and the "iittle schoolmaster" of the second district wtll have to fight hard if he holds onto his joh tbis year. The congressional race in the Second promises to wax warm and interesting 'ere the campaign closes.

It is rumored that Judge E. A. Jaggard of the district court of Ramsey county will hecome a candidate for the supreme bench, says the Crookston Times. Judge Jaggard is one of the brightest young lawyers in the northwest and although a man of modest disposition and retiring nature he is a polished scholar and champion of the right. As a judge he has few equals and no superiors in the state of Minnesota.

The Thief River Press says that Wiley Tindolph of that city has announced that he is in line as a candidate to go to Chicago as a delegate to the national convention. Mr. Tindoldh is a good repuhlicon and is able to hold bis own wherever he may be placed. He should reneive strong endorsement from this section of the 9th district, where he is well known as an able man and a hustler.

The Gazette neglected to mention last week that Red Lake Falls had heen honored hy the selection of one of her citizens to an office in a strong association. At the meeting of the State Editorial association at Minneapolis, John E. King of this city, was elected to the first vice-presidency. Red Lake Falls people join with The Gazette in extending congratulasions.

The reading public of the community have at hand something that is hardly appreciated as it should be, in the up-to-date and complete news-stand at Reichert's drug store. There is but a very small margin of profit in handling magazines and novels of this sort, and many times losses are sustained in disposing of the stock. Mr. Reichert keeps the department up to the higest standard, however, and there are not many towns of this size fortunate enough to have a place where all the world's publications can be secured. Charles Tschida, the Fertile cigar manufacturer who spent Monday in the city, says that the Fertile brick and tile plant will begin operations in a few days or at least expects to if the weather is favorable. The plant has been very successful during the first year of its existence and during the coming summer expect to turn out the full capacity of the plant.

A party of young people, chaperoned by David Laurent, drove out to Badger last Sunday night to attend a basket social given by the cooking club of that place in honor of a certain young gentleman there. The young man heard of the proposed attack in some manner or other and decided to make himself scarce, so the young folks repaired to another home and spent the evening.

Mitchell LaPlante, of Wyandotte, was brought before Junge Tarrant Monday to be examined as to his sanity. Drs. Watson and Wilkinson made the examination and decided that the patient was not insane, but recommended that a guardian be appointed to care for his interests. His brother, Hubert, was appointed by the court to take charge of the unfortunate man's affairs.

The local passenger train has a new conductor every day, but as the Great Northern "cons" are all handsome and accomplished fellows, the general public will still have the best of care on the T line. Conductors Withey, Spears and Lockman have the run alternately, each bringing the train in two days a week. The new daylight train to the cities necessitated this change, and under the present arrangement the conductors take turns in running the new train from Crookston to Barnesville.

The warm weather of Monday and Tuesday, brought a large number of people in from the country to replenish their larders, and do other business that has posponed on account of the sever weather. The sroies and other business places report an excellent business on both days.

County Auditor Ford reports that a number of the town clerks have a wrong impression of an election law passed by the last legislature, which provides that common school districts comprising twenty or more towns must elect a superintendent of schools. This law was passed to cover a contingency in Cass county and does not in any way apply to Red Lake or adjoining counties.

As an evidence that the times will ease up rapidly with the coming spring, and money be more plentiful a leading merchant of Red Lake Falls told a Gazette reporter that Monday's sales greatly exceeded those of the coresponding date last year. The hard winter now passing has brought business to a stand-still in the valley but with the advent of the glorious springtime we can look for a prosperous era.

Twin Valley Times: Three years ago Gov. Van Sant sent three beavers to the Itasca state park. Since that time these beavers and their progeny have built three large dams in the park which put man's ingenuity to shame. The largest of the dams is 150 feet long and five feet high, with four feet of head-water. If they only could be domesticated and trained to build where wanted, the animals would be very useful and convenient to have around.

Crookston Times: Residents of that portion of the Maple Lake resort lying across the bay from the hotel, are to have an accommodation this year which they will appreciate. The property in that locality is owned by Max Ericsson except such as he has already sold, and he has decided to build a bridge extending across the bay where the hotel docks are situated. This will enable those having cottages across the stretch of water to reach them after going down from Mentor without taking a boat, and will also enable Mr. Ericsson to dispose of lots to parites who were pleased with their location but whose objection was based upon the the fact that they could be reached from the hotel, only by taking a boat. The building sites on the property made more accessible by the bridges are among the choicest on the lake shore. The contract for the bridge has been let and it will be put in while the work of driving piles can be done upon the ice.

Crookston Times: Allan Wood, the Thief River Falls machine man who during his number of years of business life in the valley has made many friends, came down last evening accompanied by his family on his way to St Paul, where he will in the future reside. He has severed his connection with the machine firm of Murphy & Wood, and it is understood will accept a very flattering position in St. Paul.

Crookston Times: Dr. J. C. Cummings, of St. Hilaire spent the night in the city and this morning met Mrs. Cummings and daughter of Minneapolis, and all proceeded to St. Hilaire. Dr. Cummings has decided that there is a good opening there for a hospital and he will proceed to start one as soon as possible. The field seems to be a good one, and the step will probably be successful, even though the more serious cases will be brought to this city for treatment.

Mail carrier Sorenson, of the Lambert-Red Lake Falls line, tells The Gazette that an order has been issued from the department requiring that he take the north road from Terrebonne on the trip to Red Lake Falls and the south road on the outgoing trip. As the law provides that any one living along the route may have their mail delivered free, who will put up a box and notify the postmistress, this will practically make two rural mail routes out of Red Lake Falls. The service should be appreciated by the people along the lines.

A jury trial was held before Justice S. L. Lewis Tuesday, and occupied most of the day. The suit was instituted by John Deforge to recover costs alleged to be due from Matt Skala, and was the result of a dispute last fall. Forty-nine of Skala's hogs atrayed into the Schmitz property, and Mr. Schmitz immedatley penned them up and called Poundmaster Deforge to take them in charge. While the pound master came for a conveyance to bring them to the pound, Mr. Skala got out papers and replevined them, and refused to pay the claim of $1 per head allowed by law for each empounded animal. The case was spiritedly fought and after deliberating the jury brought in a verdict for $10 and costs for the claimant, Deforge. Attorneys Boughton, McIntyre and Grady represented the several principals.

Two traveling men got off the train at Thief River Falls recently. The young one asked the other—who was old—"where are you going?" "To heaven, and I have been on the road twenty-five years" he replied. "Well, if you are going to heaven, and have got no further than Thief River you are surely on the wrong road" remarked traveling man number one.

Judge Watts denied the motion of the Crookston lumber company in the case of Iver Johnson vs. the Crookston Lumber company for a new trail. The case comes from St. Hilaire, and Mr. Johnson alleges that the lumber company hired him for the season and then discharged him without cause. At the fall term of court here a judgment for $200 was obtained and this amount will have to be paid by the Lumber company.

About the heaviest snow storm and nearest approach to a genuine Minnesota blizzard that we have had to contend with during this memorable winter, struck this section yesterday morning, and until late last evening created havoc with anyone bold enough to venture out. The sun came out beautifully clear this morning, however, and if you haven't ordered a boat for use this spring there is yet time.

The pen with which President Roosevelt signed the Red Lake land bill will be presented to Thief River Falls, Minn., and will hang in the city hall of that municipality. Representative Steenerson, who introduced the measure in the house, and has been indefatigable in his efforts to have it enacted into a law called at the White House and was presented with the pen and holder which the president used in signing the bill.

Dr. J. B. McNerthney arrived Monday from Tacoma, Washington; and remained a day or two with his many Red Lake Falls friends. He is on his way to New York city, where he will spend the next several weeks taking a post-graduate course at a leading medical college. The Doctor reports his parents and folks well and prospering, and says that the balance of the Red Lake Falls colony located in Tacoma are greatly pleased with their surroundings. He will probably stop off here a day or two on his return.

Crookston Times: D. A. McIntosh of Milwaukee and P. Paulson of Minneapolis were over the proposed line of the Soo road between McIntosh, Erskine and Thief River Falls last week. The men were estimating for the contracters who propose to bid on the work of construction and it is understood that men in the employ of Foley Bros. are also over the line on the same business. This to the people out east is an indication that the company is still undecided upon whether the line will run through McIntosh or Erskine. Each place hopes it will find itself on the line when it is built.

Mr. and Mrs. Con Short were in from Equality Monday and on Tuesday Mr. Short took the train for Seattle, from where he will embark on the long journey to Dawson, Alaska. The journey will occupy the best part of twenty days, and at this season of the year isn't one that would create a longing in everyone to take. By boat to Skagway, and from there a 500 mile stage ride across the country is not the most pleasing proposition in the world, but as Mr. Short has made the trip so many times little things like that don't concern him much. Near Dawson are Mr. Short's mining interests and it is his intention to spend a greater part of the summer looking after his affairs. He will, if feasible, dispose of this mining property this year and when he returns in the fall will be prepared to make his permanent home here. He has many friends in Red Lake county who will hope that he may enjoy a prosperous season and return safe and sound when the work is over.

Crookston Journal: Rev. D. A. McKenzie is due at Red Lake Falls this evening, to assist Rev. H. W. Knox, pastor of the Presbyterian church, in a series of evangelistic meetings. Mr Knox has recently been transferred from Thief River Falls to take charge at Red Lake Falls. His work has begun under favorable circumstances, and he proposes to inaugurate his pastorate with a short series of uplifting services.

It will pay you big to have your sale bills printed at the Gazette office. The prices are always as low as the lowest for good work and a notice of your sale is inserted in the paper very cheaply. The notice is worth more to you than the price of the bills. If you want the people to know that you are going to have a sale it will be to your interest to have your bills printed at this office. Gazette sale bills are acknowledged to be the best.

Tuesday of this week the new rural free delivery service between Crookston and Gentilly was installed, with Seivert Peterson as the carrier. The route outgoing is on one side of the river, and returning is on the other side of the river. The country through which the route passes has been settled for many years, and the service will be greatly appreciated. The route is about 27 miles and the service will be daily.

The opinion prevails in some quarters that this unusually cold winter will mean an unusually heavy wheat crop next summer, says the Fergus Falls Journal. This opinion is not based on any superstition, but those who hold it argue that much of the wheat's growth is due to the frost coming out of the ground and keeping the roots moist. As a long, cold winter sends the frost deep into the earth it will naturally require longer to work out and the roots of the grain will be kept moist for a greater length of time. Other things being equal, there would seem to be better prospects for a good crop after a cold winter than a mild one.

WIGWAG'S FATE

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

We were heading off the Indians as they raided the Kansas frontier when we found Wigwag concealed in the willows along the banks of a creek. He was a boy of twelve, and his father, mother and two sisters had been massacred. He was handed over to a teamster and taken to Camp Supply, and but for the excitement of campaigning he would have been sent off somewhere soon. As it was, he hung about with the teamsters for several weeks, no one giving him any particular attention, and then a sutler took him on. Wigwag was not enthusiastic over horses, guns or uniforms; but, queerly enough, he took to the signal corps. From the first moment he saw the men talking with each other through the medium of the signal flag his admiration was excited, and he began to pick up the system. He got little encouragement from any one, as all had enough to see to, but the lad had a head for the work, and he picked it up until within four or five months his flags could "talk" as well as any.

Spring came, and we set off 600 strong to give the Indians a rub. No one was greatly surprised after we had left the forty miles behind us to find Wigwag on hand. He had "jumped" the sutler, "lifted" a mule and followed after, and there was no sending him back. There wasn't a private soldier or teamster who wouldn't have shared rations with him, and such officers as knew of his presence winked at the breach of orders and said nothing. The boy had made signal flags for himself and had them with him, but they were looked upon as playthings by most of the troopers.

We swept across the valleys of the Big Fork and the Big Salt, scattering the hostiles whenever they made a stand, and at length crossed the Canadian river and forced the red men back on the Wichita mountains, down on the Indian Territory line. We had them on the run and meant to keep them going. Just at sundown one evening as we were almost under the shadow of the mountains Wigwag was cut off and captured. His mule had gone lame and was lagging behind. An effort was made to rescue him, but his captors got away with their prisoner, and many a heart sorrowed that night over the boy's fate. Our long and fierce pursuit had maddened the Indians, and they would certainly put their prisoners to the torture.

HE HAD CAUGHT SIGHT OF FLAGS WIGWAGGING IN THE CLEAR ATMOSPHERE.

In flanking the mountains the redskins must fall back through Trapper's pass in the foothills. We knew it to be a bushlike gorge, and at the south end it debouched upon the plains. We made camp within half a mile of the entrance of the pass, and every trooper knew that we had driven at least 2,000 warriors ahead of us. Would they continue their flight or wait for us on the plains beyond and have it out? The general idea was that the morrow would witness a big fight, and daylight had scarcely dawned after a night without alarm when our camp was astir. But for the Indians being too cute we should certainly have fallen into the trap they had set for us. We were almost ready for boots and saddles when a score of warriors came riding out of the pass to defy and taunt us. A troop was sent against them, and they retreated in haste, but as soon as the bugle blew recall the warriors were mocking us again. It was a scheme to get the entire command on the move and after them without having taken due precautions. It was so interpreted by the general, and he ordered a scout to climb up a spur of the mountain and see what could be seen. When the man had reached a height of 1,500 feet he signaled for a flagman to come up to him. Looking away to the south, he had caught sight of flags wigwagging in the clear atmosphere of the morning. The person waving them was stationed on another and higher spur, and for some time it was looked upon as a mysterious proceeding. The signal man had scarcely climbed up beside the scout when the mystery was solved. It was our Wigwag trying to open a "talk" with his flags. When his signals were answered he went at it and spelled out the words:

"I got up here in the night. Don't enter the pass. There are a thousand Indians in ambush there. The whole force is about 2,000 strong."

"Have you escaped?" asked our signalman.

"No, not yet," came the reply. "The Indians are below me, and I can climb no higher."

"Can't you get away to us before we move?"

"No, but I shall hide here until the Indians leave."

"What sort of an ambush have they prepared?"

"Indians in the bushes on both sides of the pass. If you ride in not a man will get out alive."

"Is there any other way to attack them?" was asked.

"I think I can make out a pass two or three miles to the left. If it is one it will bring you in behind the reds."

It took an hour or more to get this information, and then we acted on it and flanked the Indians out of the pass and smote them hip and thigh as they streamed out on the plain. When the fight was over we went up the pass to look for Wigwag, but our search was in vain. We found, however, that his flags had prevented a slaughter. Every rock and bush for two miles had sheltered an Indian, and once into the trap we could not have retreated. Though we had to ride away without news of the lad, we hourly hoped to be joined by him, but he did not come. It was a year later before we knew his fate. What we got came from one of the Indians who were there. The only good news was that they had not tortured the boy, being too busy with other affairs. In the night he had managed to cast off his bonds, work his way past scores of sleeping warriors with his flags under his arm, and, knowing that he could not pass out of the gorge, he had climbed up the mountain with the hope of opening communication with us when daylight came. This he successfully accomplished, and he had flagged the information recorded above before the excited Indians below had caught sight of him. When they saw what he was up to a warrior was told off to bring the boy down with a bullet. They feared to discharge more than one rifle at a time, as we might suspect some ruse. The warrior had a fair mark, though far above him, and he had coolly fired a score of times before his bullet found its billet. It seemed as if Providence was shielding the lad until he could tell all he had to say.

"Tell the general that the reds"— he had flagged. And then the white waft went down to rise no more. He had lost his own life, but he had saved 600 men from slaughter.

SIR JOHN SOANE'S WHIM.

The Practical Joke a Celebrated Man Played on Posterity.

One of the most famous of postmortem jokes was that perpetrated by the donor of the celebrated Soane museum of pictures and other valuable objets d'art to England, the late Sir John Soane, who died in 1837. In his will Sir John made provision for the opening of three sealed cupboards on certain specified dates in the presence of the trustees. In 1866, that is to say almost thirty years after the death of the testator, the first of the mysterious receptacles was with much ceremony and breaking of seals opened in the presence of a committee of men, with the then president of the Royal academy, Sir F. Grant, at their head. Instead of a priceless treasure or some evidence that would throw an entirely new light upon some doubtful incident in political history the contents of the cupboard proved to be worthless accounts, letters and stationery.

Twenty years passed by, and the interest that had smoldered after the disappointment of 1866 was again fanned into flame at the prospect of breaking the seals of the second cupboard, at which rite there were present among others Dr. Alfred Waterhouse, R. A., and Sir (then Dr.) B. W. Richardson. Like the cupboard mentioned in the well known nursery rhyme, Sir John's second cabinet proved "bare" of any sensation, the contents being chiefly composed of letters relating to certain long forgotten family quarrels that had not even the merit of being interesting. If some of those authorized to be present at the opening of the third and last receptacle of mystery were dubious about the profit that would accrue by letting the light of day fall upon the contents thereof after sixty years' darkness one at least, Sir B. W. Richardson, looked forward with unabated interest to that day in 1896 when the last seal would be broken and the mystery solved, but he, alas, died just two days before the ceremony was performed, and the fact that Sir John had played a practical joke upon posterity was duly confirmed by the presence of a collection of perfectly worthless letters and papers.

The Temperature.

"Why do you watch the thermometer on the wall so closely?" questioned the invalid.

"Because," replied the untrained nurse, "the doctor said if the temperature got any higher I was to give you another dose of quinine."

Bewildered.

"John Henry, I'll thrash you soundly if I ever catch you telling another story that isn't true."

"And yet, ma, I heard you say to the minister that I had great imagination."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A show of daring oft conceals great cowardice.—Lucan.

MRS. CECELIA STOWE,
Orator, Entre Nous Club.

176 Warren Avenue,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

Cecelia Stowe

Mrs. Stowe's letter shows every woman how a home is saddened by female weaknes and how completely Wine of Cardui cures that sickness and brings health and happiness again. Do not go on suffering. Go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui.

WINE of CARDUI

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

EMARDVILLE

Edwind Jacobson drove to Lambert Saturday on business.

Your correspondent was at Red Lake Falls last Wednesday on business.

Ed. Jacobson hauled the last cordwood stick to town Wednesday.

An auction sale will be held at C. Stonhammer's March 3, Thursday.

Paul Benjaminsen entertained a number of his friends Sunday, Feb. 28.

Odin Jacobson came home Saturday from the town of Edna, near Fosston, where he is teaching a Norwegian school.

Chas. Hanson hauled the last of his cordwood to Red Lake Falls last Wednesday. Wood is awfully scarce this season.

They say Paul Benjamanson will move to Canada in the near future. He has a homestead near Yorktown, Assiniboia, Canada.

Dr. F. D. Patterson, of Lambert, is called to Adolph Charpentier's nearly every second day. He has been sick now for about three weeks.

Mrs. Wigestad visited her daughter, Alfreda, who is working for G. G. Knudseth, in Red Lake Falls, last Thursday. She returned home Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Tranby, of the town of Knute, five and one half miles south of Erskine, visited with their daughter, Mrs. El. Jacobson, in Garnes, Saturday.

It seems as if most of the farmers around here are up against the worst of it. They are now buying flour and bay when both are about up to the highest price.

D. H. McCuluph purchased fifteen cords of dry wood from G. Svendby who had a large quantity of wood for sale. The purchaser will haul the wood to Red Lake Falls.

Brede Bredeson was trying to buy straw for his starving stock, Saturday, but couldn't get food of any kind. The food question for stock is becoming serious hereabouts.

We all hope Red Lake county will enjoy a prosperous season the coming year, and will make a long jump towards the point aimed for—that of the leading county in the state.

Brede Bredson went to Red Lake Falls last Thursday on a business trip. He is soon going to leave here for Erskine where they will live, in the future. He purchased two lots north of the railroad track in Erskine.

More snow came down last Tuesday. There was an awful snowfall, about four to five inches coming down, and another cold wave passing by. An awful winter we have had. Can anyone tell us when the soft spell is to come?

Jacob Jacobson has finished his contract with Ed. Jacobson, in which he furnished him with 15 cords of wood. There is very hard work in the woods this season, as there is about two or three feet of snow to walk in.

The temperance society "Fram" held a meeting last Sunday afternoon in the church. A good program of vocal and instrumental music and recitations was rendered. A very good time is reported by those that were present.

Elwin Jacobson purchased a four-year old mare last Wednesday. L. S. Graves, of Crookston, purchased the mare for Jacobson. He came up to Jacobson's Wednesday and had the mare along with him. Mr. Graves returned home again Thursday.

Several Northern Pacific surveyors passed through the eastern part of this county the last week. They are now working west to our leading city, Red Lake Falls. They are going to extend their line through the Falls from the east, and the line will be of great benefit to all the people out east, as well as to the county at large.

Election day soon comes on again, and the question will arise, as usual, who will we choose for town officers this time? The question is easily answered. Choose good upright men, that will do their duty in all respects, men that are at present carrying their share of the taxes. They will be the ones that will work for the interest of the town.

Andrew C. Ellingson, ticket agent for the old Cunard and Scandinavian American lines. Tickets are cheap now. For the cheapest rates write to A. C. Ellingson, Lost, Minn. These steamers need no introduction. They are all large, new and up-to-date vessels, so it matters little on which boat the passengers go or come they will be satisfied. Write me for further information.

A party of "Soo" line engineers passed through here last week, and say they have practically completed their work between Erskine and Thief River Falls and are now looking for the best places to put side tracks and new Red Lake county towns. It is rumored that two new towns will be started on the "Soo" in eastern Red Lake county next summer,—one city east of Plummer's Dam, and the other at Hill River.

Best Remedy for Constipation.

"The finest remedy for constipation I ever used is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets," says Mr. Eli Butler, of Frankville, N. Y. "They act gently and without any unpleasant effect, and leave the bowels in a perfectly natural condition." Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

GRIT

Did you hear the crows yet?

The fine days settled the snow nicely.

Ewind Langerak and Gunder Gunstenson returned from the woods last week.

There were church services in the church last Sunday. There was a fair attendance

That will do now, quit your kicking; march to the polls, that's the place to put in your "kicks."

Jergen Hegland and G. Swansen are busy hauling home their hay from the Knut Wettleson place.

Your correspondent and family Sundayed with Mr. and Mrs. Gunstim Skroland last Sunday.

Osor Skrelund was up in the town of Emardville last Friday for a load of wood for school district 210.

Jim Torgerson has moved his family over to his father's, near McIntosh, and will stay there for some time.

English school is to start next Monday in District No. 210, with Miss Clare E. Wichterman as teacher. It is a five months term.

Ed. O. Erickson was at McIntosh last Thursday with a load of wheat. Ed. says he got ninety two and one half. Wont that make you smile.

W. A. Bishop has a few head of cattle to sell cheap for cash; also some farm implement tools. He will pay market price for oats and barley in exchange.

Don't forget on election day to see that we are getting what the law allows in the shape of Pound Yards. We have a few citizens in our town that have no respect for their neighbors crops and the likes.

It is reported that Targe Kolshus, while in the woods the other day for a load of wood, was nearly killed by a tree falling on him. He was taken to Gully and the doctor was telephoned for. When the doctor arrived he said there was little hope for him. Hope he will recover.

Proper Treatment of Pneumonia.

Pneumonia is too dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself, although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of the grip, and that by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the threatened attack of pneumonia may be warded off. This remedy is also used by physicians in the treatment of pneumonia with the best results. Dr. W. J. Smith, of Sanders, Ala., who is also a druggist, says of it: "I have been selling Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years. I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results." Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

The bread makers are as much interested in our "Gold Seal" flour as the bread winners. It gives satisfaction and there is economy in using it.

--- THE WOMAN WHO HOLDS HER OWN ---

She Does Not Try to Lead the Procession, but to Keep Her Place, Mentally, Morally, and Physically. Avoids Extremes. Practices System and Moderation. Keeps up With the Times.

By CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK,

Author of "Cradle and Nursery," "First Aid to the Young Housekeepers," Housekeeping Made Easy," "What to Eat," "In City Tents," Etc.

Introduction To The Series—From all over the country enquiries have been pouring in upon me for advice upon various topics of interest to women. They have asked me about housekeeping and home-making, how to keep one's good looks, how to preserve the figure, what to wear, how to exercise, how to keep the husband good natured, and how properly to train the children. The rapidity with which the number of these requests has increased, and the wide spread territory represented, have proved to me the impossibility of meeting these requests by individual letters, and have so impressed upon me the universal demand for information along these lines, that I have been persuaded to write a series of articles, of which this is the first.—C. T. H.

The woman who attemps to hold her own has her work cut out for her. A man may, if he is in luck, have a certain unity about his occupations. A woman who tries to keep up with the times is a Pooh Bah in petticoats. She is a number of things in sucession and never any one thing long. She fills a position on one side of the stage and then goes to the other side in a fresh capacity. Unlike the original Pook Bah, she does not draw any salary for each pursuit. Instead of this, she usually has the privilege of finding virtue its own and only reward.

The woman who does not keep up with the times, drifts easily into monotony. This is a blunder.

Never should you let yourself get into a rut, my friend the housekeeper. It does not pay. Perhaps it may seem to lighten labour to have the wheels run in a groove, but in the long run,—and often in a short run, too,—it will be found to be a mistake. If it is your sense of duty that puts you and keeps you there, go to work to try to remodel your perception of what constitutes duty. If you have a New England conscience of the virulent type, take chloroform and have it extracted. Sometimes the roots go too deep for this, and then the only thing that will help is constant treatment.

The woman who means to hold her own should consider seriously what her own is. First and foremost, she will probably tell you, are those who belong to her household. They must be cared for, fed and clothed. Granted. But men—like wise women and children—do not live by bread alone, and the life is more than raiment. We all of us know homes where the bodies of the inmates are fed and the souls and spirits go starved.

Once upon a time I knew a home where everyone was happy. It was a badly kept house,—from one point of view. The mother was no housekeeper and she knew it. There were holes in the linen, slits in in the window shades, frayed spots in the carpets. The service of the table could only be described as higgledy piggledy. Yet I have never known a more united family. There may have been cracks in the china, but there was none in the domestic unity. The children were loving and obedient, the father and mother were companionable and charming.

Of course, it was not because the house was in rags and splinters. It might have been patched and the family peace still unbroken. But any one who had to choose between living in such a home and in a domain presided over by the kind of gorgon known as a "nasty perticular" housekeeper would have hesitated for a moment. He would have preferred godliness to cleanliness and taken it at the first offer.

Either of these illustrations is an extreme and this is what the woman who holds her own strives to avoid. The middle course that has been described as golden is the end of her efforts.

In order to win this she should lay to heart the truth that something must be crowded out. One woman with one head, one back, one set of nerves hands and feet, cannot accomplish everything. If she does, there is very little left of the woman but a lot of assorted fragments and the memory of a strenuous life. There are far better things than these to put into the family collection. When the modern surgery reaches the point where it is possible to insert new backs, and replace defective nerves, a woman may accomplish all she wishes she could do and all a mere man thinks she might do. Until then she must be contented to be as the Creator made her.

There is a choice in what may be crowed out. I have spoke of the advantage of diversity of occupation. A woman must not be all housekeeper lest she neglect the weightier matter of the law. She must not be all wife for fear her children should suffer, nor should she be all mother, under penalty of causing her husband to feel like an imposed upon boarder in his own home. Still less should she, in her desire to keep step with the march of events outside, devote herself so unreservedly to Women's Clubs, Mother's Meetings and Cooking Classes that her children bring themselves up by hand and her husband finds his only satisfactory gastronomic greeting at the club or the restaurant. In the ghoulish phrase of a sprighty young man, she does not wish either to keep in front with the hearse or come trailing along at the back with the buggies.

It is no small thing to be a wife and mother and the fools who yearly rush into a relation where the angels might well fear to tread upon a terrifying prospect for the future race. Still, the fools are not in the majority, and the greater part of the women who make mistakes do it through ignorance and false sense of proportion. When we start classes in girls' schools for the study of a perspective that is not that of drawing and a proportion that is not to be found in the arithmetics we may hope better things for the future of the nation.

In the meantime,—"don't throw things at the performers,—they are doing their best." Their very best, poor things! It is not the fault of the young girl that she has not been trained for the great career of wifehood and motherhood that, if God is good to her, lies ahead of her. As it is, she can only do her possible.

It is a big thing when a woman has learned how to make a man happy, though married, how to bring up children so that they will be as much comfort as possible to their families and as little nuisance as feasible to the neighbors, to keep house so that no one but the house would suspect it did not keep itself, to manage a servant so that she will not look upon the mistress as her natural enemy, to be ready in hospitality without making it a burden, to be on good terms with the neighbors, near or far, without condescending to pettitness, to be a member of the Woman's Club without leaving stockings undarned, to attend church without losing her temper on Sunday morning, to post herself upon current events without taking the paper from her husband at the breakfast table, to read a new book occasionally, to practice outdoor exercise enough to keep herself in good bodily trim, to dress herself tastefully without forming colossal bills, to bestow sufficient attention upon her figure and face to preserve her good looks, and having done all to save herself from nervous prostation by the system and moderation she brings to them all.

And yet there are women who maintain that the domestic career does not give full scope to their powers! In the name of the great Goddess Common Sense, what more do they want?

Auditor Ford reports that twenty-nine wolf bounty warranas have been issued since January first, to the amount of $217.50 Wolves have been quite plentiful during the present winter.

Rev. Donald McKenzie who assisted in the special services at the church this week, is an old school mate of Rev. H. W. Knox, and was the guest of the Rev. and Mrs. Knox during his stay here.

Monday was the last day for the [illegible] before the ten per cent [illegible] personal property taxes [illegible] added, and Treasurer Tandberg received a large amount of cash on that date. The taxes are pretty well paid up this year.

The special meetings at the Presbyterian church this week have been largely attended and productive of much good. Rev. Donald McKenzie of Crookston, has assisted Rev. Knox and his discourses are highly spoken of. The meetings will close tomorrow evening.

Thief River Press: Sheriff Dan Linnihan came up from the county seat last Friday for an over night stay in the expectation of meeting some parties who were to drive in from Pelan. However, the storm and bad roads prevented their reaching here and the genial sheriff had to return home disappointed.

Robt. H. Bourdon returned home last Friday, after having worked with the Soo surveying party during the past six months. Bob. says that the Soo people have not yet fully decided on their line, but that the changes in the present route will be slight. The work of building the line will commence early in the spring.

Dr. H. A. Seigne, a veterinary surgeon of long years experience, has located here and will practice in this section of Red Lake county. The gentleman comes well recommended as a first-class workman and the people of this vicinity should consider themselves fortunate in securing him as a resident. Look up his announcement in another column.

George Ralph, engineer for the state drainage board has filed a report with the secretary of the state in which he shows that the 800 miles of ditches which have been constructed in the norther part of Minnesota have drained 1,600,000 acres of land and added $8,000,000 to their value. Polk county alone has constructed 300 miles of county ditches, draining 600,000 acres and increasing their value $3,000,000.

The Knights of Phythias and several invited guests enjoyed a smoke social at their hall Monday evening, and it turned out to be highly enjoyable to those present. The early part of the evening was given over to Norwegian whist, and a nice lunch was set before the crowd, ample justice being accorded this feature. The crowd was thoroughly pleased with the entertainment afforded and voted the committee or arrangements royal good fellows.

Mr. and Mrs. George Walker, of Equality township, retorned last Saturday from Port Alden, Ontario, where they have spent the winter with Mr. Walker's parents. To a Gazette reporter Mr. Walker stated that eastern Canada had experienced the hardest winter in a number of years, and that traffic of all kinds has been suspended nearly all the time this year. While Red Lake county has a lot of snow, Mr. Walker thinks we are lucky not to be completely buried like the people farther east.

The session of the state farmer's institote advertised for last Tuesday, was not largely attended and Prof. Hoverstad and his assistants only remained between trains, owing to the small number of people being present. This institute would have done a great amount of good to the farmers of southern Red Lake county, but being advertised only such a short time, the people did not have time to arrange to come. It is to be regetted that this was the case, as the good would have been noticable.

H. N. Johnson has severed his connection with the Red Lake Falls Milling company and expects to leave tomorrow or Saturday for Park River, North Dakota, where he will again enter the employ of the Robertson Lumber company. Mr. Johnson is one of the best lumbermen in the business, and while his many friends regret his departure they nevertheless know that he will be successful, and are correspondingly happy. During his residence here he made many warm friends, and he will be missed from the business and social circles of the best town in the valley.

CHANCES GO LIKE HOT CAKES

Gazette's Clubbing Proposition Appreciated by the People of Red Lake County.

The Gazette's clubbing offer is pleasing the people, and from present indications the limited number of chances on the Old Hickory wagon will be eagerly snapped up.

A chance to get three good newspapers and a ticket on a wagon all for $1 is something that isn't offered every day, and the people of Red Lake county gladly avail themselves of this offer.

If your neighbor doesn't borrow your paper, call his attention to this remarkable proposition and make him happy.

The List Grows.

The Gazette's subsoription list has took a boom this week, and besides a large number of subscription payments, nine new names were added to The Gazettes list. Here are the names of those who have favored us with payments and renewals and also the new names added:

Oscar Anderson, Terrebonne.
Louis Self, Red Lake Falls. (new)
Treffle Grandbois, Red Lake Falls.
A. H. Box, Naperville, Ill. (new)
G. A. Ofstad, Florence, Minn. (new)
H. N. Johnson, Park River, N. D. (new)
L. L. Metzgar, Red Lake Falls. (new)
Dupont & Sons, Terrebonne.
Francisse Lachance, Red Lake Falls. (now
Olof Tande, Garnes.
Nels Hakenson, Garnes.
Dennis Cyr, Red Lake Falls.
Miss Emily Botteneau, Red Lake Falls.
John Grady, Red Lake Falls.
John Platz, Lambert.
A. C. Hanson, Thief River Falls.

A. C. Ellingson, Lost. (new)
George Beausoliel, Winnipeg, Man. (new)
D. Hill, Dundee, Ill. (new)
John Berry, Red Lake Falls.
Octave Laconsiere, Red Lake Falls.

The people of Red Lake county appreciate their best paper, and when they can get three good papers and a chance on a $75 wagon all for a single dollar, other propositions don't appeal to them to any great degree.

BAR PRIVATE POSTAL CARDS.

Department Gives Notice That After July 1 None Will Be Transmitted.

The postoffice department calls attention to the fact that private postal cards are contrary to law, and that those who have or intended in the future to use them must refrain from so doing. The following instructions have been received from Third Assistant Postmaster General Madden:

"The law officer for this department advises that cards issued by private persons bearing on the address the words "United States of America," are in "likeness or similitude" of the regular United States postal card, and therefore in violation of law, and unmailable. (Section 1591, postal laws and regulations.)

"However, in order to give owners of such cards reasonable time to dispose of those on hand, postmasters will accept them for mailing until July 1, 1904, upon payment of postage at the proper rate. On and after July 1, 1904, such cards will be treated as unmailable at any rate of postage."

Postmasters are directed to give the circular the widest passible publicity through the press and otherwise, without expense to the department.

THE SOO LETS ITS GRADING CONTRACT

Large Force of Men and Teams To Push Construction Work To Emerson.

Monday's St. Paul papers contained the announcement that the contract for the construction work of the Soo railroad had been let by General Manager Pennington to Foley Bros., Larson & Co., of St. Paul.

The contractors are to begin grading from both ends of the line, and the time limit is set for November 1.

The work will require a large number of men and teams and it has been announced that the contractors would use 4,000 laborers, 2,000 teams and several large steam shovels.

The contract calls for grading from Ottertail to Emerson, about 200 miles.

MORE LANDS OPENED.

A Couple of Townships In Roseau County to be Given.

Notices have been posted at the Crookston land office showing that on May 10, next at 9 o'clock a. m. all of T. 159 range 41 and the fractional part of ranges 39 and 40 township 159 outside of the reservation, in Roseau county, will be opened for settlement and entry. A considerable portion of these lands are good agricultural lands and as as they come in under the general homestead law, it is expected that every available foot will be taken promptly. In fact there is quite a large number of settlers on those lands now. It is claimed that a portion of the lands are already covered by Scrip applications and as both the Soo and Great Northern lines of railroad will cross the lands to be opened with a prospect of one or more good townsites it is quite likely the competition between the settlers will become somewhat keen.

Conductor Warren of the C. & N. W. R. R. says: "I had been suffering with a severe cold for several days, and was so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. Nov. 16, I met one of Dr. Warner's agents on my train, he handed me a bottle of the White Wine of Tar Syrup, and one hour after taking the first dose my hoarseness commenced leaving me. In twenty four hours my voice was quite clear and natural the cold nearly cured. It is the best remedy I ever saw. A. L. Reichert.

WILL COLONIZE FRENCH CANADIANS

Northwest Territory Missionary Shows Them the Advantages of the Great Northwest.

Rev. Father Vachon, a missionary priest from the Northwest Territory, was in Red Lake Falls the first of the week, endeavoring to induce a colony of French Canadians to move to that much-heard-of country and settle.

Monday evening he addressed an assembly of Canadians at the Leon Laurent home and in a pleasing address showed his listeners the many advantages of the country—Saskatchewan being the point most talked of.

The homesteads there are free, and the Reverend gentleman dwelt at length upon the superiority of the grain crops there and the fact that crop failure had never been heard of. Railroads are pushing forward into that region and in a few years it is predicted that it will be a rich and bounteous territory.

The Reverend gentleman has already established several colonies there, and urged that one be formed here to go and take their places in that rapidly growing world.

The meeting was attended by a large crowd, and it is likely that a movement will be started to secure a party from here to go out to that country.

Modern Cold Storage Plant.

Through the courtesy of Agent Salley, a Gazette reporter was shown the re-modeled cold storage house of the Minneapolis Brewing company the first of the week. The new plant is an immense one, and equal to any along the line. The ice house is overhead, and underneath this is the storage room, supplied with all the modern conveniences for keeping the temperature all right and other conditions satisfactory. Agent Salley also has a nice new office room, and the house is one that will accommodate the needs of the company for several years to come.

RAPP WILL CONTESTED.

Something Rich, Rare and Racy in Store for Red Lake County People.

St. Hilaire Spectator: A Thief River Falls woman whose maiden name was Bertha Pederson but who now calls herself Mrs. Chas. G. Rapp has filed a complaint in the probate court protesting the admitance of Mr. Rapp's will to propate. The complaint has been drawn up and filed by Henry W. Lee as attorney for the petitioner, and to all who were familiar with the life and death of Hon. C. G. Rapp, the contents of the document will prove decidedly interesting, and will doubtless be regarded as a masterly attempt a blackmail.

The petitioner, Bertha Pederson, claims that on or about Dec. 6, 1902 she was married in California to Charles Gustaf Rapp, deceased; that she has since that time until his death, lived and co-habited with him as his wife. That the will offered for probate is not "the last will and testament" of Chas. Gustaf Rapp and does not contain his last testamentary disposition of his estate. That at the time of his death he possessed real and personal property to to the amount of over $10,000.

Among the other and more important allegations of this complaint it is stated that the petitioner believes that at the time of his death said Chas. G. Rapp had a private deposit vault in the Bank of St. Hilaire, which vault contained papers and evidence of the petitioner's rights and interests in the estate; that J. K. Hannay is president and manager of said bank and attorney for O. F. Post, half brother of the deceased, and the original applicant for the probation of the will.

The compliant also insinuates that O. F. Post and J. K. Hannay have entered into a conspiracy to suppress the evidence and defraud the petitioner of her legal rights as the widow of the deceased, C. G. Rapp.

The people of St. Hilaire and Red Lake county are pretty well acquainted with this Miss Pederson and her attorney H. W. Lee, of Thief River Falls. It has been an understood fact that she was employed by Mr. Rapp, as a paid attendant during his long and finally fatal illness and in that capacity remained with him until the end of his life last November. During the last few months of his life Mr. Rapp occupied his own rooms in the village and Miss Pederson attended him. But during all the time she made no claim whatever of being his wife, or of having any claim against him of any kind and if she was his wife as she now claims, that fact did not in way interfere with her receiving irregular visits from gentleman friends in Thief River Falls.

Altogether the matter looks very much as if the petitioner had been led into the affair by her attorney, who saw a possible chance to levy a post mortem tribute by an attempt to blackmail the living heirs and traduce the memory of the dead without taking into consideration the possible defamation of his client's character which must almost inevitably result from his efforts.

Under the original will which has been petitioned for probate, O. F. Post is the sole beneficiary and is named as executor without bonds.

The contestant asks that her attorney, H. W. Lee, be appointed administrator. If this request should be granted it can easily be seen how the administrator could place a substantial lining in his own pockets without any regard whatever for his client, the estate itself or the legal heirs.

The date of hearing is set for April 14th, and the outcome will be eagerly looked for by everybody acquainted with the parties.

Thought to be in the Last Stages of Consumption.

Mrs. Minerve Burgess, of Byars, Ill., says: I have just received the White Wine of Tar. We think there is no medicine like it. It cured me when I was thought to be in the last stages of consumption. I will always recommend it to those that have any disease of the lungs. A. L. Reichert.

MORMON CONFERENCE

TWENTY-FOUR ELDERS DISCUSS CHURCH AFFAIRS IN MEETING AT ST. PAUL.

Prominent Resident of South St. Paul Arrested on a Serious Charge—President Favors Selling Red Lake Indian Lands at Auction—Night Clerk of Salvation Army Lodginghouse in Minneapolis Held Up.

St. Paul, March 7.—Twenty-four mormon elders, including a son of the late Woolford Woodruff, president of the Mormon church, held three public "conferences" in St. Paul Sunday, devoted to the instruction of local converts in the doctrine of the Mormon church. After the evening conference Elder Alfred M. Croft, president of the conference, declared:

"Yes, I believe in the doctrine of polygamy; I believe it was, and is, a doctrine of our church; I believe it was a revelation from God.

"Although it is a doctrine we accept, it is no longer put in practice; and it is not a taught doctrine."

Elder Croft claimed there were 100 converts to Mormonism in Minnesota. About seventy-five people attended the conferences here.

PROMINENT CITIZEN ARRESTED.

Serious Charge Against a South St. Paul Man.

St. Paul, March 5.—Following the suicide of William Smith, when he was about to be arrested on a charge of indecency, an investigation by prominent citizens of South St. Paul resulted in the arrest of George Newman, a leading citizen of the place, on a charge similar to that against Smith, and in connection with the same series of offenses, namely, the moral corruption of girls of tender years.

Newman denied the charges. He is a married man, about fifty years of age.

There is considerable excitement in South St. Paul and for a time it seemed as though a crowd would storm the jail and lynch Newman, but wiser counsel prevailed. More arrests are anticipated.

Washington, March 1.—Some excellent lands, including twelve townships of Red Lake reservation in Northwestern Minnesota and a part of the Rosebud reservation—about 416,000 acres—in Gregory county, South Dakota, will be opened for settlement in a few months. President Roosevelt has conceived the idea that it would be to the interest of the government to adopt the plan of disposing of the land by auction. No decision as to the method of sale has been determined upon, but it is not improbable that in his proclamation announcing the opening of the lands to settlement the president may prescribe how they shall be sold.

IN FAVOR OF SQUATTERS.

Federal Supreme Court Decides Minnesota Iron Lands Case.

Washington, March 1.—One of the most important legal cases ever decided in relation to the property rights in Minnesota was finally disposed of by the United States supreme court Monday. There were, in fact, two cases, but they represented substantially the same issues, being the suit in ejectment brought by the Security and Development company against Burns and Wickey to determine the ownership of valuable iron lands around Clear Lake, in the northern part of Minnesota. The decision Monday, which involves many millions of dollars, was in favor of Burns and Wickey, two of the six or seven squatters on the iron properties in question. The case had already been decided by the supreme court of Minnesota in favor of the settlers.

Duluth, March 3.—The International Iron company of Duluth, which was organized in this city last fall to explore lands for iron ore on Hunters Island, Ontario, has made an important find, according to Lon Merritt, who has just returned from an inspection of the work done by the exploring party on the ground. A shaft is being sunk on one of the tracts controlled by the company and at a depth of fifty feet iron ore assaying 60 per cent metallic iron was encountered. Mr. Merritt believes that they have struck the main body of ore on the property and says that every indication points to it being large. The discovery will hasten the extension and improvement of the Port Arthur, Duluth and Western road. The ore will be shipped out via Port Arthur.

Concerning the Figure

Taking Care of the Form by Proper Exercise, Feeding and Dressing.

By Christine Terhune Herrick,

Author of "Cradle and Nursery," "First Aid to the Young Housekeepers," Housekeeping Made Easy," "What to Eat," "In City Tents," Etc.

There is no excuse for a woman's having a poor figure. It may give her some trouble to get a good one but it is worth the effort.

Some women begin life without figures worthy of the name. While they are young girls they are scraggy and flat, or lumpy and shapeless. These peculiarities do not lessen with age and when to their natural drawbacks the owners add utter carelessness, it is no wonder if by the time they have reached middle age they are a trial to the eyes of their friends.

As a matter of course, it is easier to let oneself go and not take the pains that the care of a figure demands. But no woman with the least particle of vanity in her make up—and it is a very poor sort of woman who lacks it—can help feeling a thrill of pleasure when she beholds the improvement wrought in her appearance by a good corset, properly worn.

For the corset is the first essential in the making of a figure. A number of other things go with it. The woman must carry herself properly, but the corset helps her to do that. She must pay attention to her outer dress, and to this too, the corset stimulates her. Her diet cannot be entirely neglected, if she wishes to have her form reduced from over stoutness or redeemed from ultra thinness, but with a corset as a foundation for her efforts she will be encouraged in the work of regulating her food.

Even in this day there are plenty of people who find nothing bad enough to say about the corset. I have seen one matron give way to tears while addressing a woman's club on the evils wrought by corsets. And she was not a hysterical woman either. She had known the corset as it was in earlier years, before common sense and science went to its making and she knew the harm it had done those who regarded it as an instrument for the compression of the waist into a smaller compass than Nature had intended for it.

The new corset,—the "straight front" with which fashion papers and comic columns have made everyone familiar,—is built on a different plan. It does not squeeze the woman's organs out of shape but holds them in place. As I have said before, it must be properly made and properly worn. The ideal corset is one that is made to order and adapted to the needs of the individual body, but for those who cannot afford this there are substitutes in plenty. A woman should seek until she finds what she wants.

The new corset increases the size of the waist line, thereby giving room for the lungs and diaphragm. There is no difficulty in deep breathing with the woman who wears a well made corset of the present style. That is, if she puts it on properly.

To do this she must loosen the laces. Gone are,—or should be,—the days when a woman kept her corsets laced for days and weeks at a time. Now the woman loosens the laces at night and tightens them in the morning. When she puts on the corset it is so loose that it hangs upon her like a bag. She claps the garters that are attached to the front and, if she be of stout figure to the sides; settles the corset down over the hips and abdomen, drawing a long deep breath after this is done, and then proceeds to tighten the laces. She does this carefully, drawing the lower ones first and then those over the belt line. Never must she make them too tight for comfort. As soon as she does this she injures her figure as well as her feelings. When the laces are tight enough she should cross them in the back, bring them to the front, pass them under the garter on the left side and tie them there.

The great advantage of thus tightening the corset laces every day is that the figure can be humoured. There are days when a woman feels that a tight corset is more than she can bear. Then she leaves the laces loose at first, and draws them up later in the day when she has reached the point where a little closer compression will be grateful to her.

I can hear the protests of busy women over the time it will take to go to this trouble. But it really takes less time than one would think. At first, before one is accustomed to the process it may require a few minutes more than one has been in the habit of granting to one's toilet, but as the habit grows upon one of lacing the corset daily, it will be done more quickly and become a matter of course. And even if it does take a few minutes more, is not the game worth the candle? When one sees good figures that have been evolved from shapeless forms by the use of a good corset, does it not seem that a little extra care is a very small price to pay for the gain.

The corset once on, the woman must proceed to live up to it. She will find that it helps her to keep her shoulders straight and her body erect. She must learn to poise herself properly, throwing her weight on the balls of her feet and resisting the temptation to sway backwards. That is a tendency which grows upon women as they advance in years and in flesh. If they do not "stand so straight that they lean the other way," they let their shoulders droop until the middle of the back is like a bump. All about the country one may see women in the late fifties who have bent their shoulders until they look almost as though they were deformed. This could have been spared them if they had taken a little pains early in their life. And even an elderly woman can do much to correct such a stoop if she is willing to give herself trouble about it.

To stand straight is neither to bend backwards nor to droop forwards. The prominent abdomen is as unsightly as the humped up shoulders. The woman with a trend towards either should exercise herself every day in front of a mirror. She is wise if she follows the advice of one sensible housekeeper and hangs a looking glass in her kitchen where she can see herself as she steps back and forth about her work and bring herself up with a round turn if she slips into any slovenly trick of carriage.

The corset will give a good figure for a time, but a woman must work to keep it. If she is too thin to be for beauty the task will be simpler for her than for the woman inclined to put on flesh. The latter has her work ahead of her. The thin may have to take exercise, as the stout one must do, but she has less to carry about with her while she is doing it. For both it is essential that exercise should be taken in doors and out. The latter is vastly preferable, for obvious reasons. But the exercise indoors is far better than nothing.

One woman who could be called old if her years were known has never, for fifteen years, failed to go through a certain course of what she calls her "gymnastics," on rising in the morning. For ten minutes daily, she bends and twists her body, stooping until she sits on her heels and rising without laying hold of anything to assist her. She leans forward until she can touch the floor with her finger tips, without bending the knees and backward until her forehead is in contact with the wall. She swings her arms about, kicks the air vigorously and in every way she can brings all her muscles into play. As a result of this she is as brisk an agile as women many years her junior and asserts that she never means to grow old but to keep her strengh and vigor to the end. And she probably will.

When such exercises as this are taken it should be with the window open even in cold weather. There is no use in inflating the lungs unless you fill them with fresh air. For this reason as well as for many others, out-door exercise is preferable to that taken in a gymnasium, no matter how well equipped this may be. Long walks, horseback rides, bicycle spins, golf or tennis, all do their share in developing the muscles, reducing the adipose tissue or strengthening the body to gain flesh. One at least of these is needed to keep the figure in shape, or failing this, one must follow the exercises I have outlined. These may be aided by such appliances as a lifting machine, dumb-bells, Indian clubs, and the like. Because of the many muscles called into play by it, ping-pong is one of the best house games known. It encourages bending and stooping and reaching and stretching, and by all these means develops and improves the figure.

But, says one, "How can this be done in the long, straight front corset pictured every where?" It cannot. But there are corsets which come to be worn on such occasions. The ribbon girdle corset, made either in heavy satin ribbon or in wide tape, or the short equestrian corset is adapted to all sorts of vigorous exercise. It is also excellent for the women who do a good deal of housework which requires bending over and stooping. While it does not hold in the over-plump figure as a heavier, longer corset would do, it is far better to yield a little restriction than to break corset steels and suffer discomfort at the same time.

A woman can never allow herself to become careless about her corset. Having gone to the expense and pains of procuring one and learning how to wear it she should not let the gain slip away from her. When her corset becomes old and out of shape she should have it re-boned, as it is worth while to do this with a good corset. Never should she relax her vigilance over her figure and her way of carrying herself. Perhaps for a while it will seem a good deal of a burden, but after a time the well carried form with the back straight, the head up, the shoulders properly poised, will become instinctive, so that the trouble would be to bear herself in the wrong way.

It is a woman's duty to keep her good looks as long as she can and a good figure is a most important part of them. A pretty face is all very well—there are a few women who would not be willing to yield a virtue or two to possess a charming countenance,—but it loses a great deal if it is set on top of a badly cared for, badly carried figure. When a woman gets towards the point where youthful charms are forsaking her, it is a boon to her and to those about her if she has a well made, well borne form. And the possession of this is within her own power.

Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble, and I thought I was going the same way, but about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and thought I would try a few bottles. NEWS OF THE WEEK

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

A special cable dispatch announces that ten Japanese transports convoyed by cruisers have been sighted bound for Liaotung gulf. The vicinity of Saddle bay is said to be the destination of the squadron. The bay is about forty-five miles from Yinkow, the port of Newchwang. That the Russian strategists are prepared for such a move on the part of the Japanese is indicated by the announced intention to abandon Yinkow and Newchwang and concentrate on the railroad at Lioyang and Haicheu. These points are about forty and seventy-five miles, respectively, south of Mukden.

An official dispatch to St. Petersburg from Viceroy Alexieff says: "According to the reports of our patrols to Pingyang and on the road to Wonsan there were no signs of the enemy. Pingyang has been occupied by 6,000 Japanese, who include 200 cavalrymen. No particulars have been obtained concerning artillery. It has been learned that the Japanese bring troops by sea from Fusan to Chenampo (on Pingyang inlet), whence they come to Pingyang."

The Japanese legation at London has issued a long dispatch from the government at Tokio giving its reply to the Russian note to the powers charging the Japanese with opening hostilities without a formal declaration of war. It gives details of Russia's preparations for war while delaying diplomatic negotiations and contends that, therefore, the responsibility rests with Russia and that no declaration of war should have preceded hostilities.

A fleet of five Japanese battleships and two cruisers appeared off Vladivostok Sunday afternoon and bombarded the town and shore batteries for fifty-five minutes. The fleet did not approach to a closer range than a mile and one-third. They directed their fire against the shore batteries and the town, but no damage resulted, as most of their 200 lyddite shells failed to burst. The Russian batteries did not respond.

On the strength of a statement made by a missionary the Shanghai correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle sends in a doubtful report that twenty-eight Japanese sailors landed at Tengchau, saying that their vessel had sunk as the result of an engagement with Russian warships, which also went down. No Russians were saved, but 200 Japanese were rescued by Chinese junks.

According to information received at Vladivostok forty Japanese transports, escorted by the entire naval fleet, have been engaged in landing troops in Korea at Fusan and Chemulpo. It is estimated that fully 100,000 men have disembarked and it is supposed that an immediate advance into Northern Korea is contemplated.

Information received at Paris from official sources in Korea confirms previous reports to the effect that Chinnampho is free from ice, that the Japanese have ceased debarking troops at Chemulpo and that they have taken advantage of the opening of Chinnampho to land troops there, thus expediting the forward movement.

Information reaching Paris from official sources shows the Japanese concentration of troops is going on extensively in the neighborhood of Pingyang, Korea. Large forces are debarking from transports at nearby ports, from which it is assumed that an extensive land engagement is imminent in Northern Korea.

Admiral Stark, telegraphing to St. Petersburg from Port Arthur March 2, says the enemy did not appear off Port Arthur on either Feb. 28, Feb. 29 or March 1. Reconnoisances made by cruisers and torpedo boats over a radius of sixty miles from Port Arthur also failed to discover the enemy's vessels.

Minister Allen has reported to the state department from Seoul that he has determined to send an American ship to the vicinity of Pingyang to remove to a place of safety the women among the refugees gathered there. The cruiser Cincinnati, which is lying at Chemulpo, will bring away these people.

The Russians are preparing to withdraw from Yinkow in anticipation of the coming of a Japanese fleet as soon as the ice thaws, which will be within a fortnight. Yinkow is at the mouth of Liao river, near to the railroad line that connects Port Arthur with Mukden.

A band of 500 Chinese brigands and disbanded soldiers, armed with Mannlichers, attacked the Russian outposts at Pallelpeotze. The Russians had forty-two killed and wounded out of fifty, while the brigands lost eighty-seven, among whom were six Japanese.

The landing in force of the Japanese on the Liaotung peninsula and the beginning of the land investment of Port Arthur will not begin for a fortnight, according to advices received at Washington from what are believed to be reliable sources.

Disease is said to be rife among the Russian troops in the Far East and thousands have been incapacitated by frost bites. The Japanese forces in Korea are said to be seriously hampered by the death of their horses.

Sixty American marines have been sent to guard the premises of the American Mining company at Unsan, Korea, 120 miles north of Pingyang, which were reported Feb. 27 to have been seized by Russian soldiers.

Twenty-five thousand Russian cavalry, inclusive of Cossacks, mounted infantry and artillery, have crossed the Yalu river and are now distributed at strategic points between Wiju, Sakju and Fonehon.

The Russians are boldly and fiercely pushing their advance south of the Yalu river. Their Cossacks are scouting far in advance of the main body through Northern Korea.

The Russians are briskly fortifying Antung, which it is believed they will make a base for resistance. Scouts near Anju are being withdrawn toward Kasan.

The Fargo Forum suggests that if there are any northwest editors yet who have not referred to the combatants in the orient as David and Goliath, they better jump into line and be with the procession.

City Attorney James H. Maybury of Crookston, is a candidate for County Attorney of Polk county at the coming fall election. If Mr. Maybury's many Red Lake county friends could only go over the line to vote he would win in a walk.

The Democratic state convention to select delegates to the national convention at St. Louis will be held at Duluth, June 26. The Dems could just as well dispense with the formalities of nominating a president this year, for all the good it will do them.

Every delegate elected to the National convention next week will go full of enthusiam and support for the popular American idol, Theodore Roosvelt for president, and later in the year the great commonwealth of Minnesota will stand back of her delegates with a 75,000 majority for the same fellow.

County Commissioner Hanson and his protege, the Review, have discovered that the county seat is to be located at the up-river city shortly. This might be true, but The Gazette can't believe but what if it were put to a vote of the commissioners the big man Hanson would vote "no" from force of habit.

Advertisers are appreciating the value of country publictly. People in cities don't read advertising excepting bargain ads. of dry goods stores. Country people do not live at high tensions. Reading and going to church sociables are the two methods they have for passing the evenings. Papers are kept and read by all the family and exchanged with the neighbors. The Gazette offers more country publicity for the price than can be obtained thro any other channel in Red Lake county. Try it and see.

Congress has received many petitions for the establishment of a parcels-post, so that packages of ten to twenty pounds can be sent by mail. Great Britian and Germany can send merchandise through the mail at one quarter what it costs in the United States, says the Badger Herald-Rustler. Yet every proposition to introduce the parcels-post here met with strenuos opposition from the express companies that now enjoy a practical monopoly of carring packages weighing more than four pounds. By and by the American people will wake to the fact that Uncle Sam is enacting the rule of Rip Van Winkle.

The Hawley Herald sizes it up as follows: Some of our exchanges are bemoaning the fact that the International Harvester Co. has drained their respective communities of all ready cash, leaving the local merchants to carry the farmers over to another crop. This undoubtedly explains, to a certain degree, the scarcity of funds in agricultural communities. But there is no use in grumbling, for when a machine is once bought it invariably has to be paid for, and, if we would stop this drain upon our revenue, we must stop buying. If you are successful in dodging the solicitor, you will not be harassed by the collector.

Ralph Wheelock doesn't get any better as he grows older, and his "Thoughts on Things" column in the Minneapolis Tribune is just as spicy as it always was. Here is one of the latest ones: "Triplets were born to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frye of Mason City the other night and were promptly christened Faith, Hope and Charity. Faith, we Hope they will never need Charity, but that is quite a bunch of blessings. The narrator of the of the incident naively tries to explain the visitation by saying that Mrs. Frye is nearly fifty years of age and her husband was away from home at the time."

Here's a bit of philosophy from the Faribault Journal that can well be heeded everywhere: Don't bother about the things you can't possibly avert. We talk about congestion and overproduction and all that sort of thing. We have a billion people in the world and they could all live in Texas and the land there could take care of all of them, if properly managed. The ability to invent, to economize and take care of great things has increased ten times as fast as our population. Don't grow despondent because you can't make things and conditions suit you, but spend time trying to make your life and your pleasures fit existing conditions, and hold yourself in readiness to change as conditions change. On the whole, times and people and everything are getting better as the world rolls merrily along. Life is a comedy not a tragedy. Sing instead of lament.

Elsewhere in the Gazette appears a "Temperance Reform Column," edited by W. A. Swanaon, the Grit merchant. The Gazette does not presume to take sides on this great question before the American people and relaizes that it is one to which great study can be given and yet different opinions exist. It is but fair however, for a newspaper to give space to the honest discussion of all topics, and we feel that Mr. Swanson can ably defend his stand. It is publicty that makes or breaks all questions, and if the movement is right in time it will triumph, while if wrong it will perish as it arose. Let us trust that the discussion of the question will prove where the movement belongs, and the Gazette invites other comment on the question at issue.

Senator Knute Nelson went to Baltimore some ten days ago and addressed a meeting of bankers and merchants who were giving a banquet. The Minnesota senator recalled in happy fashion how, during the civil war, he marched through the city as a private soldier, telling in humorous fashion how he captured a horse not far from Baltimore. These experiences furnished much amusement, but a few days after Mr. Nelson returned to Washington he was given an opportunity to see the other side of the medal. The man who owned the horse wrote, demanding payment for the property which had been appropriated so many years ago. The letter gives details which convince Senator Nelson that the writer was indeed the owner of the captured animal.

A sweet girl graduate from the Crookston school thus describes the manner in which a goat butted a boy out of a front yard in the neighborhood: He hurled the previous end of his anatomy against the boy's afterwords with an eagerness and velocity which backed by the goats avoirdupois, imparted a momentum that was not relaxed until the instigation of the vehement exasperation was landed on terra firma, beyond the pale of the goat's jurisdiction.

Matt Steele, of Marshall, this state arrived Monday with his household goods and farm machinery and immediately moved to his fine farm—the old Mikkelson place—just west of the city, which he purchased of Ed. L. Healy last fall. Mr. Steele was one of Lyon county's best farmers, and is one that will help greatly in Red Lake county's rapid advancement. During the coming summer he will erect an elegant new house and set of farm buildings, and expects to have one of the prettiest places in Red Lake county before many months. The Gazette joins with every resident of the county in extending Mr. Steele and family a cordial welcome to the best county in the state.

W. A. Murphy came down from Thief River Falls Saturday and spent Sunday with his family, who have been living with Grandpa and Grandma H. J. Kaufer during the winter. Murph. is enthusiastic over the business outlook of his home town, and his many friends here will hope that he may reap all the golden sheckels in sight.

Deeds covering approximately 350,000 acres of choice agricultural and timber land in the White Earth reservation are now being delivered to the 4,300 members of the White Earth band of Chippewas who are entitled to participate in the allotments. The deeds are in the form of trust patents from the government, and are being delivered to the Indians in person by the deputies of Major Simon Michelet, United States Indian agent at White Earth.

Sam Beautrow, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beautrow, who left here a year ago, has covered considerable territory since his departure. After remaining with his parents at North Yakima for several months, he took passage on a steamer bound for Africa and has been knocking about different parts of the world since. Friends here received word from him this week, the letter being written from London, England, and he stated that he was now bound for Red Lake Falls, to his notion the best place on earth.

St. Hilaire Spectator: Thursday, March 17th, will be the eight anniversary of the organization of St. Hilaire Camp, No. 3650, of the Modern Woodmen of America, and arrangements are being made to give a grand ball and supper in honor of the occasion. This is the first ball given by this order for four years, and without doubt will be one of the most largely attended that ever happened in town. The dance will be held in the Imperial hall and the music will be the best obtainable. The price of tickets, including supper, will be $1.00.

The present price of potatoes emphasizes the fact that the farmers of this section might well pay more attention to that crop, says the McIntosh Times. In an ordinary season potatoes can be profitably raised for 25 cents per bushel. Last season the average cost probably exceeded 25 cents owing to the many light crops and failures, but there is certainly a good profit at present prices (60 cents to $1.00 per bushel) for those who have them. In years when the price goes below 25 cents potatoes can generally be profitably fed to stock.

The creamery meeting held at the Metropolitan opera house last Saturday was fairly well attended, and those that were present received some valuable instructions and demonstrations pertaining to the rapidly growing dairy industry. State Dairy and Food Commissioner McConnell addressed the meeting, and his remarks were timely and full of good advice to the dairy farmer. He showed where the industry could be made one of the greatest and best on the farm, and in his remarks gave many practical demonstrations of what the dairy cow has done for Minnesota The other speakers also pleased the crowd, and gave many valuable points. Red Lake county offers many excellent advantages for dairying, and her creamery industry is one that will go rapidly. A united effort on the part of the farmers is all that is needed to make it a success, and whenever the creamery flourishes the patrons are the ones that profit.

Wm. Fro was a business caller at Thief River Falls over Monday night.

For Sale—A good farm team, cheap, if taken at once. Inquire of P. B. Gaass.

Mrs. W. A. Murphy and little son will go to Thief River Falls this week where the family will again set up housekeeping.

Oscal Lillemoe, of the town of Knute Polk county, who lost his right arm in an accident upon the Great Northern tracks at McIntosh last fall has started a suit against the company for $25,000 damages.

The elder Dupont, of the firm Dupont & Sons, Terrebonne's popular merchants, was in after a load of merchandise last Saturday and called at The Gazette office. Mr. Dupont reports a brisk business, considering the season of year.

A certain St. Hilaire young man told his girl the other night that if she didn't marry him he'd get a rope and hang himself right in front of her home. "Please don't do it, George," she said, "you know papa don't want you hanging around here."

M. O. Sortedahl arrived home Monday from a business trip throughout several of the central and southern Minnesota counties. Mr. Sortedahl is of the opinion that Red Lake county will see a big rush the coming year and predicts that we will gain many useful citizens as a result.

Dr. W. O. Tessier was in from Terrebonne Monday on business. The doctor expects to leave soon for the Assinaboia country, where the family will reside in the future. His father is already located there, and is much impressed with the future possibilities of that great new country.

Several lawyers, bankers and others went out to Gentilly Monday to attend the Joseph Vaudriu auction sale. A great deal of the property advertised was mortgaged to Red Lake Falls and Crookston parties, and the ones interested were on hand to take the chattels, so that there wasn't a great deal left to sell when they got through.

The next regular monthly band concert by the Red Lake Falls band will be held on Friday evening, March, 25. The program has not been fully completed, but it is far enough long to show that this will be the best concert of the winter series. Coming as it does in Lenten season, the first half will be devoted to sacred music, while in the second part will be introduced something different. The next concert should attract an unusually large crowd, and it is safe to assert that their time will be pleasantly occupied.

Itasca County Record: It is reported that the greater number of U. S. Commissioners on the line northeast of Bemidji have been asked to resign before May 1st, the reason being given that there has been a great deal of misusage of the office by some of the commissioners. While this is true in a good many cases, there are some who are doing their duty and a good deal of injustice to the "straight" commissioners, and a great deal of inconvenience to the settlers will be the result.

A little over a year ago the young son of M. O. Sortedahl, in playing around the carpet, accidently run a needle into his left knee, and while medical help was soon secured all efforts to locate it proved futile. He consulted several physicians as to the advisability of taking the boy to have an X-ray examination made, but the opinion seemed to be that nothing serious would result, and as the young fellow suffered no pain from it nothing was thought of the matter. However, the first of the week, while the boy was washing he felt a prickling sensation in his right fore arm, and upon investigation found the broken part of the needle that so long ago entered the knee. The needle evidently worked itself into the veins and no doubt travelled all through the child's body before finding its way out The case is a peculiar one, and might easily have resulted differently.

Friend Lauritzon signed a communication in last week's Courier, and while he didn't write it, nevertheless the statements are several shades out of joint with the truth. If Mr. Lauritzon told the writer of the communication that he ever furnished The Gazette with any items, or ever even graced the office with his presence, he knew that he was making a false statement when he said it. The fellow who wrote the communication also says that the bills announcing the dairy meeting were posted three weeks before the Gazette's local in regard to Lauritzon appeared, when as a matter of fact they were not printed until Wednesday and circulated on Thursday of two weeks ago. The Gazette doesn't care a rap whether Mr. Lauritzon likes it or not, and will try and worry along with his assistance, but for a man holding the position he does, it seems like he should try and get over being a boy. The Gazette does not consider that it made any "attack" on Mr. Lauritzson, and wouldn't do him the least harm if it was the easiest thing in the world.

Bury the croaker out in the woods in a beautiful hole in the ground, where the bumble bee bums and the wood pecker pecks and the straddle bug straddles around. He is no good to the town to trust, too unpractical, stingy and dead, but he wants the whole world and a part of the crust, and the stars that shine over his head. Then bustle him off to the place of the dead, and bury him deep in the ground; he's no use to us here, get him out of the way, and make room for the man that is sound.

J K. Johnson, the North Side contractor, left Monday for Seattle, Washington where he will remain during the next two months visiting a brother and looking over that far-famed country. A house that is modelled very closely upon the New England type of Colonial architecture is pictured and described in the April Delineator. Its direct simplicity in something out of the ordinary in present day house-building, yet not in the least unpleasing. The Colonial scheme is modified to a certain extend to meet modern needs, the big living room occupying one-half the first floor, being a radical improvement upon the best room of early times. The furnishings are in accordance with the period of architecture, contributing largely to the inviting atmosphere. It is a house that will prove suggestive to pruspective home-builders.

A TIRELESS WORKER.

The Marvelous Energy That Was a Part of Macaulay.

No life was ever lived at higher pressure than that of Macaulay. He was not only "like a book in breeches," as Sydney Smith said of him; he was also like an intellectual steam engine. His thirst for knowledge was only equaled by his amazing capacity for retaining knowledge and by his passionate interest in all the aspects of life. "I wish I knew as much of anything as Macaulay knows of everything," said Melbourne, and, though the epigram may have been intended as a gibe, it approximated to the truth. To the average dullard of the world it must have seemed that this tempestuous man was literally omniscient. He plunged into Italian like a boy rejoicing in a new toy; he took up Spanish with an appetite growing by what it fed on, and then he returned to Greek with a joy which he found indescribable. He amused himself in going to India by learning German and mitigated the distress of a voyage across to Ireland by committing "Paradise Lost" to memory, claiming, doubtless with truth, that if by any inconceivable mischance the great epic were to be utterly destroyed he could from the tablets of his memory give it back to the world.—London News.

A Highland Dinner.

"The highland dinner is a very smart affair, and one that is never seen south of the Tweed," says the London Queen. "The laird wears his full dress kilt every night, and every one with any claim to a clan does the same, so that often there are more kilted men around the table than black coats.

"The full kilt dress is splendid, and a man to the manner born looks far better in it than in any other clothes. It gives width, height and dignity to the wearer, with its skayd, sporran and brooches. Not only does the laird wear his highland dress, but toward the end of dinner his piper, who has played in the hall outside during the meal, comes into the room and marches around the table. The pipes are a little deafening, but the player looks so fine that one is glad to see him. Most of the pipers in the more noble families have inherited the position from their ancestors and are rightly proud of the post. After dinner, if there is a big house party, there is often a dance. Then the piper is at his best, as he plays his pipes for the lightsome reels to be danced, beating time with his foot the while."

The Value of Politeness.

If those who are doubtful as to the correct course to pursue in any given situation will remember that even the wrong thing is overlooked if one is but absolutely polite in the doing of it, their relief might be great.

A gentleness of demeanor and a courteous response or question can never be out of place. A man may wear a business suit of clothes to an evening wedding less noticeably than a truculent air of insolence. If he be perfectly well bred as far as behavior goes, it matters not so much what his outward garb, although by an unwritten law of social observance certain clothes are the correct thing for certain occasions.

Politeness is never wrong. Its practice goes nearly all the way toward the goal of the right thing in the right place. We hear of polite insolence, but insolence is never polite, and it is never under any circumstances polite to be insolent.

Clock Plant.

The clock plant is a native of Borneo, and in that country even it is said to be rare. The plant derives its name from its peculiar habits, which are known to but few who have not studied it from a scientific standpoint. The plant has leaves of two sizes, one of which acts in the capacity of a minute hand, which keeps moving until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the other keeps going until morning. The larger leaves act as the hour hands. Starting in a position when all the leaves lie close to the stem, with the points hanging down, they rise gradually until they turn toward the top, and then they drop to their former position. It takes the smaller leaves about one minute to go through this performance and the larger leaves just about an hour.—Melbourne Times.

A Bornean Weapon.

The Bornean mandau, or "head taker," is a modification of the Burmese dah. It is a heavy, thick bladed cutlass, from twenty to thirty inches long, and the edge is ground from the right side only, the left side being forged slightly concave. The blade is also slightly curved to the right, so that the cutting action of the weapon is like that of an enormous gouge. Only two strokes can be dealt with the mandau—from right to left downward and left to right upward.—Chambers' Journal.

Indication of Interest.

"Teacher is interested in you, pa."

"How so?"

"Why, today, after she told me seven times to sit down and behave myself, she said she wondered what sort of a father I had."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Friend.

A friend whom you have been gaining during your whole life you ought not to be displeased with in a moment. A stone is many years becoming a ruby. Take care that you do not destroy it in an instant against another stone.

Happily Married.

"When may a woman be said to be happily married?"

"Not until she has had the pleasure of refusing several men."—Detroit Free Press.

In every family there is a genius who can't prove his genius. Their kind doesn't count.—Atchison Globe.

CROWDED THE HOUSE.

The Successful Scheme of a Theatrical Press Agent.

An agent who was in despair owing to his failure to get any advertising that had not been paid for found himself in a big western city with his attraction playing to strong competition and something desperately needed to attract public attention to his show. In one scene of the play a pair of handcuffs figured. The agent had an inspiration. He had the star snap a handcuff on her wrist, and then the agent concealed the key, saying it had been lost. The star was compelled to finish the act wearing the handcuff dangling from her wrist. The audience knew it should not be there, and comment was aroused. Between the next two acts the agent drove the actress swiftly to police headquarters, near at hand. The police captain was mysteriously called out. He was informed that the actress must have the handcuff removed at once and secretly, as she did not wish news of her predicament to get out. The chief brought out a big bunch of keys and finally the handcuff was removed, but not until a dozen alert reporters had snuffed a "story" and were plying the reluctant press agent with questions. Finally the whole story was pumped out of the agent, the star having returned to finish the play. Next morning the first page of every local paper had a fine story, descriptive of the plight of the actress who had accidentally fastened a handcuff to her wrist. The public was interested and flocked to see the play, and the resourceful agent went on to the next town wondering what new thing he could spring on the sensation lovers there.—William Loftus in Reader Magazine.

Marriages In Burma.

Burma is unique among the countries of the east in the position accorded to women. There is no purdah there, and, gentle as she looks, the married woman is the head of her house. The girls before their ears are pierced, which is equivalent to a coming out reception, are allowed to roam about the streets playing boyish games with their brothers and their friends, and afterward there are many opportunities for young men and women to meet at festivals, boat races and other gayeties. Marriages in Burma therefore are usually love matches, and the unmarried woman is in no hurry to change her state. Burmese women are charming, generally slender, dainty and demurely coquettish. They wear gayly colored garments, which make them look like flower beds, and their hair, which is shining and smooth, is always uncovered and decked with flowers.

Why Your Coffee Is Bad.

Bridget is an excellent cook; but, like most women of her profession, she is opinionated and insists upon making all her dishes strictly according to her own recipes. Her mistress gives her full swing not only as to cooking, but as to the purchase of supplies. The other day her mistress said to her:

"Bridget, the coffee you are giving us is very good. What kind is it?"

"It is no kind at all, mum," said Bridget. "It's a mixter."

"How do you mix it?"

"I shake it one-quarter Mocha and one-quarter Java and one-quarter Rio."

"But that's only three-quarters. What do you put in for the other quarter?"

"I put in no other quarter at all, mum. That's where so many spoil the coffee, mum—by puttin' in another quarter."—New York Press.

The Japanese Hell.

The Japanese language has no equivalent for our word "hell," but has the word "jigoku" instead. Jigoku consists of, first, eight immense hot hells, ranging one beneath the other in tiers. Each of these hells has sixteen additional hells outside its gates, like so many antechambers, so that there are in all 136 hot hells. Second, there are eight large cold hells, each with its sixteen ante-hells, making the same number of cold that there are of hot hells. Besides these 272 hot and cold hells for offenders of the common sort the wily Japs have twenty mammoth "hells of utter darkness," into which will be consigned the spirits of children who take the name of Dai Butsu, or Great Buddha, in vain.

Why He Doubted the Map.

At a St. Andrew's society dinner one of the speakers told of a Scotch gardener, recently landed, who had great difficulty in acquiring a knowledge of American geography. The son of the household, failing to teach the gardener in any other way, brought out a huge, highly colored map. The Scot looked at it critically.

"Ah, yes, lad; that may be, but it's no to be trusted. It's laid oot in the plaid o' the leein' MacFechtons," was his comment.

Wretch.

"George, did you ever love any other woman as well as you love me?"

"Oh, yes, my dear; several of them."

"Indeed! Why didn't you marry one of them instead of me?"

"Well, I suppose I'll be asking myself that question, too, same day."—Chicago Tribune.

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St.,
Chicago, Ill., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maude Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

Proper Treatment of Pneumonia.

Pneumonia is too dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself, although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of the grip, and that by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the threatened attack of pneumonia may be warded off. This remedy is also used by physicians in the treatment of pneumonia with the best results. Dr. W. J. Smith, of Sanders, Ala., who is also a druggist, says of it: "I have been selling Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years. I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results." Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

John Lorentson, one of Grit's most popular young bachelors, is now hauling timber from St. Hilaire for a new dwelling house. John must have "spied" something of late that makes him wink the other eye.

Ed. Havik, the prosperous Grit merchant, was at McIntosh last Tuesday for a load of store goods. Ed. says all that saved him from tipping over coming home again was that the snow was so deep after the storm that it could not tip if it wanted to.

Knut Olson has his office now in the Equality store, and you will find him there quite regular. If you have any kind of building plans or any kind of particular work of that kind to do, better consult contractor Olson and he will "fix it" for you. No particular hours.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Halls Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Temperance Reform Column

Edited by W. A. Swanson Grit, Minn.

Dear Readers: From now on, as time will allow me, it shall be my aim to try and bring the Temperance Reform question before the many readers of The Gazette. In doing so, it shall not be my desire, whatsoever, to make any unwarranted attack upon any one, but it shall be my aim to try and do justice to all, by presenting choice selections and "ideal thoughts" upon the Temperance question, and in the course of time "whatever flower of hope that may spring forth from it, let us cherish in our hearts."

W. A. Swanson, Editor.

THE BETTER WAY.

Someone has said: "It is better to build a fence at the top of the precipice than a hospital at the bottom." It is better to prevent sickness than to heal it. Christian homes are better than reform schools and jails. Churches for the prevention of crime are better than courts and penitentiaries for the punishment of criminals. It is better to nurse and nurture young converts than to discipline them. Our government is not acting on the theory, that a fence at the top of the precipice is better than a hospital at the bottom. A good part of machinery of the government is devoted to the punishing of criminals. The government makes saloons, and the saloons make criminals, and then at a great cost the government punishes the criminal.—By Home Defender.

⁂

The hand of Jehovah writes upon the wall of the world in burning letters: "Prepare ye the Way of the Lord!" The liquor traffic ought to die; and any politics or religion that postpones or ignores that ought to die too, and be burned with it in the middle of the middle of the Kings highway. And it will.—John G. Woolley.

⁂

"Just Smile and Let It Go," by N. E. Lovsland in Home Defender:

"A constant stream of human life
Is going down to death's dark land,
Because a vile and poisonous draughts
Is given to it by human hand,
Although you know this is so
You only smile and let it go.

Our prison bars are multiplied
To hold a drunken, criminal hand:
The stuff that makes them so is sold
To them for gain, by human hand.
You freely say that this is so
You only smile and let it go.

Our lunatic asylums, all,
Are filled with those whose minds are gone
Because of soul destroying drink
Dealt out to them from dark till dawn,
And though you know that this is so,
You only smile and let it go.

Our orphans' homes owe nearly all
Their occupants to savage drink,
That robs the little ones of home
Before they are old enough to think.
All this you know is strictly so,
And only smile and let it go.

If all the blood that has been shed
By drunken hands, were gathered up
T'would make and ocean dark and wide
And you know well who gave the cup,
Still though you know that this is so
You do but smile and let it go.

If all the widows far and near
Were placed in procession, long,
T'would be an awful argument
Against the trade in beer and rum
And yet you know that this is so
And only smile and let it go.

And every dollar that is spent
For this a [illegible] cause of orphans' woes
Is partly [illegible] by our great state
For [illegible] orphans' homes and jails.
Although [illegible] know that this is so
You on[illegible] smile and let it go

You try [illegible] save a dollar tax
By licensing the sale of rum.
And thereby set a fearful trap
To catch your own and neighbor's son.
And all the time you know 'tis so
And only smile and let it go.

Say, are you men, or only stones,
That you have lost your feelings so,
That you can sit and see unmoved,
These awful scenes of human woe.
Ah! though you know all this is so,
You only smile and let it go."

The Conductor.

Conductor Warren of the C. & N. W. R. R. says: "I had been suffering with a severe cold for several days, and was so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. Nov. 16, I met one of Dr. Warner's agents on my train, he handed me a bottle of the White Wine of Tar Syrup, and one hour after taking the first dose my hoarseness commenced leaving me. In twenty four hours my voice was quite clear and natural, the cold nearly cured. It is the best remedy I ever saw. A. L. Reichert.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

* * *

Alice Ericson, Carrie Patnode, Clara Allison, Athenian Reporters.

Those four girls who go to study? Virgil have a snap.

The decorations put up before the mock trial are still hanging.

During Geometry class Tuesday one of the girls did some meditating.

Examinations were held last week. The Junior English class boasts of two stars.

Next week the H. S. O. elect new officers to serve for the remainder of this year, and the first of next.

The third year English class is now studing "self reliance," They haven't succeeded very well.

The Seniors are excused from taking part in the programs given during the remaining part of the year.

For the sake of the lives of the High School pupils that bunting should be taken off of the walls.

The Freshmen have somewhere in their ranks, a poet or a poetess. Some beautiful productions are the result of this genius.

The class play, "The Deacon," will be given Apr. 4. Two rehersals have taken place already and the class seems to like them.

During the afternoons a pale sickly light hovers over the assembly room. It's green and yellow. These colors are not suitable for draperies.

The Spartans gave their programe last Friday, for which they received 27 points. The "A" on the H. S. O. banner has ceased to "wither."

The High School indulged in a spelling contest last Friday. Iza Tibbetts and Ella Krueger were victors on opposing sides. Ella carried off the laurels.

Two of the Freshmen were absent Monday morning. We hear they were inspecting the St. Hilaire schools. They seem to think Red Lake Falls is in the lead.

The Senior class had its picture taken last Saturday. Some of the Juniors remarked, "Oh, we think you are getting ahead of time." The class of '04 was never known to be in the rear.

Some of the High School girls have required an awful taste for kisses. One of the Juniors said "Oh, I never pay for those I get." They were only candy kisses, so she wasn't so far ahead of the rest.

Some people like to wear lots of jewelry and sometimes buy cheap ornament. The Physics class better be careful not to exhibit their jewelry, for some of it got a good dose of quick silver Monday and looks terrible.

A. L. Reichert Relies Upon Hyomei.

Cures Colds, Catarrh and Grip. Just Breathe It.

Hyomei is nature's own method for curing catarrh, colds, coughs and diseases of the respiratory organs. It is the only natural treatment for the cure of these troubles.

Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, the air that passes into the throat and lungs, is identical with that on the mountains, where it is laden with healing and health-giving balsams. It searches out and kills disease germs in the most remote and minute air cells of the head, throat and lungs, it soothes and heals all irritation of the mucous membrane.

Hyomei is prescribed by physicians generally. Many of them use it themselves to break up a cold and prevent pneumonia.

The complete Hyomei outfit consists of a neat inhaler, that is so small and convenient that it can be carried in the pocket or purse, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. This costs but $1, and it will cure any ordinary case of catarrh. In chronic and deep-seated conditions, longer use is necessary and extra bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50c., making it a most economical treatment for this disease.

A. L. Reichert has so much confidence in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrh and other diseases of the throat and lungs that he sells it under his personal guarantee to refund the money to any purchaser in case it fails to give satisfaction. He takes all the risk himself, and Hyomei costs you absolutely nothing unless it does you good.

OPEN JULY 1.

Reservation Will Likely Be Ready for Settlement Then.

It is probable that the Red Lake Indian reservation will be opened for settlement by July 1, as a special agent of Indian affairs will be sent here by direction of Secretary Hitchcock and if possible he will secure the consent of the Indians to move back to the diminished reservation within three months, which if done will make the opening not later than July 1. The act provides that the Indians shall remove within six months, but Steenerson has been advised that the Indians will consent to get off the reservation in half that time, as they are satisfied with the terms the of the law and anxious to see the lands sold.

Great Northern's New Ruling.

All uniformed employes of the Great Northern lines must purchase their clothing from a tailor named by the company. The contract for dressing the conductors, brakemen and porters has been awarded to one firm by the company and the railroad employes have been notified that hereafter their garments must be made in St. Paul.

Until the issuance of the special order by General Superintendent Slade the men were allowed to buy their clothing wherever it suited their convenience. Under the new regulations the company specifies with great detail how the employes must dress.

Passenger and dining car conductors and ticket exchangers will be required to wear brown duck vests between July 1 to Sept 1. All uniformed employes must wear white linen, with black neckties and no employee will be considered fully uniformed, if he wears flannel shirts colored linen or colored neckties. The shoes must be of black leather well polished, and employes must be clean-shaven or have beards neatly trimmed. The wearing of gaudy or heavy watch chains or jewerly will in no case be permitted. The use of tobacco and the carrying of toothpicks will not be permitted. The new order provides for uniforming conductors, passenger and dining and sleeping-car ticket exchangers passenger brakeman, news agents, sleeping car reporters, parlor and train porters and agents. The agents uniform will consist only of a cap with the word "agent" in silver letters across the front.—Minneapolis Times.

Tells His Experience.

H. L. Dudley had charge of Syd Bagley's Thief River Press during the absence of its editor last week, and while H. L. is a h. l. of a good fellow and newspaper writer, he found a communication that stunned him, though it had to be answered last week. The communication read as follows, and was from a society belle of the city:

"Will you advise me, through the columns of your valuable paper the proper time to make calls?"

"Dad" is not strong on society at all, but having a pretty thorough knowledge of conditions in and around Thief River, answered the writer, in the Press as follows:

"Your query is a trifle out of our line of business. However, we will try to elucidate the problem that has sent more good men "to the dogs" than whiskey and cigarettes ever dreamed of. To begin with always wait until you have the best hand before you call and by all means shy away from a "full house." Three aces make a good hand to call with, but "fours" are a great deal better. Aces and eights, we are told is a dead man's hand, and if you enjoy life give them a wide berth. When your opponent offers to divide you can make up your mind that he is "four flushing," and that's the time to play the cheque rack at him. We hope you will win $40,000 by following this advice and then come in and pay your subscription."

REPUBLICANS HOLD COUNTY CONVENTION

Harmonious and Well Attended Session Starts The 1904 Campaign Ball Rolling.

The opening gun of the Republican campaign for 1904 was fired Tuesday, when the county convention to nominate delegates to the Republican district and state conventions was held at the court house in this city.

While there was comparatively little cause for interest in this convention, nevertheless the meeting was well attended and considerable enthusiasm was aroused for the work ahead.

At 1:30 Chairman Dobner, with the grace and ease with which he presides, called the convention to order and Messrs. Patterson and Ives, of St. Hilaire, and Bakke, of Thief River Falls, were appointed a committee on credentials.

Their report on those entitled to seats in the meeting was as follows:

St. Hilaire—D. Patterson, T. J. Torkelson and H. E. Ives.

Thief River Falls—1st ward, K. J. Wecks, J. W. Eastman, C. L. Dobner. 2nd ward, H. L. Dudley, F. H, Kratka, J. M. Bishop. 3rd ward—D. B. Bakke.

Red Lake Falls—1st ward, S. M. Sivertson, J. J. Padden, G. G. Kindseth. 2nd ward, Frank E. Hunt, N. M. Watson, Sam S. Haislet. 3rd ward, John A. Duffy, Thomas Germo, A. P. Toupin.

Polk Center—S. J. Swanson, Chas. Naplin, C. L. Leppert.

Poplar River—Chas. Hallas, Jos. Pigeon, Rock Lefebvre.

Terrebonne—Geo. Dupont, J. F. Mathews.

Emardville—Paul I. D. Ostby.

Lambert—A. E. Sorenson, Louis Doncet.

Red Lake Falls twp.—L. H. Freeze.

After the reading of the call by Secretary Germo, the convention proceeded to ballot upon delegates to the Congressional convention at Crookston, the following gentleman being chosen delegates:

Messrs. Watson, Sivertson, Toupin Germo and Belair, of Red Lake Falls; Richardson and Bishop, of Thief River Falls; Torkelson, of St. Hilaire; Swanson, of Wylie and Hallas, of Poplar River.

As all of the delegates elected expressed a willingness to attend, the election of alternates was dispensed with.

The election of eight delegates to the state convention, which selects four delegates to the National Republican convention, was then taken up, the following being chosen:

Messrs. Watson, Toupin, Sortedahl, Bourdon, Simons and Haislet, of Red Lake Falls; Torkelson, of St. Hilaire; Bakke, of Thief River Falls.

As in the former case the election of alternates was dispensed with.

The chair appointed Messrs. Ives, Dudley and Haislet a committee to draft resolutions, and the following were submitted:

Resolved, That the Republicans of Red Lake county in convention assembled, felicitate the Republican party of the state and nation upon the faithful performance by its public officers of the commission entrusted to them, upon the general optimism and good cheer so prevalent in its rank and file, born as well from distant and recent achievements for mankind as from the strong feeling of security and confidence in the future success of the party.

We most heartily endorse the wise, patriotic and manly administration of that strenuous American, Theodore Roosevelt, and employing the words used on a former occasion re-affirm that "its acts have been established in wisdom and in patriotism, and at home and abroad it has distinctly elevated and extended the influence of the American nation. Walking untried paths and facing unforseen responsibilities, President Roosevelt has been in every situation the true American patriot and the upright statesman, clear in vision, strong in judgment, firm in action, always inspiring and deserving the confidence of his countrymen.

Resolved, further, that our delegations to the congressional convention at Crookston and to the state convention at Minneapolis be instructed, and they hereby are instructed to stand unalterably for such delegates to the Republican national convention at Chicago as shall stand first, last and all the time for Theodore Roosevelt for president, to the end that the delegation from Minnesota may stand as firmly and unflinchingly for Roosevelt as the latter stands firmly and unflinchingly for the enforcement of law.

On motion the convention adjourned.

ANNOUNCES APPORTIONMENT.

According to Superintendent Olson Red Lake Gets $4,737.15.

J. W. Olson, state superintendent of public instruction, announced Tuesday the March apportionment of the current school fund.

The total amount in the fund to be divided at this time was $511,669.75, and as the aggregate number of pupils that had fulfiled the requirements for participation was 352,867, the basis of apportionment was $1.45 per capita.

In the disbursement of last March 353,918 pupils shared in the fund, and the basis of apportionment was $1.30. The basis of apportionment in the settlement of last October was $2.30; but the fund was greater at that time than in March.

It is required by law that every pupil to be enumerated to the credit of a county for the purpose of participation in this fund must have attended school forty days of the preceding term.

Red Lake county gets $4,737.15, as her share for 3,267 pupils.

Queer Arrangement

The holidays for 1904 are peculiarly arranged for this year, and the bankers and officials will have abundant time to enjoy themselves. There will be five bunches of two days each. George Washington, the hero of the American people, and incidentally the apple tree, celebrated his birthday anniversary Monday, and the banker and some others had two and a half days of rest, as they knocked off [illegible]. Memorial day also comes on Monday and the Fourth of July likewise, while Labor Day has always been on Monday. Christmas and New years are scheduled for Sunday, and that means that either Saturday or Monday will have to be celebrated. So you will notice that Monday is to be a very popular day during the year 1904.

EARLY MORNING CONFLAGRATION.

Palace Hotel and Several Business Buildings Go up In Smoke.— Close Call for Block.

At about two o'clock Tuesday morning fire was discovered in the Palace hotel building at the corner of Main and Third streets, owned by Latendresse Bros., and by the time the firemen turned out it was plainly evident that the building was doomed. Two streams of water were at once turned into the work of saving the balance of the frame row, and for three hours the firemen put up as pretty and stubborn a fight as is usually witnessed, finally conquering the blaze and adding laurels to their caps as fire fighters.

At the time the fire was first discovered a light wind was blowing from the northwest, but before the fire had gained great headway the wind entirely subsided, which made the firemens' work on the frame row more effective, and helped them win their fight.

From a picturesque standpoint the fire was all that could be desired, and a good share of the population were out to watch the beautiful illumination.

The Palace was unoccupied as a hostlery, but the saloon of Latendresse Bros. occupied the north room, and their entire stock and fixtures, as well as the hotel furniture, were totally destroyed.

Adjoining the Palace on the north two buildings were destroyed, both belonging to John A. Duffy. One was occupied by the Union Land and Investment company and the other by the Gonigam Land company. The furniture and fixtures of both land firms were saved and their losses will be small. All down the row furniture and stocks of goods were moved out, but the excellent work done by the firemen made it necessary to move them back the next day.

The losses, as reported are as follows:

Latendresse Bros., building, saloon fixtures and furniture, $11,000; insurance $6,000.

J. A. Duffy, buildings, $2500; insurance, $1500.

P. B. Gaass, furniture, etc., $450; insurance, $300.

The big hole left in upper Main street will probably not long remain unoccupied. The Gazette understands that plans are under way to erect at least one substantial brick block, and maybe more, which is to be hoped is the case. There are several business concerns that are in need of store room, and the builder of modern buildings in place of the ones destroyed can be assured of good returns on their investment.

We all hope, and trust, that out of the ash heaps that today grace one of the prettiest corners of the city, will arise beautiful and lasting structures, to add dignity and beauty to the best town in the territory.

What One Silver Dollar Did.

Adrian Democrat: We saw seven dollars in debts paid the other day with one dollar. It was in this way A owed B three dollars, B owed C two dollars and C owed A two dollars. A having a silver dollar handed it to B telling him to credit it on the three dollars he owed him. B then immediately handed it to C thereby paying half of his indebtedness to him. C in turn handed the dollar to A and thus paid to A half of what he owed him. A again passed the same dollar over to B telling B he had now paid two dollars on three he owed him. B again handed the same dollar to C and settled his indebtedness in full, and then C passed the dollar back to A which paid his debt to A in full, and A turned the same dollar over to B for the third time which paid his three dollars [illegible] to B. Thus seven dollars indebtednees was settled with a silver dollar! This illustrates what a small amount of money will do if it is kept moving.

PALACE OF EDUCATION, WORLD'S FAIR.

Showing a portion of the South Facade. The graceful and imposing colonnade is repeated on all sides.

TO STUDY THE FAIR.

Excellent Opportunities For Public Schools to Attend the Exposition In Bodies—Special Rates to Be Arranged.

The school children living within a reasonable radius of St. Louis will have opportunities in connection with the World's Fair which never before have been offered by any exposition. As this Exposition is to be distinctively educational in all its departments, special attention has been paid by the management to the development of the study idea in connection with the Fair.

The correspondence of the officials shows that the teachers or directors of many public schools in Missouri and other states not greatly distant from the Exposition are desirous of making arrangements to bring their pupils in bodies to the Fair in order that the children may pass a few days in studying the features of the great spectacle for their own intellectual benefit.

Already a number of such trips have been planned, those in charge of each school making arrangements with the railroads for special transportation rates and securing hotel or boarding house accommodations in St. Louis, not too far from the fair grounds, at reduced prices. There is every probability that during the summer vacation, and also in the spring and fall, there will be numerous excursions to St. Louis of school children who will attend the Exposition in charge of their teachers and give particular attention to the features which are best calculated to aid them in mental development.

Teachers as well pupils cannot fail to derive great benefit from a study of the Exposition. In the Palace of Education will be arranged an enormous mass of material collected from the schools of every state and nation, scientifically classified and showing an invaluable comparative exhibit of the work of school children the world over; also there will be a vast amount of material serving to show the best methods of teaching, sanitation of schoolrooms and other things of interest in this connection.

Special facilities are to be provided at the Exposition for the comfort and convenience of such visiting bodies of teachers and pupils. Jefferson Guards or other competent guides will be detailed to pilot the parties through the grounds and buildings, pointing out the objects of greatest interest to the children. From time to time there will be lectures along educational lines.

But the entire Exposition is to be a vast picture of universal industry, and with its many marvelous machines in motion, its factories and mines in operation, and its thorough exposition of the processes of producing finished articles from the raw material, it will furnish object lessons to both teacher and pupil which will be entertaining as well as highly instructive. The child's natural interest in seeing how things work will be one of the greatest aids toward the acquisition of knowledge. It is safe to assert that there will be thousands of children at the World's Fair who will learn more in one day's observation of the great moving panorama than they could imbibe from a whole season's teaching through the medium of text books.

Suppose, for instance, that a teacher desires to give his pupils information as to the products of the various states of the Union. A walk along the Plateau of States, where the state buildings are located, suggests itself. In each of these handsome buildings the children will be able to gain information which might require months to obtain in any other way. Further information may be acquired by visiting the exhibit palaces and studying the displays of the products of the states that will be found therein.

If it is desired that the children learn something about the actual workings of mines, a trip through the great mining gulch on the Exposition Grounds will furnish the information. Here the pupils may see gold, silver, copper, lead and coal mines in operation, all the processes of taking out and reducing the ores being shown.

A considerable knowledge of history and a taste for historical reading may be imparted to the school children by slight effort upon the part of their teachers in visiting the Government building and examining the precious documents to be shown there. Here also the science of civil government may be taught to much better advantage than from text books, for each department of the National Government will have its separate exhibit, showing the workings of the departments, its methods and aims.

To afford the pupils a general idea of the nations of the world it will be necessary merely to make a tour of the foreign government buildings, the teachers taking the pains to describe the habits, industries and arts of the respective peoples represented.

Suggestions as to how to study the Exposition to best advantage will be prepared by competent persons and furnished to those in charge of school children.

FEATURES OF EDUCATION.

How the Exhibit at St. Louis Will Be Distinctive From That at Any Other Centennial.

By CLAUDE H. WETMORE.

Education finds more recognition in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition than in any previous centennial celebration. It is the keynote of the great enterprise, permeating every display. Moreover, the idea in its abstract has a home of its own, in that for the first time in history the appliances of school life are shown in a building constructed exclusively for this purpose.

At Chicago and at Paris this exhibit was made a department of something else. At St. Louis it is seen alone, housed in a palace which many consider the most perfect architecturally of any on the grounds.

Besides, in the classification of exhibits education leads all others, taking rank over fine arts, manufacture and all the industries.

In remarking these facts visitors have added that it was strange such prominence had not been given to education before, and they are loud in their praise of those who have carried the idea so prominently to the front.

In St. Louis the revealment of process will be carried out in the Palace of Education as well as in the other palaces. Formerly it was deemed sufficient to arrange in booths samples of text books and of apparatus of the laboratory and observatory. Appliances used in the schoolroom were displayed conventionally, and visitors could pass through aisle after aisle and view only the technicalities of the world of instruction. As a result the pedagogue only was interested.

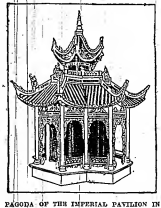
In St. Louis, however, there is to be actual demonstration of the use made of all such appliances, and the multitude will find itself entertained. Thus the model training school will be a creature of life—boys to be seen using the tools of the various trades. Pupils of a school for the blind will demonstrate the methods in vogue where the sense of touch is made to supply that of sight, and those who are deaf and dumb will also be given opportunity to display their method of instruction.

College professors at work in laboratories promise entertainment for the layman, and likewise there will be demonstration of the methods employed in using the modern telescope and taking photographs of the sun, moon and stars.

Supplementing these active exhibits will be others quite as interesting that have been secured from all over the world by means of the camera. Enter one booth and turn the swinging doors of a movable cabinet. You will see picture after picture illustrating school life, the children entering a class room, the pupils at recitation, in a fire drill, during the recess hour—in fact, through all the stages from the hour when they assemble for their studies until time comes for dismissal.

As illustrations of public school life in large cities, New York, St. Louis, Cleveland and other municipalities have planned to make extensive displays, while cities of the old world will bring their systems into comparison.

Higher education is exemplified as never before at a world's fair. All the large colleges of the United States have prepared extensive exhibits which are supplemented by displays from technical institutions.



PAGODA OF THE IMPERIAL PAVILION IN THE CHINESE RESERVATION, WORLD'S FAIR.

Both interesting and novel will be the exhibits made by the Agricultural department of the Federal government in the Education building, for which congress made a special appropriation of $100,000. These will be in the nature of experiment stations such as have been established at various places throughout the country for the practical education of those who desire to study the scientific questions of agriculture and horticulture. Here will be demonstrated the best system of fertilizing the soil, of sowing the seeds, of caring for the crops, of harvesting them, and then for handling the same in barns and storehouses. Visitors to the Exposition will be given the opportunity for instruction in the diseases which infest the realm of Flora and the medicines or surgery that must be employed to combat the dangerous inroads.

Located on the Grand basin and commanding a view of the Cascades, the Terrace of States and the Hall of Festivals, the Palace of Education, itself a portion of the main picture, can be reached by either the broad boulevards or by transit over the crystal waters of the Lagoon. Its visitors may reach its doors in roller chairs, on foot or in gondola or electric launch.

In this building, as in the others, especial arrangements have been made for the comfort of the sightseers. Multitudinous windows permit of free currents of air constantly circulating, and withdrawal rooms are at every hand where one can sit down after becoming fatigued from too much exploration.

WORLD'S FAIR NEWS NOTES

The Department of Justice will show at St. Louis photographs of the large prisons, penitentiaries and workhouses in the United States, with specimens of work done by prisoners.

During his exile on St. Helena Napoleon told his physician, Dr. O'Meara, that the sale of the Louisiana territory to the United States was one act of his life to which he looked back with the greatest pleasure.

Mr. James F. Early has produced a superb model of the Library of Congress which will be the principal feature in the exhibit to be made under Dr. Putnam's direction at St. Louis for the government. Several of the beautiful Corinthian columns in miniature have already been completed. This work when finished promises to sustain Mr. Early's fine reputation as a sculptor and architect.

The exhibit of Alaskan trade and enterprises will be one of the most interesting at the Exposition. The resources of the Klondike—the seal, salmon, cod and halibut fisheries—will be extensively exploited. A family of Alaskan seals will be brought to St. Louis. A unique anthropological exhibit of desirable specimens will be seen. The Alaskan building is a typical Alaskan structure with four giant totem poles on each corner.

The original treaty for the purchase of the Louisiana territory, now in the vaults of the Department of State, is written on six pages of Irish linen paper bound together with a piece of green silk ribbon. The original document will be taken to St. Louis, and the first page, securely protected, will be exhibited.

A model creamery is a leading feature of the dairy section. It is 180 by 20 feet, with walls of glass. Visitors may see every process of buttermaking from the cans of fresh milk to the yellow rolls or other packages.

FEATURES of THE WORLD'S FAIR

A model farm, representing a section of 160 acres, illustrating the value of crop rotation in farming, will be one of the interesting exhibits provided by the Government. A model farmhouse, model barn, stables and outbuildings will be erected, and there will be an orchard, vineyard, garden, stock and poultry yards, pigsties and all of the other equipments for a farmstead.

A floral clock with a dial 100 feet in diameter is on the northern slope in front of the Palace of Agriculture. It is the largest timepiece ever constructed. The minute hand is fifty feet long and the numerals fifteen feet high. Flowers and foliage plants conceal the mechanical frame.

A rose garden, with 50,000 rose trees, covers four acres on the east front of the Palace of Agriculture.

A six acre map of the United States constructed of representative growing crops of each state is a Government exhibit. Cinder paths three feet wide mark the boundaries between states, permitting free passage of visitors.

The largest organ ever built, with 145 stops and pipes five feet in diameter, is in Festival Hall. It will be used for concerts and other musical features held in this structure.

A fireproof building containing 2,000 safety deposit boxes is provided for the use of the World's Fair visitors. Money and other valuables may be left in safe keeping for a small fee.

The Liberty bell will be exhibited in the rotunda of the Pennsylvania building. It will be the first time it ever crossed the Mississippi river.

Flag Poles.

With proper care a flag pole ought to last a great many years in spite of the incessant exposure to the elements. Of course the best preservative of wood is paint, and a man who has a flagstaff which has cost him a good sum of money should see that it is painted at least once every twelve months. Flag poles generally rot at the bottom first and then have to be taken down to prevent them from falling of their own weight.

Rebuking an Emperor.

Once, so the story goes, Emperor Nicholas of Russia asked Liszt to play in his presence. The musician complied, but during the performance the czar started a conversation with an aid-de-camp. Liszt stopped playing at once. The czar asked what was the matter. "When the emperor speaks," said Liszt, "every one must be silent." The czar smilingly took the hint, and the playing proceeded.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

Official and private reports both indicate that Admiral Togo's fourth attack on Port Arthur on March 10 was the most effective since the first assault of a month ago. One Russian torpedo boat destroyer was sunk and several Russian torpedo boat destroyers seriously damaged. The fortifications and city were subjected to a heavy bombardment lasting nearly four hours. The naval bombardment of the land works has generally been ineffective, yet the peculiar topographical conditions of Port Arthur make immunity from serious loss from bombardment almost impossible.

According to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph vague rumors are current there that later telegrams describe the bombardment of Port Arthur as much more serious than has been admitted officially. Special dispatches from Tokio and Yinkow also give reports of heavy Russian casualties at Port Arthur, amounting to 40 men killed and 100 wounded, but they are so conflicting in details that it is not wise to give them much credence.

According to the Tientsin correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph the Japanese have advanced from the Yalu river, captured Fungwangchang and drove out the Russians in the vicinity to the Takuling eastern pass and are in force seventy miles east of Newchwang. The move is considered most important, as the Japs have turned the Russian flank and threaten their line of communication.

Vice Admiral Kamimuro, in command of the Japanese fleet, reporting the bombardment of Vladivostok on March 6, says the attack commenced at 1:50 in the afternoon and the firing was kept up about forty minutes. He believes the bombardment was effective and demoralizing to the enemy. The Russian forts did not reply to the Japanese fire.

All the ships of the Russian Port Arthur squadron are again in fighting trim except the Retvizan, which is lying at the neck of the entrance to the harbor and serves the purpose of a strong battery. The garrison of Port Arthur is 40,000 strong and they have provisions enough to last two years.

A Japanese fleet of fourteen vessels bombarded Port Arthur for eight hours Thursday. The Russian forts and fleet replied to the Jap fire. In the official report of the affair sent to St. Petersburg no mention is made of any casualties or damage ashore as a result of the bombardment.

The Russian torpedo boat flotilla left Port Arthur at daylight Friday and attacked the Japanese fleet. One Japanese torpedo boat was sunk and one Russian torpedo boat destroyer met the same fate. Part of the crew of the latter was drowned and the balance captured.

The forthcoming visit of the Marquis Ito as a special ambassador from the emperor of Japan to the emperor of Korea claims general attention at Tokio. In official circles it is insisted that the object of Marquis Ito's visit to Korea is not politically important.

The Russian minister at Peking has made firm representations to the Chinese government concerning the activity of Chinese troops along the Manchurian frontier, with a pointed intimation of the defensive measures Russia may be compelled to adopt.

The crews of the merchant vessels captured by Japanese warships since the war began have just been released and in all 400 Russians, Chinese and Germans have been turned over to various consuls to be sent back to their own countries.

It is reported on good authority that a collision between Japanese and Russian troops has occurred near Haiju, Korea, fifty-four miles northwest of Chemulpo, which resulted in the defeat of the Russians.

A Nagasaki correspondent of the London Express asserts that 200,000 troops have been shipped from Japan and that a portion of the Second army corps is now on its way to Korea.

News has reached Osaka of an engagement between Russians and Japanese a hundred miles from Vladivostok. The Russians fled, abandoning arms and stores.

Vice Admiral Makaroff, who will take command of the Russian Pacific fleet, has arrived at Port Arthur and hoisted his flag on the cruiser Askold.

A Chinese refugee from Hsuyen insists that the Russians are retreating from the Yalu river and destroying villages en route.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Representative George W. Croft of Aiken, S. C., is dead at Washington. Mr. Croft was fifty-seven years of age and one of the most prominent lawyers in South Carolina.

John W. White, head attorney of the Modern Woodmen, is dead at Rock Island, Ill. He was fifty-one years old. Mr. White has been identified with the Woodmen since 1890.

General Henry Boynton of Augusta, Me., an officer who won distinction in the Civil war, is dead of heart disease. He was seventy-three years old.

Former State Senator Hiram F. Stevens is dead at St. Paul. Mr. Stevens was one of the most prominent lawyers in Minnesota.

Robert Taber, the actor and divorced husband of Julia Marlowe, is dead at Saranac Lake, N. Y.

Senor Alvarez, vice president of Uruguay, is dead.

POLITICAL NEWS.

The South Dakota Republican state central committee has selected Sioux Falls as the place and May 4 as the date for holding the state convention for nominating congressional and state tickets.

Representative Gentiles of Salt Lake City held a meeting and took preliminary steps towards the organization of a non-Mormon party.

Rhode Island delegates to the national Democratic convention favor the nomination of William R. Hearst for president.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

The large car ferry steamer Shenango No. 1, owned by the Pere Marquette and Bessemer Dock and Navigation company and valued at $350,000, was entirely destroyed by fire off Conneaut, O., resulting in the death of Fireman Charles McCarter of Cheboygan, Mich., and the probable fatal injury of Engineer Morrell.

HAVE WON THIER SPURS.

The Republican candidates for national and state officers will carry Red Lake county at the coming fall election, and the wave of Populism, which swept over Minnesota will have have been washed upon the sands.

The Gazette cannot say that it gloats over this fact to any great extent, as we all must realize that to have a government that will stand, honest difference of opinion must of necessity exist, and to the men who have valiantly carried the Populist banners during the life of that party, great credit is due. Without doubt their work was from the heart, and while the problem has perhaps not been definitely settled, nevertheless the platforms have been proven at fault in a great many of their principles, and failed to stand the test put to them.

In this connection it is but fair to presume that a great majority of those who have worked for the Populist success will come to their first love—the G. O. P. There are several very good reasons why they should do this, too. Probably to the Democratic party, more than to any other factor in politics, can the Populists trace the defeat of their party and their principles.

In the minority for years, the Democrats eargerly grasped at the rising Populistic god; and by intrigue succeeded in securing fusion, never to the advance of the Populistic interests but always rather to their detriment. "Anything to win" became the slogan, and instead of the worthy principles on which Populism was founded becoming the point at issue, in each succeeding campaign they were blinded into subordinating their own battleground for the more spectacular one of the Democratic party, and where success did crown their efforts they also saw the Democrats get the plums.

The Republican party gladly welcomes the return of the prodigals and realizes that to its ranks are being added men who have earned their spurs in battles fought and lost for principles worthy of the struggle.

There is a scrap on between the people of what was once Columbia county and the commissioners of Polk, the Columbia people attempting to make Polk county pay the expenses incurred by their officers before the Supreme Court snuffed out their light. Red Lake county has gone through one experience something on the same order, when it was forced to pay a large part of the indebtedness of Polk county, and little Columbia will without doubt come out second best in her tilt with the craftier, but undoubtedly less scrupulous fellows who sit at Crookston and pull the wires.

Farmers should not forget to call ... when in town ...

LEST WE FORGET.

There is a danger that the republicans of Minnesota will be so engrossed with the contest for governor that they will fail to pay attention to the other places on the ticket. One of the hottest fights in the history of the state will be waged for the next four months with the governship as its prize, and other places on the ticket as mere pawns. Control of the party machinery will go to the elements which win in the fight for governor and in playing for such high stakes funds will lavishly spent. Candidates for offices will be considered as "trading stock," says the Minneapolis Journal.

The people of the state have a decided interest in the occupants of of other offices at the capitol, and it is time they were paying some attention to the so-called minor nominations. The railroad and warehouse commission has a more direct bearing on the welfare of business men and the great army of producers than the governorship. Two of the three commissioners come up for re-election this year, and there is no doubt that certain railroad interests of the state will take just as much interest in those nominations as in the governorship.

Ira B. Mills and Joseph G. Miller, the two commissioners whose terms expire, are both candidates again. There is a strong public sentiment in favor of retiring both of them. The official conrse of the commission in the past three years has not been satisfactory to the public, and the popular demand is for a change. While the railroad corporations are understood to be well satisfied with the commission as it stands, they would not object to a change if it brought two more commissioners of the same type. It is all very well to demand a change, but what sort of a change? There is a field of seven or eight new candidates in the race already. Do they furnish reasonable hope of improvement?

These are questions the republican voters of the state should be asking themselves. If new men are nominated for the commission they should be men who can be implicity trusted to served the public, with justice to shippers and to common carriers, men who will serve faithfully and without resorting to tricks of the demagog. They should be men of clean records and private character beyond reproach. Why not make an effort to secure a high-class railroad commission?

It is gratifying to note the interest that has been awakened among the farmers of this region for drainage enterprises, says the Fertile Journal. According to Geo. Ralph, engineer of the state drainage board, 800 miles of state and county ditches have been completed in the northwestern part of the state during the last few years, and the area drained is estimated at 1,600,000 acres. Most of this land was formerly entirely usetess but when drained furnished an excellent soil for farming purposes and is selling at from $8 to $13 an acre. As the population increases and the price on lands advance the importance of proper drainage will be more fully realized, and it will no doubt work wonders for many parts in the near future.

Figures given out by the state board of control show that there are 6,636 persons confined in state institutions—penal and charitable—against 6,377 inmates in the same institutions this time last year. There are found to be 3,896 persons in insane hospitals, 2,276 males and 1,620 females. In correctional and penal institutions are 1,190 males, 86 females, a total of 1,276. The state prison at Stillwater has 635 inmates but 9 of whom are females.

Nearly 2,000 teachers passed the winter examinations for certificates to teach school in this state. Out of 4,811 applicants 1,923 passed the examinations. Last year only 29.5 per cent passed while this year 39.5 stood the test. There were 530 applicants for first grade certificates, 2,157 for second grade, 2,064 for limited certificates and 60 for renewals.

Editor Lanman, whose love for the Crookstonites isn't of the rosy hue color, dishes up this "hot one" in his last week's paper: "Crookston is fearing a flood, and here's hoping it gets it good and plenty. A city that is so short sighted and selfish as to oppose the only natural remedy for an evil which damages the settlers along the river's course to the extent of thousands of dollars annually, and that for the sake of putting a few more unearned dollars into the pockets of Tom Shevlin and W. J. Murphy, deserves to be flooded, enough, at least, to wash a little sense into it."

An exchange remarks: "Many a woman goes out shopping dressed in silk and enveloped in perfume whose hard working husband has not had a new suit of clothes or a decent meal in five years." And the Goodhue Enterprise adds, pointedly, "yes and many a loafer staggers down the street with a tank full of beer and a mouth full of profanity whose hard working wife hasn't had a new dress or a kind word since she was married."

Some Pertinent Pointers.

At a recent meeting of the North Dakota Grocers' convention a brief but pointed talk on advertising was given by W. C. Short, of Pembina, who has made "$horts $atisfactory $tore," a household word in that section of the state. Mr. Short said in part:

Tell the truth. If you feel you must stretch it, do a good job of it. Some people admire a first class liar but hate a prevaricator.

Don't put too much in your ads. Grape shot may hit more people but a rifle shot will be more likely to bring them down.

Don't get discouraged because you loaded with buckshot and only brought down small game. The best of them miss it sometimes.

Don't be afraid to quote a price for fear your competitor will find it out. He's not nearly so big a "bogey man" as you think he is, besides he'll know what kind of a show you're running as soon as you ring your curtain up.

Don't try to sell July goods in January. You'll be like a boy with a pair of Doukhabour trousers on folk's can't tell whether you are going or coming. Close out your left overs before the season is gone.

Don't write your advertisement for the paper the last day in the afternoon. Give the printer a chance.

Don't stop advertising if it isn't paying you—improve it. And lastly,

Don't use John Waunamaker adjectives to described a John Smith stock. As a rule it will produce a misfit.

A Good Place to Come.

Crookston Journal: At the present hour there is no portion of the United States that offers greater inducements to the young men than Northern Minnesota. It is not a vast arid region which will take millions of capital to irrigate in order that wealth may come. There are many avenues of business which will require large capital to open, but there are also thousands of opportunities for the young man without capital or with a few hundred or thousand dollars. During the coming season there will be hundreds of lines of railway built, villages will spring up like mushrooms and opportunities will be found by hundreds to lay the foundation of a comfortable fortune.

Unlike the far west, there is no great inrush of men from every quarter of the globe every time an opportunity presents itself to make a dollar. There are people looking for opportunities to make money in Northern Minnesota, but it has not been heralded as an Eldorado from one end of the country to the other, and is not the subject of as much "prospecting" as the far west.

Yet it is quite as rich in possibilities. It has greater deposits of coal and iron. Its forests are filled with timber valuable for factory and homestead consumption. Its soil is rich and will bring great returns in crops of all descriptions. It is the land of opportunity to the young and ambitious.

It is Possible.

Imp rtant to Farmers.

The writer spent many years in Minnesota and the Dakotas in the grain business and made a special study of grain production. We were always convinced that short crops were more the result of poor farming and poor seeds than climate conditions. The manner of farming has materially changed and at the present time the quality of seed requires more attention then any time in the history of the country.

We recommend that farmers give this matter attention in their own way to secure a good quality of seed and thus aid in securing a better yeild of better quality. This is simply a business proposition and should not be delayed. The present seed in many localities is poor quality. They should dispose of this by exchanging it for sound, plump seed free from smut germs. The difference in value in quality was presented forcibly this year.

In every locality some farmers have a better quality of seed than others. Do not let the best seed leave the country and then be obliged to use the poorer quality for seed. Secure a cleaning mill, you can purchase one for $15.00 that will throughly clean your seed with a solution to destroy smut germ, that will not cost to exceed two cents per acre and with good, sound plump seed well cleaned and treated, on well tilled ground, and the result is increased production, and of better quality.

In securing seed from a distance if there is no desirable seed in your locality always secure seed produced north of your locality, it will for a period of at least three years produce better results. Any elevator or grain man will tell you how to treat your seed to destroy smut germs, and now is the time to change seed and have it carefully prepared and ready. Your land is becoming more valuable; good productions will further increase its value. You have a reputation to sustain and you cannot do it without exercising care, and using good seed.—Exchange.

A GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE.

A. L. Reichert Will Return Money If Hyomei Fails. No Stomach Dosing.

Hyomei has made so many cures of the most chronic and deep seated cases of catarrh, that A. L. Reichert consider it a specific in this disease.

He extends an invitation to all caterrh sufferers to call at his store and purchase a Hyomei outfit with the distinct understanding that it will be absolutely free unless it effects a cure.

The chief reason for the unusual success of Hyomei in the treatment of catarrhal troubles and other diseases of the air passages, is the fact that it cures by a new principle, impregnating the air you breathe with healing and germ-killing balsams. On this account it reaches the seat of the disease in a way impossible to pills, druge or stomach dosing.

Many of A. L. Reichert's customers who have suffered with catarrh since childhood have been cured completely by this scientific remedy.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs $1, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the purse or pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. Extra bottles can be obtained for 50c., making it the most economical remedy for the cure of caterrh.

Do not suffer longer with caterrhal disorders, but get a Hyomei outfit from A. L. Reichert, under his guarantee to return the money if it fails. You run no risk whatever. If it cures, the treatment is not expensive, while if it fails, A. L. Reichert will refund your money and it costs you absolutely nothing.

INDIAN IS A CANNIBAL

KILLS HIS WIFE AND CHILD AND DEVOURS THEIR BODIES TO AVERT STARVATION.

Farmhand Near Fairmont Commits Suicide After Mortally Wounding His Employer—Duluth Boy Shoots His Father While Suffering From a Nightmare—Hiram F. Stevens, a Leading St. Paul Attorney, Dies After Brief Illness.

Duluth, March 12.—Gust Brandon, who has been cruising between Tower and Koochiching, arrived here at night on his way to Minneapolis and confirmed the report of the alleged cannibalism on the Nett Lake reservation.

Brandon was near Pelican Lake at the time the Indian was claimed to have killed and eaten his wife and child and the second day after, which was about two weeks ago, met a small party of Boise Fort Indians who were on their way to the west end of Vermilion lake.

From these Indians Brandon learned of the killing and says his information is unquestionably authentic. He was told that the Indian who is claimed to have committed the horrible deed was a shiftless sort of a fellow and during a drunken spree killed his wife and child and later devoured parts of their bodies to avert starvation.

This Indian lived in a distant part of the reservation and the first news of the deed was brought by a guide. A party was sent to the Indian's cabin at once and will bring him to Nett Lake is possible.

DEATH ENDS MURDER MANIA.

Farmhand Commits Suicide After Mortally Wounding Employe.

Fairmont, Minn., March 14—Robert Williams, a farmhand, attacked with a pocketknife and fatally wounded his employer, William Plumhoff, made a desperate attempt to murder Mrs. Plumhoff and her infant child and then discharged a gun against his own head with instant fatal effect.

Williams and Plumhoff were working around the latter's place, about eight miles from here, when suddenly and without warning Williams struck Plumhoff a blow over the head, felling him to the ground. Williams then drew his knife and repeatedly slashed the throat and abdomen of his victim.

Williams then secured a gun and aimed at Mrs. Plumhoff, who held the child in her arms. The shot missed its mark and the woman escaped and ran to a neighbor's house. Williams then placed the muzzle of the gun against his head, pulled the trigger with a stick and literally blew his head off.

There is little chance of Plumhoff's recovery, as he had nearly bled to death before he was discovered by neighbors.

HEALTH

"I don't think we could keep house without Thedford's Black-Draught. We have used it in the family for over two years with the best of results. I have not had a doctor in the house for that length of time. It is a doctor in itself and always ready to make a person well and happy."—JAMES HALL, Jacksonville, Ill.

Because this great medicine relieves stomach pains, frees the constipated bowels and invigorates the torpid liver and weakened kidneys is necessary in the home where Thedford's Black-Draught is kept. Families living in the country, miles from any physician, have been kept in health for years with this medicine as their only doctor. Thedford's Black-Draught cures biliousness, dyspepsia, colds, chills and fever, bad blood, headaches, diarrhœa, constipation, colic and almost every other ailment because the stomach, bowels liver and kidneys so nearly control the health.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

Brede Bredeson is moving goods to Erskine now. He will soon move for good with his family.

Pete Tranby and Miss Julie Jacobson, of Red Lake Falls, visited Ed. Jacobson Sunday at his Garnes home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Tranby, of the town of Knute, after visiting their daughter, Mrs. Ed. Jacobson, returned home last week.

Abraham Steen returned home last week from Grand Forks, where he has been sick for over a month with pneumonia.

There will be church services next Sunday. Let there be a good attendance as the Sacraments will be served the same day.

Adolph Charpantier, who has been seriously sick for a long time, is reported a little improved. He claims his sickness was pneumonia.

Jacob Jacobson purchased two steers of Ed. Jacobson last week. He will break the steers to a team and take them to Canada, where he goes the last of the month.

Your correspondent returned from a business trip to Erskine. Last week on the way he met the buyers, that purchased the right-of-way from Detroit to Emerson, Canada. Most of the farmers have settled, south from Erskine, at $20 per acre. The contract has been let by Foaly Bros. for $1,500 per mile. The contract calls for 200 miles, from Detroit to Emerson.

Proper Treatment of Pneumonia.

Pneumonia is too dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself, although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of the grip, and that by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the threatened attack of pneumonia may be warded off. This remedy is also used by physicians in the treatment of pneumonia with the best results. Dr. W. J. Smith, of Sanders, Ala., who is also a druggist, says of it: "I have been selling Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years. I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results." Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

REMEDY FOR CROUP

Mrs. Mary Cress Writes Letter That Gives Valuable Information to Mothers.

The following letter has been sent to this office with the request to publish for the benefit of mothers whose children are subject to croup.

Editor of The Gazette.

As there are so many dear children at this season of the year suffering with croup, I feel an earnest desire to let mothers know of a remedy for this dread disease.

This is in no way an advertisement nor do I expect one one cent of remuneration, I simply feel so very grateful for the wonderful releif my child has had that I want other mothers to know it.

I have a little daughter, ten years old, who has had asthmatic croup since she was three months old, so had she would have violent spasms. We spent hundreds dollars doctoring her without any relief until I accidentally thought of using Hyomei. Since she has not had a bad attack and we always go to bed with Hyomei under the pillow. I would rather be without flour in the house than without Hyomei. It is a Godsend to any mother whose children have the croup.

I will gladly answer any letters concerning Hyomei. All I will say is, if one is discoursged from other remedies, try this.

Mrs. Mary E. Cress,
Third and Commercial Sts.,
Feb. 26, 1904 Atchison, Kansas.

Mrs. Cress recommends a remedy that is undoubtedly well known to our readers, as one of Red Lake Falls' leading druggists, A. L. Reichert, has the local agency for Hyomei and sells it under guarantee to refund the money if it does not gives satisfaction.

COMPLETION PUSHED DESPITE THE WEATHER.

Increased Activity at the World's Fair Assures That Everything Will Be In Readiness by Date of Opening.

February's frosts had no perceptible effect on the growth of the World's Fair at St. Louis. With the opening day not two months distant, the determination of every builder to have his task completed on April 30, the day set for the opening of the Exposition, is apparent on every hand. A greater number of workmen are employed on the grounds now than at any time since the construction began, and the results attained are more noticeable.

All of the great exhibit palaces are finished. On most of them the full quota of sculpture has been installed. Workmen at dizzy heights are busy placing groups of colossal statuary on the Liberal Arts and Electricity Palaces. Soon the final coat of paint will be given, and then the work of the contractors will have been ended. This will not be done until April, so that when the Exposition opens each building will be resplendent in its new coat of old ivory.

Beautiful Festival Hall, the central figure of the Cascade territory and the last of the great Exposition buildings on which work was started, is nearing completion. The framework was finished several days ago, and the ornamental staff is now being applied to the exterior. The dome which surmounts this structure is the largest in the world—200 feet in diameter at the base and reaching skyward 250 feet. The dome is greater than that of St. Peter's, at Rome, or St. Paul's, in London.

Remarkable activity is being displayed in the foreign section. Great Britain is putting the finishing touches on her replica of the beautiful Orangery. French workmen are performing similar tasks on the Grand Trianon, France's beautiful structure. Mexico long since finished her work and is waiting for the Exposition throngs. Germany's reproduction of the kaiser's castle at Charlottenburg can be finished in a few weeks.

Japan did not begin on her replica of the wonderful Castle of Nagoya until midwinter. The ground was full of frost when she started excavations, and Japanese workmen demonstrated their proverbial spirit of progress by loosening the frozen ground with dynamite and installing their foundations. Now scores of busy hands are rapidly completing the superstructure.

Brazil displayed great energy in erecting one of the largest and handsomest structures in the foreign section in a remarkably short time. The cold climate had no effect on the Orientals who are adding the finishing touches to China's beautiful structure, the first ever built at any exposition with the Peking government's authority. The decorations on this structure will prove a revelation.

Sweden's building was shipped in sections, and a week only will be required to raise it when it arrives. Italy, Austria and the remainder of the foreign countries are working with equal energy.

Kentucky dedicated her state building on Feb. 13. Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma, West Virginia and a score of other states have finished their state buildings. New Hampshire and Vermont have submitted plans, and contractors have assured these tardy states that their buildings will be ready to receive guests on the opening day.

All the main buildings in the forty acre Philippine reservation have been finished, and the Filipino builders are now constructing the villages of bamboo and nipa that will shelter more than a thousand natives during the Exposition. The Philippine buildings were erected at a cost of more than $1,000,000.

The main structure of the United States Government's Indian exhibit is finished and when the sun shines warm only a few days will be required for the Indians to put up their wigwams and tepees and settle themselves in what will be their homes for seven months.

Probably greater activity is being displayed on the Pike, the Concessions street, than in any other quarter. An army of workmen are building structures of amusement and entertainment that will cost more than $5,000,000. Many buildings are already finished.

The Intramural railway was formally opened Jan. 27. Its electric cars will carry visitors to any section of the grounds at a small cost.

The Natural Part.

"She seems to be a natural flirt," he said.

"Natural!" the woman impatiently replied. "There's nothing natural about her but the framework."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Why Your Coffee Is Bad.

Bridget is an excellent cook; but, like most women of her profession, she is opinionated and insists upon making all her dishes strictly according to her own recipes. Her mistress gives her full swing not only as to cooking, but as to the purchase of supplies. The other day her mistress said to her:

"Bridget, the coffee you are giving us is very good. What kind is it?"

"It is no kind at all, mum," said Bridget. "It's a mixter."

"How do you mix it?"

"I shake it one-quarter Mocha and one-quarter Java and one-quarter Rio."

"But that's only three-quarters. What do you put in for the other quarter?"

"I put in no other quarter at all, mum. That's where so many spoil the coffee, mum—by puttin' in another quarter."—New York Press.

Crookston Times: Tuesday evening Brakeman Pat Murphy was the victim of an accident which might have easily cost him his life. He was switching at Red Lake Falls on the local freight when he was struck by a coal chute and knock to the ground. Fortunately he escaped with a badly sprained back. He was brought to this city last evening and though very stiff and lame from the injury, it is not thought that the results will be at all serious and that he will be back to work in a few days. At the time he was riding on the lee side of the car, and the smoke and steam from the engine made it impossible for him to see what he was coming to.

Crookston Journal: Engineer George Ralph went north Monday morning on important business. He will survey some of the townsites of the Northern Townsite company of this city. It will be remembered that a number of local business men organized a townsite company some months since for the purpose of promoting townsites along the Thief River extention of the Great Northern into Roseau county. The time is now ripe for the exploiting of these townsites. Mr. Ralph will take a crew with him from Thief River Falls and will proceed to locate and survey the new towns. This would look as if the promoters had a "hunch" and that the extention will be pushed through as soon as the weather will permit.

Sugar as a Stimulant.

One of the numerous physical culture teachers departs from the faith of trainers in advising his pupils to eat all the sugar they can get. Either in taking off flesh or in putting on flesh his advice is to make sugar in some form or other a liberal part of the daily diet.

"Sugar is a very powerful stimulant and a great producer of nerve force," he said. "I spent two winters in the Klondike, where the miners eat enormous quantities of sugar and molasses. They even sweeten salt pork with it. Men who simply soak themselves in sweets do twice the work of men who let sugar alone. Swiss mountaineers always carry a liberal supply of sugar in their kits. Negroes in the harvest fields grow fat on sugar cane.

"In hot or cold climates a liberal diet of sugar will put a man in the finest possible condition. Whatever bad effects sugar may have at first are soon remedied by exercise. It has been a fad for two or three years to howl against the use of sugar, but there is no sound physiological reason for it."

NEW SHORT STORIES

When Mr. Bissell "Talked."

The late Wilson S. Bissell was a close friend of President Cleveland, and when he was a member of the cabinet the president talked very frankly with him and often at him when he was really criticising some other member of the cabinet. Among other things which the president did not like were cabinet interviews, and one day he expressed his mind freely upon the subject, saying that the constant interviews with cabinet officers in the public press on all sorts of trivial subjects were undignified. The day this lecture took place a newspaper man had interviewed Bissell about affairs in the postoffice department and had prepared a very good story, using quotation marks freely. There was not much in the interview, no subject of importance, and it appeared in different papers under headlines such as "Interview With the P. M. G.," "Discussed by Bissell," "Mr. Bissell Talks," etc.

The next day a dozen messengers informed the interviewer that the postmaster general wanted to see him. When he entered the office he found that official in a state of frenzy. His large face was red with excitement and passion.

"What do you mean," he shouted "by interviewing me? What did you put me in quotation marks for? Don't you know that cabinet officers must not be quoted?" And much more to the same effect.

When the newspaper man got a chance he asked if there had been a misquotation and received a negative reply. "Why, I was fixing up a little story for your benefit," the journalist said. "I thought you would want people to know that you were a member of the cabinet and attending to business. Now, really, general, you ought to feel flattered."

"Oh, I know there's no harm in it, and you meant well, but I must not be quoted or interviewed. Cabinet officers must not talk. And look at the headlines," he continued, flourishing a paper. "'Mr. Bissell Talks,' blankety blank it!"

The newspaper man could stand it no longer and laughed outright, and finally the good natured Bissell joined him, although he was still far from pleased. The interview and the headlines, coming on the heels of the Cleveland lecture about cabinet officers talking too much, had greatly disturbed him. He was apparently the first man to violate the new instructions.

He Took It Quietly.

"MY MISSION IS TO PACIFY IRELAND."

John Morley in his life of Gladstone tells how the latter received his first invitation from Queen Victoria to form a ministry. It was in 1868. He writes: "On the afternoon of Dec. 1 he received at Hawarden the communication from Windsor. 'I was standing by him,' says Mr. Evelyn Ashley, 'holding his coat on my arm while he in his shirt sleeves was wielding an ax to cut down a tree. Up came a telegraph messenger. He took the telegram, opened it and read it, then handed it to me, speaking only two words, "Very significant," and at once resumed his work. The message merely stated that General Grey would arrive that evening from Windsor. This of course implied that a mandate was coming from the queen charging Mr. Gladstone with the formation of his first government. After a few minutes the blows ceased, and Mr. Gladstone, resting on the handle of his ax, looked up and, with deep earnestness in his voice and with great intensity in his face, exclaimed, "My mission is to pacify Ireland." He then resumed his task and never said another word till the tree was down.'"

Ready For the Test.

A teacher in one of the schools near Philadelphia had one day been so disturbed by the buzzing of lips and shuffling of feet of the children that she was on the verge of distraction. Finally she said: "Children, I cannot stand so much noise. Please be quiet for a little while at least. Let me see if you can't be so still that you could hear a pin drop."

Instantly every child became as still as a mouse. Then a little boy in a back seat piped out with marked impatience:

"Well, let her drop!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

SUCCESS IN YAKIMA VALLEY.

Resident There Writes Of That Fertile Conntry.

Albert & Champoux, well known to Red Lake Falls people, in writing to friends here of the great North Yakima country, inclose the following letter to a newspaper published there, which will give the people a fair idea of the country to which their friends have immigrated. Here is the letter which is self-explanatory:

North Yakima, Wn., Feb. 19, 1904.

Editor of the Republic—I would like to say a few words in favor of the Yakima country. I spent 35 years of my life in Minnesota and Wisconsin. During the last seven years I was sick in bed almost every winter, and the last winter I was in Minnesota I was sick with pleurisy and was not able to work for nine months. The doctors told me that if I did not change climates I would not live through another winter.

In 1901 I started for the west and landed in North Yakima on the 27th day of May with $200 in cash and ten of us in the family. I looked about the country and finally bought 20 acres of land in the Moxee, which cost me $60 an acre, or a total of $1200. I was to pay this sum in five payments of $240 each. I did not have enough money to make my first payment cash, but I paid $120 down and gave my note for $120 payable in the fall.

Not having any money to buy a team and seed I could not put in a crop that year. I bought a tent and moved on our own place. We worked out all we could and when we had no work we cleared our own land. In the spring of 1902 I planted 15 acres in potatoes and we got a good crop. In 1903 I planted 20 acres and also got a good crop of hay, potatoes, onions, carrots and all kinds of garden products.

I have kept, during the time since last May, three horses, one cow, 15 hogs and have enough feed on hand to last my stock till the new crop comes again. I sold hay and garden products to the value of $136.76 I also sold potatoes that brought me in $508.30. I now have potatoes on hand to sell that will bring me $180 at the market price today.

The above figures total up $825.06 which we made with our crops in 1903. We made $639.43 by working out. So with the 1903 crop of 20 acres and what we earned by working, we have made $1464.49. At this date I have on hand three horses, one cow, 13 hogs, 50 chickens, one wagon, which I paid $100 for, one top buggy and all the small machinery necessary to run the ranch with.

I have paid $447 on my ranch and when the rest of my crop is sold my depts will all be paid except the balance on the land and still we will have some money left. I have made a better living in Yakima than I ever did in my life before. The climate is good, for I have not had a doctor in my house since I came here, so you see I have done well enough considering the amount of money I had when I landed here.

This shows that if a man has a little money to start with there is no place like Yakima. Our folks back east are afraid to come here for they think land is to high at $100 an acre, but if they would stop to consider what we raise on an acre of land they would change their minds.

My potatoes at $11 and $12 per ton averaged $60 an acre; my hay returned nine tons to the acre in three cuttings which I sold at $7 a ton, thus receiving $63 an acre. I had one acre of carrots and raised 40 tons. I refused $4 a ton for them for I needed them for my own stock. At $4 a ton they would have brought me $160 an acre. I planted one-eighth of an acre in onions. I sold them at one cent a pound and realized $25, besides we had all we needed for our own use.

I am just giving you these items to let the people know what a farmer raises in the Yakima country. I have a small orchard of 150 trees two years old. There is also small fruits of all kinds. In two more years, when our trees begin to bear fruit, we will have as nice a home as anyone would wish to have. I would not go back east to live for anything. I came here for my health and I have been well ever since. I am perfectly satisfied with Yakima county. Anyone reading this letter who would like any further information, I should be pleased to correspond with.

Yours very truly.

Soo Right of Way.

Thief River News: H. B. Dike, right of way agent for the Soo road was in the city Monday. While here he engaged Daniel Shaw, manager of the Northern Real Estate and Mortgage company, to purchase 30 miles of the right of way for the Soo in this vicinity. Commencing at the south line of town of Rocksbury, Mr. Shaw will purchase the right of way to Strandquist in the northern part of Marshall county. The remaining part of the right of way in Red Lake county will probably be purchased by Charles E. Bourdon, of Red Lake Falls.

Mr. Shaw is one of the best judges of land values in this section of the state, and will be sure to do the fair thing for both the railroad company and the settlers.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjust this. It's gentle, yet thorough. DENTISTS FORM ASSOCIATION.

Meet at Crookston and Perfect an Organization.

Crookston Journal: Twenty-four representatives of the dental profession in the Red River Valley met last evening at the Commercial union rooms in the city hall for the purpose of perfecting the organization which has been discussed for some time. The meeting was a very harmonious and cordial one and the visiting doctors enjoyed themselves very much. The organization as organized last evening will contain twenty-four charter members and will be known as the Red River Valley Medical Society. The purpose of the society will be for mutual betterment by means of the interchange of thought and ideas on various subjects at the quarterly meetings which will be held in various cities of the territory covered from time to time. The social feature of the society will also be productive of much enjoyment.

The work of organizing the society has developed largely upon the Crookston contingent of the dentists and the successful consummation of the affair last evening is due largely to their untiring efforts.

Dr. Robertson of this city was elected president, Dr. Argue, of Red Lake Falls, vice-president, Dr. Boles treasurer, Dr. Rowan, of Hillsboro, secretary. After the business meeting was over the members adjourned to the upper rooms of the city hall where a sumptuous repast was served by Caterer O. N. J. Hagen. The tables were set very tastily and the merrymakers thoroughly enjoyed themselves to a very late hour.

ARTS OF ALL AGES

They Are Blended by World's Fair Designers So as to Produce Both Variety and Harmony.

Magnificent Picture In Which the Best of the Old Masters Is Seen With the Latest Creations of Modern Art.

THE architecture of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is majestic in the great ivory white exhibit palaces, historical in the foreign and state buildings, all-world and unique in concession structure.

The palaces are the varied productions of the leading architects of the United States, designed in obedience to a chaste, harmonious scheme. The style adopted is described as "a free treatment of the Renaissance." According to dictionaries, "Renaissance" is the style which succeeded the mediæval and was based upon study and emulation of the forms and ornaments of the classic architecture of Greece and Rome.

One of the architects defines the use of the term "as a carte blanche to the architects to produce a beautiful effect by the use of any architectural device that ever gladdened human eyes, from the pediment and peristyle of the Parthenon to the minaret and dome of the Taj Mahal."

The architect of the Palace of Education surrounded that building with a majestic Corinthian colonnade. Another architect made towers of the pedestals that carry the crowning sculpture of the Palace of Electricity. Another architect designed for the Palace of Varied Industries Spanish steeples and a semicircular colonnade unlike anything ever before done in architecture. The architect used a dome roof and a triumphal arch motif in the Palace of Manufactures. Another architect broke the sky lines of the Palace of Liberal Arts with quadriga crowned entrances reaching as high as five story houses. Other architects introduced into the Palace of Machinery a German feeling, with a forest of towers and a big sloping roof backing a sculpture decked entrance way.

The supervising architect of the United States treasury introduced another element of variety in the United States Government building, taking the form of a big flat dome, an Ionic colonnade and a classic pediment lifted in the air by a caryatid attic. The same architect reproduced in the great Fish pavilion for the government of the United States, line for line, a Roman dwelling house of the Pompeiian type.

In the Mines and Metallurgy Palace the Egyptian obelisks furnish the motif for the entrances. The cornice is wiped out entirely by the substitution of an overhanging roof. In the Art Palace an engaged colonnade is employed to decorate a windowless museum facade. Festival Hall is made conspicuous and distinctive with the largest dome on earth. The chief of design of the Exposition adopted the dome roof, three massive entrance arches and a bottle shaped pylon for features of the great Palace of Transportation. This same mind employed plain heavy piers on the Palace of Agriculture and demonstrated the architectural possibilities of the farmhouse gable in the Forestry, Fish and Game building.

The artistic sense finds further pleasing variety in the Tudor Gothic of the dozen permanent red granite buildings which form part of the World's Fair settlement.

Architectural history may be read in the buildings of the states and foreign governments. France reproduces the Grand Trianon at Versailles; Germany, the imperial castle at Charlottenburg; Great Britain, the Orangery of Kensington palace, at London; Japan, the Castle of Nagoya; China, the palace of Prince Pu Lun. Belgium builds an Antwerp townhall. Mexico has a patio, or inner court, in its buildings. Louisiana reproduces the Cabildo at New Orleans, where the formal transfer of the Louisiana Purchase Territory from France to the United States took place. New Jersey supplies a replica of General Washington's headquarters at Morristown. Connecticut presents the fine Sigourney mansion at Hartford and adds mantels and woodwork from two other Connecticut mansion homes. Virginia's pride is gratified in Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson. Mississippi builds Beauvoir, the home of Jefferson Davis. Most of the other states adopt the style of the big exhibit palaces on their buildings. The transition from the architectural dignity of the Plateau of States to the gayety of the Pike is made by the building of Texas, shaped like a five pointed star, and by the wigwams of giant trees which Washington and Oregon supply.

Color is used sparingly on screen walls and in shaded places in the exhibit palaces. The facades are a uniform ivory white, with color on the roofs, domes and towers. On Concessions street, however, color is used more freely, and the forms of the "art nouveau" abound.

Training a Beagle.

With regard to the training of a beagle, he has to be treated on quite a different plan from the setter and pointer. In their cases a great deal of work of training is to conquer natural propensities, whereas with the beagle you encourage him to go on and do all he can in seeking and chasing when found. Young dogs are usually put down with an older one, and a very few lessons suffice. It comes as natural to a beagle to run scent as for a terrier to kill rats, and if there is no apparent inclination one lesson usually provokes it. The less one interferes with a beagle running a line the better for the dog, so long as he is not pottering in one well tested place, but casting all about when he has lost the trail.—Field and Stream.

The Charge Sustained.

The householder was duly sworn.

"You charge this man with being insane," said the court. "On what do you base the charge?"

"Well, your honor," said the witness, vainly trying to choke down his emotion, "this man is a plumber. My pipes were out of fix. I sent for him. He fixed 'em in fifteen minutes. When I asked for his bill he said that was all right, because it didn't take him long, and he had another job in my neighborhood anyhow."

"A hopeless case!" exclaimed his honor as he signed the commitment.—Baltimore News.

The Catastrophe.

"Did you hear about the catastrophe down at the Browns' last night?"

"No. What happened?"

"Why, Mrs. Brown gave the baby a bottle to play with, and while she was in the kitchen it fell out of the cradle and broke its neck."

"What, the baby?"

"No; the bottle."

WHAT CIGARETTES DO FOR BOYS

By City Magistrate LEROY B. CRANE of New York

CONGRESS SHOULD STOP THE SALE, MANUFACTURE AND IMPORTATION OF CIGARETTES. I AM DETERMINED TO DO ALL I CAN TO PREVENT THEIR USE.

Out of 300 boys brought before me charged with various crimes 295 were cigarette smokers. This surely goes to prove that the boys who do not smoke do not stray into the paths that lead to the police court.

PARENTS SHOULD IMPRESS ON THEIR SONS THE EVIL OF THE CIGARETTE HABIT, AND IT SHOULD BE TAUGHT IN THE SCHOOLS.

There is an endless chain movement to get millions of signers to prohibit the sale of cigarettes, and I believe it will do much good. I may start one myself.

MORAL DELINQUENCIES OF THE MODERN TRUST

By President
WOODROW WILSON of Princeton University

WE must not overlook the moral delinquencies of the modern trusts. Men have crept into our corporation life SELLING SOMETHING WHICH HAS NO REAL VALUE. This has an effect on the MORAL TONE of our lives, and the statesmen of letters will tell it to future generations. If you do not believe the men of letters affect finances, watch the stock market. Watch the effect of an editorial in the columns of your paper, and you will soon see if the corporation is not affected by the moral tone. Little by little safeguards are let down. It has come to the point where three or five men can assemble in a room, lay a silver dollar on a table, CALL IT ASSETS, capitalize at a million dollars, get a state seal on a charter, pocket the dollar and go on with the enterprise.

Government, states, cities and schools dispose of bonds to individuals, the dividends are paid regularly and the principal at maturity. THIS IS TEACHING BONDHOLDERS TO FAVOR GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

PRIVATE BONDS OF CORPORATIONS WHICH CEASE PAYMENT OF DIVIDENDS AND IN THE END DEFAULT PAYMENT ARE POTENT FACTORS AGAINST PRIVATE OWNERSHIP.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

A correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph at Yinkow says that the Japanese again attacked Port Arthur March 12 as a challenge for Vice Admiral Makaroff to come out and fight. During the heavy bombardment, the correspondent says, the Japanese were in a position of safety from the guns of the fortress. The Russian casualties amounted to 300 killed or wounded.

While entering Port Arthur Wednesday the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Skorri struck upon an unplaced mine and was blown up. Four of the crew were saved. The destroyer was a sister boat of the Stereguschtchi, which was sunk by the Japanese a week ago off Port Arthur. She was 216 feet long and carried 270 men. The vessel was three years old and of modern type.

United States Minister Allen cables the state department from Seoul that the Cincinnati has arrived at Chemulpo with twenty-three Americans from Chinnampbo. The minister announced that the missionaries in the neighborhood of Pingyang had refused to send their women and children aboard the Cincinnati where they could be taken to a place of safety.

Even though the bombardment continues the Russian military authorities express the utmost confidence in Japanese inability to effect a landing in the vicinity of Port Arthur or Dalny, declaring that two attempts have already been repulsed. The czar is resolved, after clearing out Korea, to end the war in Japanese territory.

Captain Vehamo, in command of two companies of mounted men, came upon a small Japanese patrol near Yiuwao and in pursuing them east there came into view from one of the hills a large body of Japanese soldiers north of Chukcbun, between the Tumen and Sungari rivers. The Cossack patrols were compelled to retire.

Nothing has reached London to confirm the report that a battle has taken place on the Yalu in which the Russians captured 1,800 prisoners. A dispatch from St. Petersburg dated Sunday says there has been no change in the situation and that all is quiet on both land and sea.

The machinery for the advance of the Russian forces is working smoothly from Harbin southward. The running of passenger trains has been resumed and Russian families are proceeding on their way to Europe without confusion.

The Tokio correspondent of the London Times cables that the latest report says the Russians are occupying an area having a forty-mile base from Wiju to Chongtong and extending south to the Pakchoo river.

From the highest Russian official quarter information has been obtained that there is absolutely no foundation for the rumors persistently sent out from Tokio that the Russians are abandoning Port Arthur.

The first headquarters of the Manchurian army after General Kuropatkin's arrival will be at Liaoyang, the general having selected that point instead of Mukden whence to direct the operations.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the Russian Vladivostok squadron has left port. The officials absolutely refuse to discuss the destination of the squadron.

Captain Ivkov of the Manchurian commissariat service has been summarily courtmartialed and shot for acting as a spy in the pay of the Japanese.

The London Telegraph's Tokio correspondent, cabling on March 17, asserts that the Russian fleet has returned to Port Arthur.

Viceroy Alexieff has notified the czar that Japanese have occupied Piogyang.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Premier Balfour's government was defeated in the house of commons by the combined Liberal and Nationalist vote. This reverse was due to the prohibition by Mr. Wyndham, chief secretary for Ireland, on the teaching of Gaelic in the junior grades of the Irish schools. Mr. Balfour, though defeated by a majority of eleven on this question, does not regard the vote as one of want of confidence and he will not resign on this account.

The German bark Mona collided with the English ship Lady Cairns off Dublin bay. The Lady Cairns sank in a few minutes. Her crew of twenty-two was drowned. The Mona, which was much damaged, was assisted into Dublin harbor.

An infernal machine exploded outside the residence of Commissioner of Police Laurent at Liege, Belgium, wrecked the house, fatally injured an artillery officer, Major Papio, and seriously wounded half a dozen other persons.

The British submarine boat No. A1 was run down and sunk off Portsmouth, Eng., by a Donald Currie liner and eleven persons drowned, including Lieutenant Maosergh, the senior officer engaged in submarine work.

Germans lost 7 officers and 19 men killed and many wounded in a battle with rebellious Hereros in German Southwest Africa March 13.

RAILROAD MERGER ILLEGAL.

The United States supreme court has delivered its opinion in the merger case of the Northern Securities company versus the United States in favor of the government's contention that the merger was illegal. The opinion of the court was handed down by Justice Harlan and it upheld the decree of the circuit court for the district of Minnesota in every particular. Four of the judges dissented from the five constituting the majority. The division in the court was due to a difference of opinion as to the right of federal control of state corporations. The majority opinion proceeded on the theory that congress has a right under the Constitution to control interstate commerce, no matter by whom conducted, while the minority or dissenting opinion was based on the theory that in the present case the effort is to regulate the ownership of railway stocks by state corporations and that such ownership is not interstate traffic.

CONGRESSIONAL DOINGS.

During the discussion of the postoffice appropriation bill in the house Mr. Spight of Mississippi discussed the negro question and declared unjust the attacks on the people of the South who have been charged with brutality and barbarism toward the colored race. Comparing the lynchings and burnings at the stake which had occurred in the South with those in the North he said that the people of the South, in meting out punishment to the negro who had committed a fiendish crime, never followed it up with violence toward defenseless women and children as had been done in the North.

WHERE WE STAND.

The last week's down town sheet comes out with an attempted funny leader, stating that The Gazette would this week announce itself for Judge L. C. Collins for governor, and that it would have to begin to eat crow early, from the fact of its former support of Bob Dunn. To those that don't know the chief stock in trade of the gentleman who conducts the aforesaid sheet has always been underhanded misrepresentation the article no doubt was credited as being founded on fact, but the rest of us know that is was merely a scheme to attempt to injure The Gazette, originating with the fellow who edits the Courier. The Gazette has never made the statement that it would come out for Judge Collins and does yet do so. Is that plain enough? We have said however that from the fact that in numerous counties in Minnesota the chief supporters of Bob Dunn for governor are men posing as leading Democrats, and that the Democrats seem to be more desirous of seeing Dunn nominated than those in his own party, that it behooved all good Republicans who are anxious to see the party succeed and predominate to refute the actions of the candidate who caterces to and pamperes opposition support. The Gazette doe not say that Bob Dunn is not a good man, but nevertheless believes that the party should look more to the principles at stake and party loyalty than to the qualifications of the candidates—especially when it is known that Mr Collins is equally as brilliant and competent as Mr. Dunn.

This is the pure and simple reason for The Gazette's "lay down" on the governorship question, and for the present, at least, we will devote our time to giving the people a good newspaper, and will let the politicians untangle the governorship muddle.

And the Democrats sit back and laugh at the fight raging among the Republicans and holler "sic em." "A house divided against itself cannot stand," and the wider the breech the greater cause for elation in Democratic ranks.

THE AMERICA SOUTH OF THE EQUATOR.

When a "passenger from South America" arrives at New Orleans and there declares that Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia and Ecuador have formed an offensive and defensive alliance against the United States we may set it down forthwith that he is not talking with a knowledge of facts. So far from those states being alarmed at our "aggressive attitude" toward Panama, the indications, gathered from the South American press, all are that our action was generally regarded as perfectly normal and proper under the circumstances, says the Chicago Record Herald.

Should such a hostile alliance exist it would of course be most regrettable, not because of any possibility that a clash of arms would ever result from it, but because negatively it would indicate a state of South American opinion that would hinder the co-operation of the two Americas for their common good. How this country could have active interests which would ever come into sharp opposition to the interests of the countries named it is, however, hard to see.

It will be observed that all five of these countries, except for small strips of Ecuador and Brazil, lie south of the equator. Add to them Peru, Paraguay and Uruguay and the combined territory will include all of South America in the southern hemisphere except, again, a small and insignificant strip of Colombia. There is a rising school of publicists, of which Captain A. T. Mahan is a conspicuous leader, which holds that all of this southern hemisphere territory, roughly described as south of the Amazon, can he, and ought to be, completely disregarded by the United States in its foreign policy, even to the extent of withdrawing from it the protection of the Monroe doctrine. Let its trade be cultivated, the argument runs, just as is the trade of Africa, Austaalia, or Asia, but let us recognize that for the rest the manner of its government concerns us no more directly than does the government of those other regions of the world.

Along with this view we generally find at the same time the conviction that in South America, north of the Amazon, our interests are so vital that the Monroe doctrine should there be adhered to in even intensified form. The ports of Columbia, Venezuela and the Guianas all concern most intimately the nation that must of necessity be paramount in the Carribean Sea and on the Isthmus of Panama.

Whatever arguments of this nature may be made as to the limits of our national interests, it nevertheless remains true that we have a sentimental interest which extends to the whole of South America, and shows no sign of a tendency to weaken. The first indication of an alliance against us should he a sign to us to hasten to remove any possible causes of friction or misunderstanding.

Since Press Agent Nelson is devoting all of the daylight and a little midnight oil in the service of the Collins campaign, why doesn't he have the decency to resign his job as state librarian? We are surprised that Mr. Nelson should continue to draw a salary for which he gives no labor.—Courier.

Would it be impertinent to ask if Mr. Courier man has tendered his resignation as chairman of the Democratic county committee since assuming the management of a Republican candidate's campaign? But then, maybe the shoe happens to be on the other foot.

Gen. A. W. Greely of Arctic fame being asked his opinion about the eastern war said: "The outcome of it depends on the one question whether the Japanese can stand up and fight on land like white men. If they can march into the valley of death, face bullets and roaring shells, and go forward while their company is decimated around them, they will succeed—succeed at least in seizing and holding the shores of the Pacific, which is probably all they expect. Will the Jap fight on land as he does on water? I do not know."

Editor Eastman, the Thief River News man, suggests that John King devote more time to managing the Democrat's affairs, and let the Republicans take care of their own. Can it be that friend Eastman hasn't known this other fellow long enough to really know him, or isn't he a student of natural history?

Would it be amiss to suggest to friend King, and his main sidestepper, that if that Collins money happens along this way, which it isn't apt to very soon, it will be used to keep Collins and not dropped with a thud into any private bank account? Is the point plain?

If the Democrats really want to win the next campaign in Red Lake county they can do no better than to bribe friend King to continue his dictating tacicts to the Republicans. Talk about millstones. Wow!

Mr. Carnegie is now distributing church organs, and he doesn't insist that his name shall be displayed in large letters upon the pipes. He's a gr-r-rand mon, that Andy.

There's some consolation, anyway, in the fact that when the governorship campaign gets real hot the snow is bound to leave us, even if it don't go before.

MAN-KILLER FOR CONGRESS.

James H. Tillman has announced his intention of trying to break into Congress. Tillman, while Lieutenant Governor of South Carolina, shot and killed Editor N. G. Gonzales, a political rival. Notwithstanding the fact that Gonzales was unarmed at the time of his death, and in spite of the fact that Tillman had boasted that he would shoot the editor down "like a dog," a South Carolina jury acquitted the slayer of the charge of murder. Not satisfied merely to be a free man, Tillman now wishes to have further political honors. Congressman G. W. Croft defended Tillman in his trial for the killing of Gonzales. Croft died recently, and it is his seat in the national House of Representatives that Tillman wants to occupy.

Whether the people of South Carolina will desire to add to what was done by the jury which acquited Tillman remains to be seen. The testimony presented at Tillman's trial for murder showed that the killing was done in cold blood. Furthermore, Tillman's record, aside from his reputation as a man-killer, is far from inspiring. It may be, however, that the South Carolina voters will consider him a fitting successor to the man who was his former law partner, who secured his acduittal in court and who was always his friend.

It would be a national shame and a public misfortune if this member of the Tillman family were elected to Congress, but South Carolina has a way of doing unfortunate things, and it should not be surprising if Tillman's present ambition were gratified.

Crookston Times: C. C. Finch, who for a number of years has been connected with the Finch-Smith company as traveling salesman, has severed his connection with the firm and it is understood will accept a very flattering position with a Twin City cigar house. On Saturday of this week the Crookston Press as a newspaper will cease to exist. Its owners and publishers, Messrs. Shaughnessy & Crawford have decided to turn it into a society journal. It will handle no news matter at all and will be devote entirely to fashions and whatnots which are of interest to women.

The Surprise Store starts out on the spring campaign for business by taking a full half-page of Gazette space, telling eleven hundred Red Lake county subscribers and several others that they are prepared to please every one in everything. It has never been our pleasure to see a better stock of goods, which was kept in a more up-to-date manner than that which Messrs. Berthon & Armstrong have to offer to the people of the county. In the clothing and gents' furnishing line they have all the latest and swellest creations, and in making their selections have chosen goods for each individual buyer. The Gazette is glad to commend Red Lake county people to this modern establishment, and knows that it is doing good when it does so.

Thief River Press: Elijah Gibson is again having trouble. Last fall he wanted a wife and advertised for one with such good results that he was soon buckled in a double harness and had visions of eternal happiness. But not so. As soon as they heard of his success all the other old bachelors of the country, recognizing a man of ability, deluged him with letters of inquiry. Some wanted to know how he did it; others if there were any great difficulties to be encountered in procuring a better half in that way and others wanted to know if he had any matrimonial timber left over, and if so would he kindly present them as willing victims, and etc. They have taken so much of his time that he has given up any hopes of answering them, and declares that he wants it distinctly understood that he can fill no more orders in the matrimonial line. Surely, man is born to trouble as the sparks fly up-ward.

He reports that east of Chicago the ground is entirely free from snow and that the people are beginning to wear their spring and summer clothing. Fertile Journal: McIntosh is all torn up over an alleged poisoning case. Nels Olson, a farmer living four miles from McIntosh in the town of Knute died last Friday under suspicious circumstances and Coroner Chesterman was called there to inquire into the matter. It is stated that Nelson has claimed to the neighbors that he feared members of his family would poison him. He has several children ranging in age from 16 to 24 and the home life has not been as pleasant as it should. Nelson died after a two days illness, and no physician was summoned. DIES FROM BITING HIS TONGUE.

Little Boy at Duluth Slowly Bleeds to Death.

Duluth, March 18.—Blood slowly oozing from a slight wound in the tongue, that medical science seemed unable to heal, caused the death of two-year-old Linnis Oestreich, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Oestreich of this city, more than a week after the baby fell and inflicted the cut as a result of the tongue coming in contact with the teeth.

The parents were unable to stop the flow of blood and two physicians were called. They sewed up the wound four times and when that had no effect seared it. Nevertheless the blood kept oozing from the wound and the child finally died.

CONDUCTOR SHOT DEAD.

Unknown Murderer Is Killed by a Marshal.

Winona, Minn., March 19.—Ben Rooney, for many years a freight conductor on the Winona and Western road, now a portion of the Great Western system, was murdered at Fort Smith, Ark., Friday. Rooney was a passenger conductor on the Fort Smith and Western road, and while passing through his train opened one of the closet doors. A man was inside and he shot Rooney, killing him.

A state marshal, who was on the train, chased the murderer and killed him. The murderer's name is not known.

TO BE TRIED FOURTH TIME.

Banker Leland Will Have to Face a Jury Once More.

Duluth, March 21.—It is reliably stated that the state will make one more effort to convict Charles F. Leland of the defunct Commercial bank on the charge of receiving money after he knew the institution was insolvent. Three times he has been tried under two indictments and the result was a disagreement in each case and County Attorney McClintock is quoted as saying he feels disposed to continue the prosecutions until there is either a conviction or an acquittal.

Judge Morris' order requesting resignation of the United States commissioners, except at out of way points, was in accord with the order from the general land office directing examinations by the special agents and registers and receivers of applications for entry made before commissioners.

WOMAN'S STRANGE DELUSION.

Believes a Hindoo's Hand is Resting on Her Head.

Minneapolis, March 17.—A prey to the frightful delusion that her husband is King Solomon an East Side woman lies hovering between life and death. The woman is possessed of the idea that the king's hand is resting on her head and that he will not take it off. In her waking moments she perpetually beseeches her attendants to rid her of King Solomon's presence, the pathos of her appeals being pitiful in the extreme.

King Solomon professes to be a Hindoo clairvoyant, and was the nine days' wonder of Minneapolis recently because of his sensational trial for assault preferred by his white wife. He was acquitted of the charge, his wife returned to him and the pair left the city some ten days ago, Chicago being their objective point.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

Proper Treatment of Pneumonia.

Pneumonia is too dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of the grip, and that by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the threatened attack of pneumonia may be warded off. This remedy is also used by physicians in the treatment of pneumonia with the best results. Dr. W. J. Smith, of Sanders, Ala., who is also a druggist, says of it: "I have been selling Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years. I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results." Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

A Wonderful Invention.

It is interesting to note that fortunes are frequently made by the invention of articles of minor importance. Many of the more popular devices are those designed to benefit people and meet popular conditions, and one of the most interesting of these that has ever been invented is the Dr. White Electric Comb, patented Jun. 1, '99. These wonderful Combs positively cure dandruff, hair falling out, sick and nervous headaches, and when used with Dr. White's Electric Hair Brush are positively guaranteed to make straight hair curly in 25 days' time. Thousands of these electric combs have been sold in the various cities of the Union, and the demand is constantly increasing. Our agents are rapidly becoming rich selling these combs. They positively sell on sight. Send for sample. Men's size 35c., ladies' 50c.—(half price while we are introducing them.) The Dr. White Electric Comb Co., Decatur, Ill.

Temperance Reform Column

Edited by W. A. Swanson Grit, Minn.

"Human Life is Cheap," by Zaidee Mahood Stewart, in Word and Works.

"Searching investigation of the Iroquois theater horror is bringing out as its final analysis the lesson that human life is cheap—so cheap that the price of a few ordinary fire extinguishers and safety appliances was weighed in the balance against six hundred lives; so cheap that the building inspectors, who drew fat salaries from the city for safe guarding its life and property, were proven to have given no further service than legally approving a building where two thousand woman and children were locked into a veritable trap of death. It has become of so little moment that when the steamship, Clallam was sinking within plain sight of the harbor at Victoria, and three boat loads of women and children were perishing in the icy waters from drowning or exposure, the owners of the steamers at the city's docks refused to risk the damage of their vessels by going to the rescue. It is so cheap that the officers of the big ocean liner which passed a few miles astern of the Clallam never slacked her engines for one moment to investigate how poignant was the distress which her flying signals dumbly proclaimed. It is the awakening to the heartlessness that causes such calamities as these that we see the shocking disregard of human life to which we daily close our eyes while it goes on around us with a very commonness that renders it unnoticed and unrebuked. The tragedy at Chicago was a national calamity and aroused the greatest commotion, yet if for that same day the suicides, the murders, the premature and accidental deaths that are directly traceable to the liquor traffic in the United States were added up into one grand total, the holocaust would fade into insignificance in comparison. The anguish at Chicago at which the world wept in sympathy could not be keener than the anguish in many a drunkard's home to which is given not even a passing thought. Human life is cheap, so cheap that the liquor traffic which causes more deaths and more agony than all the tragedies of fire and water combined and which would not be countenanced five minutes if it were not for the money it brings into the pockets of the influential, has today more supporters than the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ. The nation accepts the excuse that men will have it and it is useless to try and abolish it, "but it isn't the men who is slave to drink who upholds it; he may crave for it and seek it, sell life and body, sense and soul to get it, but it isn't his influence that perpetuates the traffic. It is the man who sells it, the man who manufactures it, the grafter who profits by it, the business and political element, which thinks and flourishes on the weakness of "the tougher element" that posted and promotes it. We carry out against the footpad and the house breaker who kills his victims in cold blood to rob him as he dies, for these we keep in active vengeance the old Jewish law of a life for a life. In the soul of the man who stabs his victim in the dark for the sake of his watch and purse, of the men who shuts his eyes to misery and death he is dealing out in every rum glass, because it brings him in an easy and luxurious living, and of the men in high places who neglects his duty at the price of living sacrifice, will the great God, who notes the fall of every sparrow, be able to extinguish black from black."

Bob Ingersoll on Alcohol: "I believe that from the time it issues from the coiled and poisonous worm in the distillery until it empties into the hell of death, dishonor and crime, that it demoralizes everybody that touches it, from its source to where it ends. I do not believe anybody can contemplate the subject without becoming prejudiced against liquor. All we have to do, gentlemen, is to think of the wrecks on either bank of the stream of death; of suicides, of the insanity, of the poverty, of the ignorance, of the destitution of the little tugging at the faded and weary breasts of weeping and despairing wives, asking for bread; of the talented men of genius it has wrecked, the men struggling with imaginary serpents, produced by this devilish thing; and when you think of the jails, the almshouses, of the asylums, of the prisons, of the scaffolds upon either bank, I do not wonder that every thoughtful man is prejudiced against this stuff called alcohol."

The Conductor.

Conductor Warren of the C. & N. W R. R. says: "I had been suffering with severe cold for several days, and was so hoarse I could not speak above a whisper. Nov. 16, I met one of Dr. Warner's agents on my train, he handed me a bottle of the White Wine of Tar Syrup, and one hour after taking the first dose my hoarseness commenced leaving me. In twenty four hours my voice was quite clear and natural the cold nearly cured. It is the best remedy ever saw. A. L. Reichert.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Emma Cyr, Lillian Nauman, Paul Brunelle.
Athenian Reporters.

Chairs have taken legs, up in the laboratory.

A Senior class meeting was called Tuesday noon.

The Virgil class had a very amusing lesson Monday.

The Botany class has had hydrogen and lights of late.

The assembly room at times reminds one of a Chinese school.

The class of '01 will give their play on Monday evening, April 4th.

The Senior girls are talking about getting their graduation dresses.

Several girls were excused Monday afternoon to have their pictures taken.

The sixth and seventh grades will give a program Friday in the Grammar room.

Last Saturday the Senior girls had a cutter ride. A pleasant time is reported.

The members of the 3rd year English class find it hard to enlarge their vocabulary.

Lorraine Longtin, who has been absent for several weeks on account of sickness, has returned.

The first tri-yearly examinations in the half-year studies will be given next Thursday and Friday.

The Athenian decorations were taken down Wednesday. That end of the room looks barren now.

There has been several collisions in the High School of late. We wonder if they are always accidental?

The next program will be held by the Athenians next Friday. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

The lessons were unusually good last Thursday. Probably it was on account of it being St. Patrick's Day.

The High School pupils are complaining that at intermissions they are "Always in the way" in the halls.

A number of the boys were tardy the other noon. Their excuse was, that they were saving the school building.

The Athenians are still in the lead and have received higher points than the Spartans in both programs and debates.

Too bad we can't have a looking glass in the high school room in order to lessen the trips to the Physical laboratory.

The boys should not snow ball any one coming to school who does not show fight, is the last rule of Prof. Whiteley.

Mr. Whiteley received three small trees Tuesday to plant on the school grounds. He had better fortify the section on which he intends to plant them.

The Athenians received 18 points for the last debate, while the Spartans got only 15. Chances are there will be an "A" added to the banner this year.

Every dog has his day. So some of the High School girls must think, as they are taking turns in falling down stairs. A Freshman is the last one on the list.

One of the Senior girls has decided not to conform any more to what anyone thinks or says. Hence forward she will display her knowledge, even if she is accused of having a great deal of senior dignity.

Did you ever notice that smile of satisfaction that creeps upon the face of Beethoven, in the Assembly room every afternoon about three o'clock? The general history class recites about that time, and the musical voices of the members is what appeals to him.

Washington School Notes.

By fifth and sixth grdaes.

Next week is the spring vacation.

We are glad that vacation is coming.

The program met with success last Friday.

Our next program will be on April the 8th.

A good many people attended the program last Friday.

Mary Kotsohevar is sick and has been absent a few days.

St. Patrick's day was not observed with green ribbons as usual.

Jack stones is a favorite game among the boys and girls at present.

The pupils of the fifth and sixth grades are studying on the Middle Atlantic states at present

About half of the Sixth grade enjoyed an hour after school Tuesday night drawing the Middle Atlantic states.

We received our report cards last Wednesday, and some found their marks very low. They will have to get down to work next month.

Spring is at hand in all her glory, and another few days will bring the beautiful sunshine to start nature on her way to donning her mantle of green. While the winter has been a severe one, nevertheless we will be amply repaid for it all when the good old summer time gets a good start.

Orson Doe has been canvassing this end of the county the past week in the interests of The Gazette, and has added a nice bunch of new names to our already handsome list. Orson says that he finds it decidedly hard work getting new subscribers for The Gazette in this neighborhood, as practically every man he meets has been a constant reader of the paper for years, and don't need any urging to take advantage of the liberal offer made them to renew. The Gazette is proud of its many friends and patrons and realizes that with their hearty co-operation has this paper been brought to the advance of the procession. The Gazette with its large list of readers is a good ad. for Red Lake Falls, and it is holding its place at the front nicely, thank you.

BACK IN BUSINESS.

Ed. L. Healy, Well-known Land Man Opens Up Office.

Ed. L. Healy, who so successfully conducted the Ed L. Healy Land company here for several years, and who sold out to Bourdon and Simons early in the winter, will open up an office in his old stand, the Schreiter building on North Main street tomorrow.

Mr. Healy needs no introduction to the people of Red Lake county, as his past record is one that is creditable to the utmost degree. He has a well-earned reputation as a hustler from the word go, and it is safe to assume that he will be successful from the start.

He asks that his old friends and others who have lands for sale to list with him, and assures them that he will go after business hard.

Ed. L. Healy is one of the best men for Red Lake Falls that we have ever had, and the news that he will again engage in business and remain with us will be gladly received by his numerous Red Lake county friends.

Mentor Creamery Will Run.

It is expected that the commencement exercises will be held at the opera house on Monday evening, June 6, and during the week preceding that date the Junior banquet, class day exercises, etc., will be given.

The class of nineteen four will consist of eleven members, all from Red Lake Falls' best families, and young people who can be relied upon to prove equal to accomplishing all that is anticipated for them.

BAND TO GIVE DANCE

Easter Ball At Opera House To Be Excellent Affair

The Easter ball at the Metropolitan opera house by the Red Lake Falls Band orchestra next Friday evening, April 8, promises to be a social affair, and evidences are that a large crowd will be present and a good time had.

The proceeds of the dance, above expenses, will go into the band treasury, and it safe to assume that good use will be made of the money. As fast as possible the band will add new instruments and the showing made during the coming summer will be one that will reflect credit on the city at large.

Turn out next Friday evening and help a worthy cause.

WILL PRESENT "THE DEACON"

Class of 1904 To Appear At Metropolitan Next Monday Evening in Class Play.

The class of 1904 of the Red Lake Falls High School will present the laughable five act farce comedy, "The Deacon" at the Metropolitan opera house next Monday evening, April 4.

The play is said to be one of unusual merit, and the rehearsels and preparations have been under the direction of Prof. F. A. Whiteley, whose ability along these lines is a well known quantity. The proceeds of the evening will be used to help defray the expenses of the commencement exercises, and a large crowd should turn out to encourage the efforts of the young people. Onstad's orchestra will furnish the music. The following is the cast of characters and synopsis:

NEW PENSION RULING.

Affects Soldier Past The Age of Sixty-Two.

Commissioner of Pensions Ware, with approval of Secretary Hitchcock, on the 16th day promulgated the most important pension ruling that has been issued in a long time. The order follows: "Ordered in the adjudication of pension claims under the said act of June 27, 1890, as amended it shall be taken and considered as an evident fact if the contrary does not appear, and if all other legal requirements are properly met, that if the claimant has passed the age of 62 years he is disabled one-half in ability to perform manual labor and is entitled to be rated at six dollars per month and after 70 years at 12 dollars per month. Allowance at a higher rate, not exceeding $12 per month, will continue to be made as heretofore, where disabilities other than age show a condition of inability to perform manual labor. This order shall take effect April 13, 1904, and shall not be deemed retractive. Former rules of office fixing minimum and maximum at 65 and 75 years respectively are hereby modified as above." The order itself is preceded by a preamble which after citing the law, says the pension bureau has established with reasonable certainty the average nature and extent of the infirmity of old age that 39 years after the Mexican war Congress in 1887 placed on the pension roll all Mexican War soldiers who were over 62 years old. Commissioner Ware, just before leaving for a trip south for his health, said the order would save both the old soldiers and the government a great deal of money and time.

Proper Treatment of Pneumonia.

Pneumonia is too dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of the grip, and that by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the threatened attack of pneumonia may be warded off. This remedy is also used by physicians in the treatment of pneumonia with the best results. Dr. W. J. Smith, of Sanders, Ala., who is also a druggist, says of it: "I have been selling Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years. I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results." Sold by W. A. Schreiter.

A GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE.

A. L. Reichert Will Return Money If Hyomei Fails. No Stomach Dosing

Hyomei has made so many cures of the most chronic and deep seated cases of catarrh, that A. L. Reichert consider it a specific in this disease.

He extends an invitation to all catarrh sufferers to call at his store and purchase a Hyomei outfit with the distinct understanding that it will be absolutely free unless it effects a cure.

The chief reason for the unusual success of Hyomei in the treatment of catarrhal troubles and other diseases of the air passages, is the fact that it cures by a new principle, impregnating the air you breathe with healing and germ-killing balsams. On this account it reaches the seat of the disease in a way impossible to pills, drugs or stomach dosing.

Many of A. L. Reichert's custumer who have suffered with catarrh since childhood have been cured completely by this scientific remedy.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs $1, and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the purse or pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. Extra bottles can be obtained for 50c., making it the most economical remedy for the cure of catarrh.

Do not suffer longar with catarrhal disorders, but get a Hyomei outfit from A. L. Reichert, under his guarantee to return the money if it fails. You run no risk whatever. If it cures, the treatment is not expensive, while if it fails, A. L. Reichert will refund your money and it costs you absolutely nothing.

ABOUT RED LAKE LANDS.

Commissioner Richards Issues a Circular Regarding Sale.

To answer the hundreds of inquiries that are pouring in upon Land Commissioner Richards regarding the opening of the Red Lake reservation in Minnesota the commissioner has issued the following statement, in the form of a circular letter which is being sent out to all inquirers,

"Sir: I am in receipt of your inquiry as to the regulations under the act of congress of Feb. 20, 1904 (Public No. 23), providing for the opening of a portion of the Red Lake Indian reservation in Minnesota.

"In reply you are advised that said act authorizes and directs the secretary of the interior to sell, for not less than $4.00 per acre, subject to the homestead laws of the United States, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, in tracts not to exceed 160 acres to each individual, all that part of said Red Lake reservation in the state of Minnesota lying west of the the range lines between ranges 38 and 39 west of the 5th principal meridian approximating 256,000 acres.

"The law further provides that purchasers of said land shall make their final proof conformable to the homestead laws within six years from the date of sale; that aliens who have declared their intention to become citezens of the United States may become purchasers under said act, but before making final proof and acquiring title must take out their full naturalization papers. It also provides that persons who have heretofore exhausted their rights under the homestead law may become purchasers under said act.

"The law also provides for the removal of the Indians residing upon said lands to the diminished reservation within six months from the passage of the act.

"The law contains other provisions concerning the time and manner of payment and the disposition of the unsold lands, after the expiration of five years from date of sale, and disposition of the proceeds to be realized from the sale of the lands, etc., which it is unnecessary to recite at this time.

"Instructions will be issued under said act at as early a date as possible and will be given to the public as news through the press, and will also be distributed in circular form through the local land office at Crookston, Minnesota. Until said instructions are issued no futher information will be given on the subject."

Your Heart

May Be Weak. One Person in Four Has a Weak Heart.

One of the surest signs of a weak heart is shortness of breath after exercise. Your heart is not able to pump the blood fast enough to your lungs.

Some of the other symptoms of Heart Trouble are: Pains in the Side, Back and Shoulder; Fainting or Weak Spells; Dry Cough; Swelling of Feet and Ankles; Cold Feet or Hands.

No one can afford to allow a weak heart to go without medicine, because weak heart means poor circulation, and poor circulation means weak lungs, stomach, liver, kidneys, etc.

If, therefore, you suspect heart trouble, begin taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. The Heart Cure will do you good, as it is a splendid tonic for the blood and nerves, and will revitalize your entire system.

Finally, remember, Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is sold under a guarantee that the first bottle will do you good.

If it doesn't—your money back.

"I was afflicted with heart trouble for three years. I would be apparently all right, and without a moment's warning would fall as though shot. The attacks were frequent, and a terrible dread possessed me, as I never knew when or where, nor under what conditions I would be attacked, and whether I would survive them. I consulted and was treated by some of the most eminent physicians of the state. Not finding relief from this source, I began taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and began to improve at once. I used ten bottles, which entirely cured me, as I have not had an attack for five years."—MRS. JOHN DRESBACK, Leipsic, O.

SETTLERS TO APPEAL

THOSE EVICTED FROM CASS LAKE RESERVATION CARRY THEIR CASE TO WASHINGTON.

State Must Make Another Fight for Title to Swamp Lands—Pioneer of New Auburn Suicides at an Auction. Several Workmen Injured by an Explosion at Ely—News of the State in General.

Duluth, March 26.—The evicted squatters on Cass Lake Indian reservation lands will at once appeal to President Roosevelt to secure what they term their rights. They are highly incensed because Major Scott, acting Indian agent, ordered their removal from the lands a few days ago, although knowing that he was simply following orders. The lands upon which the squatters settled are not included in any Indian allotments and are outside the provisional boundary established by the forestry bureau. The timber on them was sold Dec. 5 and has just been cut and removed according to the terms of the Morris law. Section 5 of that law says that after the timber is removed the tract shall be classed and treated as agricultural land and opened up to settlement.

Some of the claimants in the disputed territory had purchased small frame dwellings from squatters on the famous Section 16 and moved them to the tract they had selected. Upon the notification of the Indian agent to vacate they locked their cabin doors and came into Cass Lake to await a settlement of the matter.

Not only will President Roosevelt be appealed to, but the Minnesota delegation in congress, steps to that end being taken Friday.

SWAMP LANDS CASE.

Minnesota Must Make a Further Fight for Title.

St. Paul, March 24.—Minnesota is now called upon to make a still further fight for its title to lot 1, section 6, township 58½, range 17, which has been in dispute for some years, and which the commissioner of the United States general land office recently declared to be rightfully the property of the state. This is the swamp lands case.

S. G. Iverson, state auditor, was served yesterday with notice of an appeal on the part of F. A. Hyde & Co. from the decision of the commissioner of the general land office. The case will now go before the secretary of the interior, who is the final authority.

KILLS SELF IN CROWD.

Pioneer Commits Suicide at an Auction Sale.

New Auburn, Minn., March 26.—While an auctioneer was bidding up prices at a public sale and in the midst of the many persons congregated there Mitch Dibb, a pioneer settler of New Auburn, suddenly drew a revolver and shot himself through the head. Several persons saw his action, but none was close enough to prevent it.

Dibb lived for a number of hours before he died, though he was unconscious. No motive for his act is known. He was fifty-eight years old.

SEVERAL WORKMEN INJURED.

Pailful of Dynamite Explodes With Fearful Effect at Ely, Minn.

Ely, Minn., March 25.—A serious accident occurred at the new light and waterworks Thursday. While the men were eating dinner a pailful of dynamite through some unknown cause exploded, badly injuring several workmen. Two were taken to the Shipman hospital, one having three of his fingers blown off and his legs badly injured, and the other one part of his face nearly blown off. They are in a critical condition.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

Charles Snow Convicted of Killing His Cousin.

Little Falls, Minn., March 23.—After four and a half hours' deliberation the jury in the Snow murder case returned a verdict of murder in the second degree.

The crime for which Charles Snow was convicted was committed in Parker, Morrison county, on Dec. 28, when Snow killed his cousin, William J. Snow, with a Winchester rifle.

BILLY EDWARDS SENTENCED.

Sent to Minnesota Reformatory for Working Confidence Game.

Duluth, March 23.—Billy Edwards, who took a prominent part in the Minneapolis police scandal, was Tuesday sentenced to an indeterminate term in the state reformatory by Judge Ensign in district court, being convicted on an indictment charging him with working a confidence game upon a farmer in this city over a year ago.

Krause Jury Disagrees.

Worthington, Minn., March 26.—The jury after being out for nearly forty-eight hours Friday returned a verdict of disagreement in the case of Mrs. Tomke Krause, who was indicted the latter part of February for the alleged murder of her husband, Anthony Krause, Jan. 7, in the village of Adrian.

Charles S. Fee Going West.

St. Paul, March 26.—Charles S. Fee, who has been general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific during the past twenty-one years, will leave St. Paul next week for San Francisco, where he will assume his new duties as passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific, succeeding E. O. McCormick.

Minneapolis Mills Close Down.

Minneapolis, March 25.—Eighteen flour mills closed down during the day. More than 1,000 workmen are thrown out of employment. Laxity in the demand for the mill products caused the shutdown.

CLOUGH ISSUES A DENIAL.

Claims That No New Securities Company Is Being Formed.

New York, March 25.—"You may deny most emphatically that a new Northern Securities company is being planned," said Colonel Clough, vice president and general counsel of the company. "We are doing our best to carry out the principles of the court's decree."

This statement was brought forth by the circulation in Wall street of a rumor that a plan had been formulated by which Northern Pacific stock would be held in block and not distributed.

In spite of official denials the statement is persistently reiterated that a difference of opinion has arisen between the Great Northern interests and the Union Pacific group of capitalists. The point of dispute was said to be the future control of Northern Pacific. James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, said:

"Everything is peaceful."

Officials of the Union Pacific deprecated the talk of rivalry in Northern Pacific. E. H. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific, said he did not care to discuss the reports.

STARVES FOR RELIGION.

Farmer Refuses Food and Dies Doing Penance.

Cass Lake, Minn., March 23.—A strange story of fanaticism, which resulted in the death recently of Mathias Brenna, aged thirty-nine years, a well-to-do farmer living in the town of Eden, has come to light.

Brenna had been possessed for some time with the hallucination that he must, on account of his sins, do penance by continuous fasting and for a year past he has taken nothing at his meals but bread and water and a month ago he decided to eat absolutely nothing until after March 24. Since that time he has not eaten anything.

Relatives have attempted to force him to take nourishment and doctors have been called in to induce the mistaken man to feed himself, but all to no purpose, and on Friday night last, after suffering untold agony, Brenna died from actual self-imposed starvation.

AGAINST RECIPROCITY.

Seventh District Republicans Indorse Volstead's Stand.

Ortonville, Minn., March 24.—The Seventh district Republican convention, in session here yesterday, indorsed Congressman A. J. Volstead's stand against Canadian reciprocity by an overwhelming vote.

The resolutions adopted indorse Roosevelt, praise Van Sant, commend United States Senators Clapp and Nelson, declare in emphatic terms in favor of Volstead and his anti-reciprocity idea, and demand his renomination and re-election. THE STAGE IS A GOOD PLACE FOR EARNEST WOMEN

By HENRIETTA CROSMAN,
Star of "Sweet Kitty Bellairs"

LIKE most every one else, my start was made in one of the smaller companies, and after a year or so I got into New York. I went to Daly's and then to the Lyceum. I thought I had made a name for myself when I played in "Gloriann," but when that play was withdrawn I found that I COULDN'T GET AN ENGAGEMENT. But what at the time seemed to me a hard blow was really my salvation, for, unable to obtain work, I was compelled to accept engagements in stock. Naturally I said to myself, "If you were a good actress, Henrietta Crosman, they would want you in New York; but, being a bad actress, you must play twice a day in any old place."

I didn't realize that that same twice a day and a long part each week to study were THE VERY EXPERIENCES I NEEDED. I only looked at the hardship of it all and complained at my lot. Stock parts and the opportunity to play good roles gave me great experience, such as I could have got in no other way, and now I am the most thankful of women that the fates decreed I could not get even one manager to give me a part on Broadway.

YET WITH IT ALL, KNOWING THE WORK AND DISAPPOINTMENTS THAT MUST COME, WERE SOME YOUNG WOMAN TO ASK MY ADVICE ABOUT GOING ON THE STAGE I SHOULD SAY, DO SO BY ALL MEANS—THAT IS, PROVIDED YOU ARE SURE THAT YOU HAVE SOME TALENT, A GOOD CONSTITUTION AND AN ABILITY TO PERFORM AN IMMENSE AMOUNT OF HARD WORK.

The opportunities offered a young woman in the dramatic profession are more, I think, than in any other. There is always room at the top, and I presume that every young woman who goes on the stage has an ambition to become a star. To a young woman who has talent my advice would be to ADOPT THE PROFESSION OF THE STAGE.

When one looks at the myriad of young girls who are working in stores, offices and other places, earning a mere pittance and WITH NO OPPORTUNITY OF ADVANCEMENT beyond a certain limit, one cannot help but see the advantage of the stage as a profession, if the applicant is suited in temperament, constitution and all else for her work. The stage is like all other arts—one does not have to wait for a vacancy in the ranks for advancement. For painters, writers, singers and actors advance comes to those who are deserving, and this does not hinge upon the will of some petty employer. Even if the dramatic schools are grinding out actors by the dozens today, I would not discourage any one with ability to enter the profession. GOOD ACTORS ARE SCARCE enough, and the stage will not be hurt by the addition of a number of bad actors if a few good actors can be given it.

To a girl who loves her work and realizes its seriousness I would say, "BY ALL MEANS GO AHEAD." But to the young woman who looks on the stage as a sort of frolic through life and an easy way of gaining the admiration she craves I should say, "KEEP AWAY FROM IT." In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred success on the stage is the result of hard work. In no profession, business or calling is the work so hard or trying, and the young person who contemplates making a step in this profession should realize that she is about to enter a profession in which the hardships, disappointments, work and triumphs, if they finally come, are greater than IN ANY OTHER walk of life I can recall.

EDUCATION AND RELIGION

By President HADLEY of Yale

THE story of the conflict between education and religion is an old one, as old as education itself, and there are many good points advanced by the advocates of a purely secular school and the advocates of religious schools.

IF MEN WERE WHAT THEY OUGHT TO BE, THIS CONFLICT WOULD BE WHOLLY UNNECESSARY.

The advocate of the secular education says that vice and crime and poverty are the results of ignorance. He believes that he can remove these things by a proper school system. MORAL EDUCATION WILL TAKE CARE OF ITSELF.

There is a great deal of truth in this, but there is much crime due to moral perversity. The educated man is less likely to commit larceny, but he is MORE LIKELY TO COMMIT FORGERY.

I do not believe that you are going to make the right kind of a citizen by a godless education and then adding on religion afterward. That idea is wrong. EDUCATION AND RELIGION MUST GO HAND IN HAND.

THE PRESS WILL NEVER SUPERSEDE THE PULPIT

By RABBI SCHULMAN of New York

IT has been suggested that the power of the church is waning and that the press has become THE SUBSTITUTE FOR THE PULPIT. The press is a most powerful moral educator. It speaks to millions, and no man can refuse to recognize its tremendous influence for good. Its weakness, however, lies in the fact that the press, so termed, is primarily a newspaper and that it regards things from the standpoint of news, which is not the highest ideal for public education. Abuses may be exposed and the guilty castigated to a whole world instead of to a small parish, but the press has not the power to talk as the pulpit can talk TO THE HUMAN SOUL. Men must separate themselves in a consecrated house and at a consecrated hour to listen to the message given in the name of conscience in order to do adequate justice to the task of MORAL education.

THE RED RIVER VALLEY.

There is no portion of the United States more justly famed for its native resoures of soil than the Red River Valley. It is known from one end of the country to the other as the Eden of the Northwest and has a soil that is incomparibly rich. Careful experiments in the laboratory of the chemist has developed the fact that the soil will yield 1000 crops without artificial fertilizing says the Crookston Journal.

The entire valley, according to Louis Agaissiz, the great naturalist, was at one time an Inland lake of vast proportions and the changing force of continent transformed the bed of this vast lake into an alluvian valley, the richness of which is not surpassed by the valley of the Nile itself.

For many feet the top soil consists of a black loam, the sediment of the lake, the accumulations of centuries. This rich black soil contains the nutriment for 1000 successive crops of any plant life which is acclimated to this altitude. At the present time in some sections as many as thirty crops, almost entirely of wheat, have been reaped from the soil. The last crops were quite as good as the first, in fact, it is contended that proper tile drainage has made the last better than the first..

The soil is alive with myriads of infinesimal animals which loosen each year the eelments of the soil which are essential to plant life. This vast bed of black earth contains enough nutriment to raise one thousand crops of wheat, corn, barley, oats, potatoes, rye, fruits, etc.,—a thousand different varieties of plant life which grow in this climate.

Our climate needs no defense. It is vigorous but healthful and few cities of 8,000 inhabitants can report, as can Crookston, that in the course of 51 days there has been neither a death nor a funeral in the city. It is the Mecca of the most substantial farmers of Iowa and Illinois who are seeking larger farms in a rich country at a much less figure than they can pe purchased for in those states.

Nine years ago there were 300,000 telephones in use. That was the year the Bell patents expired. Today there are 3,000,000 instruments purveying business and gossip, but it ts largely because there are so many independent concerns. The organization of the independent companies hasn't, so it is said, caused the business of the Bell company to be any the less, but has caused it to expand in proportions far beyond what is was expected it would develop. At the meeting of the telephone companies of the country at Cincinnati last week the above figures were given out. There too, it was predicted that in all probability the next advance step will be made in telephone exchange construction will be an automatic board that will do away with the hello girl and will make it possible for patrons to make direct connections with other people's telephones.

Just a word. For a man who has run a Republican paper, a sound money Democratic organ, a free silver sheet, took the chairmanship of the Democratic county cential committee, soft soaped the Populists and is at present engaged in handling a Republican candidate's campaign, the Courier editor creates a laugh when he throws out the charge of bribery. "Judge not, lest ye be judged."

The Gazette will positively refuse to enter into any newspaper controversy with its jealous rival at the other end of the street, and has excellent reasons for so doing. Mr. King is on record as always aching to mix in a dirty fight with some one and he always has and always will put in more time attempting to do harm than he does in trying to benefit his town or county. The general public doesn't care a whit about the personalities of either one of the newspaper editors and the other fellow's attempt to create discord is very apt to prove a boomerang. The Gazette really doesn't blame the Courier editor so much, as he is merely acting as the tool of a certain narrow-minded, mischief making individual, who never made a success of his own business and is green with envy when any one else succeeds. How much or how little the Gazette editor knows about the Republican governorship aspirants shouldn't cut any figure with the two gents posing as the leading Democrats of this end of the county, and in due time the balance of the people will easily be able to see. For the present we will pull for Red Lake county, and if there are any attempts to work to the county's disadvantage necessary, the Courier can be depended upon to take care of them.

Ex-Mayor Campbell, of Crookston, is in receipt of many letters from prominent Democrats throughout the state informing him of the growing sentiment in favor of Mr. Hearst for the Democratic nomination for president. Mayor C. A. Nye, of Moorhead, writes Hearst is strong there, also Attorney James R. Bennett, of St. Cloud, says Hearst clubs have been formed there, also in the Twin cities favorable to the candidacy of Mr. Hearst. It is conceded that both North and South Dakota will send instructed delegations for Hearst and it is not improbable but this state will do likewise. The Hearst boom is not waning by any means. Hearst's latest newspaper is the Boston Examiner which, according to press reports has started off with bright prospects of success.

John Morgan, of Thief River Falls, one of the big Democrats of the Ninth Congressional District, was setting up his political fences here the first of the week. Mr. Morgan is a candidate for the delegate to the national convention at St. Louis from this district, and is said to be whipping his party associates in line for Judge Parker for the nomination. The Hearst boom is assuming considerable proportions in Northern Minnesota, and we may expect to see some fun in the ranks of our friends, the enemy.

The Thief River Falls Review jumps onto The Press last week, because it skinned it out again on giving late reservation news. The contortions of the Review people to try and convince the public that they are running a newspaper are extremely funny, but it looks as though the readers would get tired of paying for that sort of slush. Until the Review can make good to the claim of being half as good a paper as the Press, it had better devote its time to hustling news instead of snapping at its superiors.

The same method will be followed this apring and the plant will probably be operated at full blast by the first of the coming month. There has been considerable talk indulged in around town in regard to the poor showing made by Red Lake county in the recent teachers examination, and The Gazette feels that in justice to the teachers of the county that an explanation be made of the reason. At the examinations last month, ninety per cent of thoae who wrote were not teachers in the schools of the county, but were high school pupils making the trial for practice work. Red Lake county bas a corps of exceptionally bright school teachers, and when they take their yearly examinations the showing is not hy any means poor.

J. F. Krust, of Hammond, Ind., was a guest of Messrs, H. J. and L. A. Kaufer this week. Mr. Krust is on his way home from Washington state, where he has spent the past three weeks with P. A. Kaufer and other relatives. While Northern Minnesota people have complained a great deal of the severe winter experienced, Mr. Krust says it isn't so bad after all, as he left his home in Indiana five weeks ago with a heavy overcoat on and after visiting three weeka in Washington, or in other words making a tour entirely across the continent, he found that the first day his winter overcoat felt uncomfortable was in Red Lake Falls nn Monday of this week. Mr. Krust bas visited here several times before, and has always been a warm admirer of the Red River Valley.

The April number of the "Twentieth Century Home" is quite up to the standard set by the first two numbers. From a long list of contributors we gather the names of Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Clara Morris, Heinrich Conried, Hezekiah Butterwonth, Garrett P Servlss, Harry Thurston Peck, the late Surgeon-General William A. Hammond, Tom Mason and Theodosia Garrison. The articles one and all are planned for women who have serious interests in life. They cover many branches of efforts in which women have a part. The illustrations are unusually numerous and beautiful.

Former Governor W. R. Merriam has brought suit in the United States court against Janes A. Johnson, of Morris, in which he alleges that he owned a section of land in Stevens county for which Johnson was the agent. He claims that Johnson sold the land to a dummy for less than it was worth and charged a commission for making the sale, when as a matter of fact Johnson purchased the land himself. He now asks for an accounting. The suit was tried in the district court, but on an appeal it was remanded for a new trial, when the plaintiff dismissed and began his case in the United States court.

The band concert last Friday evening, although given under extreme difficulties on account of the miserable weather, was nevertheless well attended and greatly enjoyed. The numbers rendered were exceptionally difficult, but the members handled them with rare tact, and their wor was another testimonial of the ability of their leader, Prof. A. Onstad. The alto solo by Mr. Clem. Brunelle, the clarinet solo work of Prof. Onstad and Miss Finseth's beautiful vocal solos were enthusiastically encored. Mrs. A. G. Bjorneby accompanied Miss Finseth and also Prof. Onstad on the piano. Red Lake Falls ia fortunate in having a band of the merit possessed by the present organization and Manager Berthon and Prof. Onstad deserve tablets in the hall of fame for their entiring efforts in the band's behalf.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

Under cover of darkness Sunday morning the Japanese made another desperate attempt to bottle up the Russian fleet in Port Arthur, but failed, and when, after daylight, Vice Admiral Makaroff steamed out to give battle the Japanese commander refused the challenge and sailed away. The Japanese practically repeated the tactics of Feb. 24, by sending in four fire ships, accompanied by a torpedo boat flotilla, with the exception that the fire boats this time were armed with Hotchkiss guns for the purpose of keeping off Russian torpedo boat destroyers. The enemy's intention was discovered by means of shore searchlights and a heavy fire was maintained by the batteries and two gunboats, which guard the entrance of the harbor. The Russian torpedo boat destroyer Stilni was outside on scouting duty and to the dash and nerve of her commander, Lieutenant Krinizki, is chiefly due the complete defeat of the plans of the Japanese. He at once made straight for the oncoming ships under a hail of fire from the Hotchkiss guns and torpedoed the leading ship, which sheered off, followed by the others, three of them being piled up on the shore under Golden hill and one under the lighthouse. The Stilni then engaged the entire six torpedo boats of the enemy, coming out from a terrific fight with seven killed and her commander and twelve of her complement wounded, but on the Japanese side only one boat's crew was saved.

Vice Admiral Togo's activity at Port Arthur is being emulated by the commander of the Japanese forces in Korea. The report of General Mistchenkow to St. Petersburg shows that the Japanese have taken the precaution to erect earthworks near Anju, which are being held by a Japanese division until the remainder of the First army corps comes up from Pingyang, about forty miles away. The advance of the Japanese shows that they are losing no time and that they are more rapid than the Russians expected. Nevertheless the fortification of Anju shows the Japanese operations are accompanied by all proper military precautions.

Another attack by the Japanese fleet on Port Arthur, beginning with operations by torpedo boats and ending with a bombardment by battleships and cruisers, is reported to St. Petersburg. The dispatches to the emperor from Viceroy Alexieff and private information show that the Russians sustained no great damage, having only five soldiers killed and ten wounded. Vice Admiral Makaroff claims that one of the Japanese vessels was struck by a shell.

Proclamations issued by General Voronetz, who is in command at Vladivostok, urge the people at Vladivostok to remain, but add that only those will be allowed to stay who have 432 pounds of flour and 108 pounds of buckwheat, which quantity is calculated to last eight months. All the Chinese and Koreans who are without occupations have been ordered to depart.

According to information received at St. Petersburg strong fortifications have been erected for the defense of Harbin and Liaoyang. The construction of batteries at Newchwang continues to be feverishly pushed and it is believed that place will shortly be in a condition to resist even a determined assault by the Japanese.

Captain Irkoff of the Manchurian commissariat service, who was arrested on the charge of having sold information in connection with the quartermaster's department to the Japanese, has been tried by courtmartial and found guilty. He has been sentenced to twenty-five years' penal servitude.

Two detachments of Russian troops, one estimated to number 500 and the other 200 men, are reported to be pillaging the country around Anju, Korea. The natives, in fear, are fleeing south. Anju is forty miles north of Pingyang and about sixty miles south of the Yalu river.

A private telegram received at Tokio from Korea states that the Russians are establishing a strong position in the vicinity of Antung. They are said to have seven fortresses completed and to be engaged in erecting six additional ones.

Russians are continuing preparations for a prospective siege of Port Arthur by rushing large quantities of supplies to that point. As many as forty cars loaded with barley, chickens and other foods arrive there daily.

A correspondent of the London Daily Express telegraphs from Nagasaki that the Japanese war office has now completed all details for the movement of the main columns for the invasion of Manchuria.

The Chinese ministry of foreign affairs has refused the Russian military attache a passport to inspect the Chinese forces in Manchuria and Mongolia.

General Kuropatkin, Russian commander-in-chief of the land forces, has arrived at Mukden.

An imperial edict has been issued opening Yongempho, Korea, to foreign trade.

Martial law has been proclaimed at Newchwang.

Martial law is in operation in two Colorado counties—San Miguel and Las Animas. At the governor's office no secret is made of the fact that the purpose in declaring martial law in San Miguel county is to prevent the return to Telluride of the union men who were expelled from the camp by an organization of armed business men and who have announced their intention to go back.

The "closed shop" may be demanded in the Chicago stock yards with the alternative of a general strike. Notice has been served on one packing firm that unless it abandoned efforts to disrupt the unions the closed shop would be called for and that the 35,000 union men in the yards would enforce the demand.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902.
Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.
S. P. BROCKINGTON.

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

GRIT

Crows, crows, but it snows, snows and blows.

It rained here last Thursday, nearly all afternoon.

Tom Johnson, of Garnes, was a caller at Grit last Saturday.

Sam Swanson returned from the woods up near Kilther last Saturday.

Henry Compton was at McIntosh with a load of wheat last week.

Ed. Havik was at McIntosh after a load of store goods last Wednesday.

A. O. Watsund was at McIntosh for a load of feed for his choice steers last week.

Ole O. Lee and family were visiting with Ed. O. Erickson and family last Sunday.

Ole Holum is also on the "broncho" this week, he also was down to Red Lake Falls and got one.

Judges Havik and Skomedahl had a law suit on hand last Thursday. Judge Havik dismissed the case.

Wild geese and meadow larks are here already, surely there is some hopes that spring will come after all.

Mr. Akeland, the bridge contractor here, has started the bridge at O'Neill's place, across the Lost river.

Gunder Skreland was around last week trying to buy hay but none could be bought, not even straw, at any price.

T. T. Slettvolt and son, Ed., were down to Red Lake Falls last Wednesday and bought a team of bronchos from Senf and Green.

Osor Skreland, H. C. Manders, G. Swenson, Tobias Olson and your correspondent were at McIntosh last week on business transactions.

Miss Grace Green, one of Equality's most popular young ladies, returned home from Red Lake Falls last week for a visit with her home folks.

The McIntosh Times, as usual, bobs up whenever things don't just harmonize with the saloon element. It thinks beyond that it is not safe to tread.

There was a pleasant surprise over at James Gaston's last Sunday in honor of Mrs. Gaston, it being her birthday. She received a nice rocking chair as a gift. There was a large crowd.

Swen Olund had the misfortune the other day to knock his shoulder out of joint. He was driving his team, and walking, and in some way he fell and pulled it out of joint. He is now improving and will soon be around as usual.

Arne Olson, in the town of Garnes, seems to be in hard luck on the hay question. This is now the second winter that his hay has been stolen. However this time he captured his man, and if he don't settle at once he will show him a thing or two.

One of the saloons in McIntosh was closed last week on account of selling liquor to minors. There is still another saloon there that has a similar reputation, and if anything, worse then the one closed, which would have been closed long before this if the law had been equally applied to both.

Our this year's prairie chicken crop is apt to be a very small one, because most of the chickens have perished this winter in the snow drifts, seeking shelter there. They have been covered up and unable to get out, thus thousands have perished during this winter, and if ample protection is not allowed against their fate this fall why the chickens will soon be a thing of the past. The loss may be far greater than now imagined. It would be a wise plan to prohibit entirely the chicken hunting this fall. We therefore appeal to our law-makers that restrictions may be made in the game laws for this season to protect the poor chickens from a speedy end, and their disappearance forever.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. NEW SHORT STORIES

When Mr. Bissell "Talked."

The late Wilson S. Bissell was a close friend of President Cleveland, and when he was a member of the cabinet the president talked very frankly with him and often at him when he was really criticising some other member of the cabinet. Among other things which the president did not like were cabinet interviews, and one day he expressed his mind freely upon the subject, saying that the constant interviews with cabinet officers in the public press on all sorts of trivial subjects were undignified. The day this lecture took place a newspaper man had interviewed Bissell about affairs in the postoffice department and had prepared a very good story, using quotation marks freely. There was not much in the interview, no subject of importance, and it appeared in different papers under headlines such as "Interview With the P. M. G.," "Discussed by Bissell," "Mr. Bissell Talks," etc.

The next day a dozen messengers informed the interviewer that the postmaster general wanted to see him. When he entered the office he found that official in a state of frenzy. His large face was red with excitement and passion.

"What do you mean," he shouted, "by interviewing me? What did you put me in quotation marks for? Don't you know that cabinet officers must not be quoted?" And much more to the same effect.

When the newspaper man got a chance he asked if there had been a misquotation and received a negative reply. "Why, I was fixing up a little story for your benefit," the journalist said. "I thought you would want people to know that you were a member of the cabinet and attending to business. Now, really, general, you ought to feel flattered."

"Oh, I know there's no harm in it, and you meant well, but I must not be quoted or interviewed. Cabinet officers must not talk. And look at the headlines," he continued, flourishing a paper. "'Mr. Bissell Talks,' blankety blank it!"

The newspaper man could stand it no longer and laughed outright, and finally the good natured Bissell joined him, although he was still far from pleased. The interview and the headlines, coming on the heels of the Cleveland lecture about cabinet officers talking too much, had greatly disturbed him. He was apparently the first man to violate the new instructions.

He Took It Quietly.

John Morley in his life of Gladstone tells how the latter received his first invitation from Queen Victoria to form a ministry. It was in 1868. He writes: "On the afternoon of Dec. 1 he received at Hawarden the communication from Windsor. 'I was standing by him,' says Mr. Evelyn Ashley, 'holding his coat on my arm while he in his shirt sleeves was wielding an ax to cut down a tree. Up came a telegraph messenger. He took the telegram, opened it and read it, then handed it to me, speaking only two words, "Very significant," and at once resumed his work. The message merely stated that General Grey would arrive that evening from Windsor. This of course implied that a mandate was coming from the queen charging Mr. Gladstone with the formation of his first government. After a few minutes the blows ceased, and Mr. Gladstone, resting on the handle of his ax, looked up and, with deep earnestness in his voice and with great intensity in his face, exclaimed, "My mission is to pacify Ireland." He then resumed his task and never said another word till the tree was down.'"

"MY MISSION IS TO PACIFY IRELAND."

Ready For the Test.

A teacher in one of the schools near Philadelphia had one day been so disturbed by the buzzing of lips and shuffling of feet of the children that she was on the verge of distraction. Finally she said: "Children, I cannot stand so much noise. Please be quiet, for a little while at least. Let me see if you can't be so still that you could hear a pin drop."

Instantly every child became as still as a mouse. Then a little boy in a back seat piped out with marked impatience:

"Well, let her drop!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The operation required careful work, but resulted very successfully.

Adrien Democrat: The mail carriers on the rural free delivery routes are organizing to secure better pay from the United States government. They at present recieve but $50 a month which is clearly not enough to compensate them for the extra expense of furnishing a team for the government service. The labor of a rural mail carrier is by no means light. He faces the storms of winter and the heat of the summer with equal complacency, intent on delivering the mail to the farmers on the his route, scattered over many miles of hills and valleys. The country highways of the United States are among the worst in the world and many a man would consider that he deserved to be paid for simply driving over in the slush of spring and fall. The rural mail carrier often breakes the road in winter, though government regulations expressly provide that a way must be kept clear for him. He is the one man who is expected to keep on the roads at all times and his salary is not what it should be.

Monday morning several people were standing on the sidewalk in front of of J. M. Bray's saloon, when they heard a humming noise and in a moment a 38-calibre bullet struck the plate glass window just above their heads. The ball glanced on the glass, tore a large sized hole in the casing of the window and fell out into the street. From the break in the glass it could easily be seen that the bullet came from somewhere over southeast of town, and Mr. Bray started out at once to see if he could locate the parties who had fired the shot. Just outside the limits he found Arthur Moreau and Willie Reick on the way out for a rabbit hunt with a large bore rifle, and on inquiry Mr. Bray found that a short time before they had fired hap-hazard at a flock of prairie chickens that were passing by between them and town. Mr. Bray took the rifle and shells and brought them to town, and a settlement of the matter will no doubt be brought about. While the young men did not in any way intend that harm should come from their shot, nevertheless it will likely be a lesson to others to be careful with the use of rifles anywhere near the city limits. To think what might of happened had some person been in the track of the bullet is horrible to contemplate, and it is fortunate that things resulted no worse.

Sarcastic Wheelock.

Wheelock's Weekly: There are some people who can distinctly remember a time when the trees were covered with green leaves, when flowers of many colors grew right out of the ground and the days were warm and sunshiny; when people went around without overcoats and coal dealers were kicking because of no trade. This may have been so. It is also claimed it will be so again.

DISTRICT COURT.

Three Days Session With Judge Watts on the Bench.

The regular March term of the District Court convened Monday with the Hon. Wm. Watts on the bench, and the work of grinding out cases on the calendar occupied all the time until today.

Several jury cases have been tried, and numerous court cases were taken under advisement.

In the case of Nels Pederson vs. Ole Arvson, the lower courts decision was affirmed.

The case of S. N. Sorenson et al. vs. A. M. Hanson, was set for a trial in chambers at Crookston on ten days' notice.

In the case of E. M. Evenson vs. C. Eklund the defendant did not appear and the answer will be withdrawn.

The case of Kate Harris vs. Chas. Hallas, which was carried over from last term, was again continued, and it is thought that a settlement can be effected.

The case of Telesphore Ducharme vs. The Great Northern Railway Co. in which plaintiff claimed damage for hay destroyed by fire set by company's engine, went to the jury Tuesday afternoon, and a verdict was given Ducharme in the amount of $136.80. W. A. McIntyre represented Mr. Ducharme and the Great Northern attorneys the company.

The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff in the case of Andrew P. Erickson vs. Ole O. Hannem.

In the case of Daniel Gerlach vs. John Alstadt the jury returned an instructed verdict for the defendant. This suit was over a land contract, and was exciting and interesting.

In the appeal case of I. Beausoliel vs. F. E. Hunt, the court affirmed the decision of the justice court in in favor of the defendant.

The case of Findeisen vs. Dan Linnihun was continued to April 29, when Judge Watts will hold a one day's session here. This case was appealed from a justice court decision holding that a constable could not serve a summons on the Sheriff, and Judge Watts reversed the decision of the lower court. Attorney Germo represented the plaintiff and Attorney Boughton the defendant.

Several cases were stricken from the calendar and others continued until next term, which will make a big bunch of court business in the fall.

GOES TO HIGHER COURT.

Case Involving Title to Valuable Land to Be Appealed.

Crookston Journal: Lack of jurisdiction by the probate court in Marshaldon vs. Anton Jolly case, involving the ownership of a valuable tract of land near Red Lake Falls, will ultimately result in the trial of the proceedings before the district court. The case is the one in which Mrs Henrietta Marshaldon of Red Lake Falls seeks to obtain the possession of a piece of land which was, as far as the records in the probate office go, properly deeded by her to Anton Jolly of Red Lake Falls, after the death of her husband. Mrs. Marshaldon alleges in her petition that the sale of the property was made without her consent and that the proceedings in probate court relating to the sale were forged by Oscar Lindquist, who acted as clerk in Judge Benson's court at the time.

At the hearing of the case before Judge Thorson Attorney F. A. Grady of Red Lake Falls representing Mr. Jolly, the defendant moved for a dismissal of the case upon the grounds of lack of jurisdiction. Attorney Hagen of this city, who represented Mrs. Marshaldon demurred to the dismissal and asserted that he would take the case to the district court. He desired the case continued indefinitely that he might not have to reopen all of the probate proceedings in connection with the case should the higher court give the probate judge jurisdiction in the matter. Judge Thorson was agreeable to the postponment and until the action in the district court, which will probably be brought up at the June term no further developments in the case will be brought out. Mrs. Marshaldon and her daughter and son-in-law, of Red Lake Falls, were in attendance at the hearing, but were not communicative on the details of the case.

The land involved was originally state school land and the present owner, Anton Jolly, besides paying Mrs. Marshaldon for it, paid the state nearly $1,000 for a state patent.

The allegations of forgery were not sustained at the trial and the evidence submitted was of an indirect nature.

OPENING WILL BE IN JULY

Indians Sign Agreement and Will Move Back Onto Diminished Reservation Early.

It is as good as settled that the Red Lake ceded lands will be opened for settlement by July 1st. This was assured here to-day when the members of the tribe on this part of the reservation signed the agreement to vacate by June 20th.

The signatures were withheld when Special Agent Downs was here a week ago, as the Indians on this part of the strip did not wish to sign until the head men of the agency had been seen. Col. Downs returned from there on Thursday, and stated the conditions. The Indians have signed the agreement willingly without a word of protest as soon as they learned that the agent had arrived. Moose Dung affixed his signature at once and the others almost fell over themselves in getting into line. One old man popularly known as the "Frog's Brother," walked ten miles after dark to affix his name to the contract, and others were as anxions.

This clears the way for an early opening of the lands and allows the purchaser a sufficient time to make settlement before winter sets in. The sale will probably begin about July 1 and continue through July and August. Col. Downs will proceed at once with the appraisement of the Indian improvements on the land to be sold.

WILL MANAGE TOWNSITE.

Julius Pleth, the St. Hilaire man, Will Handle Soo Town.

St Hilaire Spectator: Julius Pleth last week received the appointment from the Soo officials to handle their townsite at the new town which is to be established at, or near, the Clearwater river about 15 miles southeast of here, and in connection with same will also start a land office and State bank, and as he expects the town to be platted some time in May, will have lumber hauled out as soon as the roads are good, have the building finished and his bank and office in operation in June.

There were a number of applicants for this place and that the Soo people, in selecting Mr. Pleth, knew what they were about and made an excellent choice is very evident and the loss of Mr. Pleth will be keenly felt and generally regretted, as he has spent thousands of dollars in advertising, brought in more settlers and done more good for St. Hilaire and surrounding country than any man ever engaged in business here.

He will this year with the present office force continue the land business at this point, but will himself devote his entire time to the handling of his map, locating on the reservation and selling lots over yonder, and drive his custumers from this place till the road is finished so that he will be able to bring them up direct over the Soo line from the cities.

In the spring of 1905 he will also build a residence, remove his family and dispose of all his property here, which will include his land office and business also, as he will operate exclusively over the Soo line.

With the country tributary to this new town, and under the management of Mr. Pleth, who is a noted hustler, we can only make one prediction—that it would be a good wide awake town.

During his stay in St. Hilaire, now nearly four years, Mr. Pleth has made a great many friends and regrets sincerely having to leave after being so nicely settled and well established, and chiefly due to the fact that he considers St. Hilaire business men a most liberal lot who appreciate one's effort in building up and advertising a town and country; but as he has long been wanting the management of a bank together with his land business, and now also getting the townsite, he feels and considers this the opportunity of a life time, hence the change.

FIGHTING FOR SAW MILL SITE

City Attorney Boughton Endeavoring to Hold Saw Mill Property in City's Name.

Crookston Journal: The properties and effects of the Red Lake Falls Lumber company, which have been in dispute for so long a time and were recently sold under judgment sale to H. W. Stecher, of Red Lake Falls, are again the subject of court proceedings. Last evening before Judge Watts in his chambers arguments were made by the city of Red Lake Falls in which the disposition of the property and the removal of the machinery and equipment is asked to be stopped. The city claims the property upon which the mill stands because of the forfeiture of the milling company's contract with the city.

In the beginning of the mill company's existence the city of Red Lake Falls gave the promoters of the affair a $10,000 bonus and agreed to furnish a warranty deed of the property needed for the plant The milling company on their side of the bargain agreed among other things to run the plant for at least seven years. The promoters of the company Messrs. Useldorf and Buse, when they discovered that the plant was not a money making proposition, stopped operations after running five years and for the past two seasons not a wheel in the plant has moved. Various court proceedings were gone through and the sale of the property at judgment sale some time ago was thought to be the closing incident of a badly muddled condition of affairs.

The city, however, thought otherwise, and after examining the matter instituted proceedings to stop the transfer of the property. The defense in their arguments last evening contented that the municipality of Red Lake Falls under the charter which the city possesses is not empowered to donate bonuses to any private enterprise and that even if the city were empowered the provisions of the city's contract were violated by the refusal of the saw mill committee appointed to issue to the saw mill a warranty deed. The city was represented by City Attorney Chas. A. Boughton and the defense, H. W. Stetcher, of Cleveland, Ohio, by Attorney F. A. Grady, and the arguments were quite technical.

At the hearing of the case last evening in the chambers the attorneys for both sides, after arguing the matter for some time, requested that the hearing be postponed until April 29th when final arguments will be made.

The readers' attention is called to the local ad. of O. Mikkelson, calling attention to the fact that he has some excellent dry wood for sale and is prepared to diliver same to any part of the city.

THROW OUT OF FEDERAL COURTS

Supreme Court Reverses Decision of U. S. District Court and Throws Case Back to State Courts.

The United States supreme court decided the case of the state of Minnesota vs. the Northern Securities company and the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies, involving the validity of the merger of the two roads, holding that it was without jurisdiction and reversing the opinion of the court below.

In delivering the opinion of the court, Justice Harlan cited the facts bearing on the origin and history of the case, saying that originally the suit was instituted by the state in its own court, but that before an opinion could be reached there was, on petition of the Securities company transferred to the circuit court of the District of Minnesota, by which court it was dismissed. There was much controversy over the right to remove the federal court and after hearing the case argued once, the supreme court ordered a second hearing on that point. Justice Harlan called attention to the fact that the proceeding was for the purpose of enforcing both the state law and the federal anti-trust act, saying that the circuit could not have jurisdiction if only the state statues had been involved. Taking up the federal law and analyzing its previsions, he said it was clear that the case did not belong to any of the classes provided for by it.

"It is" he said, "not a criminal proceeding, not a suit in equity in the name of the United States to restrain violations of the anti-trust act, nor a proceeding in the name of the United States for a forfeiture of property, nor an action by any person or corporation for the recovery of threefold damages for injury done to business or property by some other person or corporation."

The contention that the case involved proprieatary interests of the state was not allowed to influence the opinion. On that point the court said in part: "The injury on account of which the present suit was brought is at most only remote and indirect; such an injury as would come alike, although in different degrees, to every individual owner of property in a state by reason of the suppression, in violation of the act of congress, of free competion between interstate carriers engaged in business in such state. If Minnesota may, by an original suit in its name, invoke the jurisdiction of the circuit court because alone and alleged remote and indirect injury to its proprietary interests arising from the mere absence of free competition in trade and commerce as carried on by interstate carriers within its limits, then every state upon like grounds may maintain in its name a circuit court of the United States, a suit against interstate carriers engaged in business within their respective limits."

The court also refused to hold that Minnesota's dignity or rights as a state would be affected under article IV of the federal constitution by permitting the stock of corporations of that state to be held by an outside corporation like the Securities company. Justice Harlan said the court did not think that the article of the constitution had any bearing whatever on the question, adding:

"It only prescribes a rule by which courts, federal and state, are to be guided when a question arises in the progress of a pending suit as the faith and credit to be given by the court to the public acts, records and judicial proceeding of a state other than that in which the court it sitting."

He said in conclusion: "For the reasons stated, we are of the opinion that the suit does not—to use the words of the act of 1875—really and substantially involve a dispute or controversy within the jurisdiction of the circuit court for the purpose of a final decree. That being the case the circuit court, following the mandate of the statute, should not have proceeded therein, but should have remanded the case to the state court.

"The decree of the circuit court is reversed and the case is sent back with directions, that it be remanded to the state court." The opinion of the court was unanimous.

NUMEROUS LITIGANTS.

A Record Breaking Case for Complications on at the Land Office.

Crookston Times: A contest is on at the local U. S. land office, which for the number of contestants, claimants and attorneys interested, breaks all records in that line in the Crookston land office.

The land being fought for is a fractional section, being section 16, town [illegible], thirteen miles east of Fosston and both the entries and settlements are involved.

The tracts claimed under prior settlement are differently described from the entries made, and in consequence all entries made involving the whole fractional section all of which were contests, were consolidated into one contest case, making it the most intricate ever tried here. The feature of the case that tangles it up so badly is that both the settlers and entrymen cut the section up differently, and in several instances some forties are claimed by all the thirteen men involved.

The claimants are Reier O. Gordon, Winfield S. Gracelon, Ole O. Brendt, Arne, P. Rustad and Aslax T. Tretekken.

The contestants are Alix G. Thorsen, Ole Janson, John J. Kjorven, John O. Sater, Iver Stee, Leanord Thorsen, and James P. Morris and the lands involved are section 16, township 149 N range 39 W, Town of Eden, Polk county.

The attorneys employed by the various [illegible] cases will be fought to a finish. The attorneys employed are as follows:

R. J. Montague, N. Campbell, W. E. Rowe, Martin O'Brien N. B. Moran of Crookston; B. S. Bennet, of Fosston and Thomas Germo, of Red Lake Falls.

ALUMNI ORGANIZE.

Classes of '01, '02, '03, Meet and Form an Association.

The alumni of the Red Lake Falls high school met at the Ed. L. Healy home last Saturday and took steps toward organizing a permanent association. A great majority of the classes of '01, '02 and '03 were present and the following officers were elected to serve during the first year:

President, Miss Della Toupin, '03.

Vice-president, Miss Etta Garceau, '03

Executive Committee, Lulu Fletcher, '03; Leland Healy. '02; Katie Berthuiame, '02; Abner Fletcher, '03.

The purpose of the association will be to meet occasionally and keep up the friendships and acquaintances of the school days, and each year's class will be admitted as soon as they finish their school work. The association also plans on entertaining the Senior class this year prior to commencement week, and this idea will likely be carried out in the future years as well.

The association consists of 29 members at present, and many pleasent gatherings will no doubt result from the organization.

RUSSIAN ADMIRAL DROWNS.

Practically the whole of her crew were lost, and it is officially reported that Vice-Admiral Makaroff was among those to drown. The loss is a severe one to the Russian navy.

"HONEST INJUN."

How the Chickasaws Were Taught the Meaning of the Expression.

Among the earliest comers to the Hatchee country, in western Tennessee, was a Mr. Barnes, a blacksmith, who became a friend of the Chickasaw Indians and often mended their guns without charge. Barnes was a poor man, but obtaining on credit a donkey named Moses, which was valued at a considerable sum, he imported the animal and stabled it at the smithy, says the Youth's Companion. It was the first in that region. One morning he found the door open and Moses gone. He followed a trail to the bank of the river and lost it. The stream was in flood, and he believed his valuable animal was drowned. Unless he found some way to raise the money to pay for it he was a ruined man.

Two months later a trading scow came down the Hatchee from Bolivar, and on the roof, spread out in the sun, was the hide of Moses, unmistakable in its soft and handsome grays. Barnes related his story to the trader and received the skin, which had been bought at Bolivar from a trader there. As no white man would have shot a donkey Barnes concluded that the Indians, who had never seen one, but who were then hunting on the Hatchee, were the offenders.

To trap them he tried a little stratagem. He organized a shooting contest and offered as a prize "the handsomest skin ever taken on the Hatchee, the pelt of a beautiful animal."

A Chickasaw brave was the winner of the contest and claimed the prize. Barnes brought forward the skin of Moses and spread it on the ground.

"There is your prize," he said.

"Me shoot um! Me shoot um!" cried the winner, running to the skin and pointing to a bullet hole. Then he told how he had been wandering down the river bank and had seen this strange wild animal, like nothing he had ever seen before, breaking through the cane. He had shot it and sold the hide at Bolivar. He was delighted to get it back.

This was what Barnes had hoped for. Standing, he addressed the Chickasaws.

"My brothers," he said, "you know me. I am a poor man, but I am a friend to the Chickasaw. I mend his gun for him and deal fairly by him. This animal was my white man's pony. I bought it far away and brought it here. It cost me much wampum, the price of many Indian ponies. To lose it will lose me all. It escaped me and went in the woods, and there a Chickasaw killed it.

"When I am in Chickasaw country, I obey Chickasaw law. When Chickasaw is in white man's country, he should obey white man's law. White man's law is that whoever kills my pony must pay me for it. What will Chickasaw do?"

The Indians had listened attentively. When he had finished, they went to their ponies, tethered near by. The whites watched them meanwhile with intense interest. The Indians untethered their ponies and brought them up.

"Take um," they said. "Indian have only ponies. Give um all."

"How many?" asked Barnes.

"You say how many."

Barnes appointed an appraiser, who selected a number of ponies equal in value to the donkey. These the blacksmith sold to his neighbors.

The Indians gave up their hunt and went back to their villages, poorer, but satisfied. They had maintained, for their tribe at least, some claim to the title, "Honest Injun."

Follow Your Dreams.

"To compel our thoughts to follow the memory of dreams and on no account to revert to any subject of waking thought, pleasant or otherwise"—that is a woman's formula for sleep.

"If we have already slept in the night," she says, "we should, in trying to sleep again, recall the dreams of the previous sleep and carry them on. If we have not slept, then it is necessary to go back to old dreams, which is rather more exertion and less certainly successful. But even this is far better for sleep than allowing the memory to revert to any waking thoughts or to the familiar old devices of counting a hundred or picturing sheep, etc."

Just the Thing.

Mr. Goodheart—Regarding those kittens, my dear, the president of our society says the most humane way to drown kittens is to put them in an ordinary earthen flowerpot and then suddenly turn the flowerpot upside down in a pail of lukewarm water. Mrs. Goodheart—Why, yes; that is a good idea—isn't it?—because you know there is a hole in the bottom of the flowerpot for the poor little things to breathe through.

Approved of the Idea.

Mr. Ferguson (in wrath)—If you're going to bring a lot of club women to this house to spend the day, you'll have to entertain them yourself. I wash my hands of the whole affair. Mrs. Ferguson—Well, they look as if they need it.—Chicago Tribune.

Cut This Out Out For Reference.

Prof. Washburn, of the State Experiment Station, has written us as follows, asking us to publish it in our next issue if potatoes in this vicinity are troubled with potato blight.

"In traveling over the state the latter part of last summer, I was struck by the prevalence of blight in potato vines in many sections. Since then, many complaints have reached us regarding this trouble. The following treatment with Bordeaux mixture has in New York state, given excellent results, and a knowledge of the method, it would seem, should be in the hands of every farmer in our state, who raises potatoes.

"Spray the vines with Bordeaux mixture when plants are six or seven inches high. Two weeks later give them another spraying. Follow them with two later sprayings, making four in all, allowing two weeks to intervene between applications. The necessary strength of Pordeaux mixture for this purpose is made as follows:

"Place six pounds of copper sulphate (blue stone) in a burlap sack, and hang in sufficient water to dissolve it in any vessel which is not made of iron. Slake four pounds of fresh lime gradually. When slaked add 25 gallons of water, and the water containing the dissolved blue stone. Stir thoroughly and add 25 gallons more water (50 gallons in all). This mixture should be strained through burlap before being used, to remove particles which might clog the sprayer. To kill potato beetles or "bugs" at the same time add one pound Paris Green to the amount of the mixture necessary to cover an acre. Each plant must be throroughly covered. To be successful the spray should be used before the blight starts. This process costs about $4.00 per acre, and each farmer must decide for himself whether the expense is justified.

County Division Talk.

The latest move on the local political chess board indicates very clearly that Fosston has not yet shelved her county seat aspirations and that she is perfectly willing to sacrifice her constituents in any way that will assist her to gain that end.

Her latest scheme, which, though often hinted at during the past month has heretofore lacked confirmation, is is now being carefully nursed and promoted in favored localities in Clearwater county.

This scheme is nothing short of a proposition to annex the two eastern tiers of townships now belonging to Polk to Clearwater county. The purpose being to eventually make Fosston the county seat of Clearwater county.

This might profit Clearwater with its vast quantities of cut-over stump land, its jack pine barrens and its large areas of swamp lands, but wherein would it benefit the towns traded it on the deal?—Crookston Journal

Views of Nature.

North Dakota State Journal: Here is the way a Wisconsin editor describes the recent storm that visited North Dakota: "A southeastern wind hurled tumble weeds and Russian cactus through the air at 50 mile an hour gait and the gate went too. Man and stoves were drawn through the chimneys, the wind blew in the neck of a bottle and tore out the bottom. Nebraska wagon tracks passed over town in thousands. The strain on the wire fences, was so great that the staples were drawn out on the north side of the posts. A kerosene barrel standing in front of a grocery was sucked out of bung hole and turned inside out like a lady's slipper. The dirt flew from a post on the hillside and the hole sticking out of the ground about two feet with no dirt around it."

This man may have a right to say these things about North Dakota but we think not. While we have never seen such winds as he speaks of during our sojourn in Wisconsin we have seen a sample of dry weather unequaled in any of our travels. In the summer of 19—one of our neighbors found it necessary to take up the well and run it through a wringer in order to get a pail of water; and in some places it became so dry that the farmers were compelled to soak their hogs before they could hold swill.

Household Hints.

Where fleas abound sprinkle salt over the floor before sweeping it.

Salt thrown on soot which has fallen on the carpet will prevent stain.

When making mush to fry, mold it in cups; then slice it in circles when cold.

A little oil of lavender sprinkled about the bookcase will keep the books from moulding.

If moths infest furniture they can be removed by dusting the crevices with powdered borax.

Put a teaspoonful of powdered borax in your cold starch; it gives extra stiffness to your linen.

If whitewash is mixed with sweet milk instead of water, it makes the whitewash more like paint.

To wash oil cloth, sponge it well with skim milk, as this brightens and preserves the color.

For washing windows and mirrors a little ammonia added to the water is better than anything else.

Flatirons should be kept as far as possible from the steam of cooking, as this causes them to rust.

Excellent furniture polish is made of one-third turpentine and two-thirds sweet oil. Apply with a soft cloth.

Ivory knife handles that have grown yellow with age or careless usage may be whitened by rubbing with sand paper.

If a young child is seized with convulsions, strip it as soon as possible and put into a warm bath and send for your doctor.

Do not peal rhubarb before cooking simply cut it in pieces. The skin will melt away and improve flavor of the sauce.

In packing away silver for the summer, put a few pieces of camphor in the box with it. This will keep the silver from becoming discolored.

Kettles that have become rough inside from boiling hard water in them will be much improved if a strong borax solution is boiled in them for several hours.

Potted Eggs—Boil hard, chop very fine, mix with finely-minced sardines or anchovy paste, press into small cups; serve with a little butter and water cress.

A good remedy for damp, moist hands, is four ounces of eau de cologne and half an ounce of tincture of belladonna Rub the hands with a few drops of this several times a day.

Mirrors should never be hung where the sun shine directly upon them. They soon look misty, and grow rough and granulated, and do not give back a correct picture.

The best thing for keeping the cellar sweet and wholesome is plain whitewash made from lime and water only. The addition of glue or anything of the kind only furnishes more matter to decay.

Onion toast is a delicious dish. The onions should be boiled until done, seasoned with salt, pepper and butter and spread on slices of toast, the whole garnished with slices hard-boiled eggs.

For softening shoes that are hard and thick, castor oil is one of the best possible things. It will keep the leather in excellent condition, and makes shoes last twice as long as in the ordinary way.

Permanganate of potash is one of the simplest and best disinfectants known. It should be used in the proportion of an ounce to a pint of water and a little placed in an open vessel will throughly disinfect a room.

For a burn or scald, make a paste of common baking soda and water, apply at once and cover with a linen cloth. When the skin is broken apply the white of an egg with a feather; this gives instant relief, as it keeps air from the flesh.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

General Kachtaliaky telegraphed April 5 to General Kuropatkin that an exchange of shots occurred between Russian cavalry and Japanese skirmishers near Wiju. The Russians sustained no losses. Five Japanese were killed. General Kachtalinky also reported that opposite Turmitchen, on the island of Matuzeo, in the Yalu river, some Russian volunteers had a skirmish with a Japanese outpost from Wiju. There were no casualties on the Russian side. Six Japanese were killed.

General Kuropatkin's visit to Newchwang has inspired boundless confidence. The commander-in-chief ordered 10,000 reserves to reinforce that position, in view of the expected Japanese attack, while an additional force of 15,000 men is ready to concentrate there at short notice, if necessary.

While the first line of defense against the Japanese advance from Korea is a strong position, selected by General Kuropatkin near Fengbuangcheng, it is believed the Russians intend to hold out as long as possible at Antung, which commands the Peking road.

In a skirmish between Russian frontier guards and Chinese bandits, April 2, at a point on the southern section of the Manchurian railroad, three Russians were wounded and ten bandits were killed and twenty were wounded.

General Kuropatkin has arrived at Newchwang to inspect the troops and defenses. Fears are expressed that the Cossacks of General Mistchenko, who were defeated at Chongju, have been surrounded by the Japanese.

Reliable reports received at Tokio from Seoul are to the effect that part of the Japanese fighting line has crossed the Yalu and established itself in strong positions there at several important points.

The Japanese first army, consisting of 45,000 men, including the imperial guard and the Second and Twelfth divisions, which had been concentrated at Anju, is moving on Wiju by three routes.

It is rumored from Mukden that two trains containing a large number of Russians who were wounded in an engagement on the Yalu have passed through there on the way to Harbin.

The Fourth division of the Japanese army is landing in the north part of Korea at several points. With it go the first batch of foreign correspondents.

The news from the Far East all indicates that the Japanese have completed their arrangements for the invasion of Manchuria on a great scale.

General Kuropatkin, the Russian commander-in-chief, says he will have 400,000 men in Manchuria before war begins in earnest.

NEWS IN MINNESOTA

EVENTS OF THE WEEK THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

Governor Van Sant has fixed Friday, April 29, as Arbor day.

William T. Donaldson, aged seventy-nine, a pioneer resident of St. Paul, is dead.

Twenty-nine deaths from typhoid fever occurred in Minneapolis during March.

James B. Gilman, a resident of Minneapolis since 1854, is dead, aged seventy-three years.

Colonel Monfort, president of the Windsor Hotel company, St. Paul, is dead after ten days' illness.

Charles Fancher, the "one man band," blew out his brains with a shotgun at Lake City while despondent from illness.

According to the census bureau the population of Minneapolis at the end of 1903 was 214,112, of St. Paul 172,038 and of Duluth 57,397.

The four-year-old daughter of John Hardwood, a farmer residing near Spring Valley, was burned to death while playing with companions at a bonfire.

The safe in the meat market of Ernest Young at Minneapolis was blown open by burglars, who entered the building by cutting out a window. They secured $150.

More than 200 lawyers from all parts of the state were present at the opening session of the supreme court. The calendar was called and the 207 cases were set for argument.

Professor Frederick E. Beckman, who for several years has been in charge of the Spanish department at the state university, has handed in his resignation to the faculty.

Members of the bench and bar of Minnesota held a banquet in Minneapolis last week. E. C. Springer of St. Paul was elected president of the state association for the ensuing year.

Water in the Crow Wing river along the northern boundary of Morrison county is ten feet above low water stage. Seven bridges at Pillager, Sylvan, Motley and Staples have gone out.

Active work has been started on the improvements being made at Fort Snelling. Nearly 150 men are now employed and the contractors will increase the number as the weather improves.

Governor Van Sant has been petitioned by the old settlers of the state to use his influence in having certain sentiments applicable to the old settlers and their deeds engraved on some conspicuous part of the new state capitol.

As a result of a fight over a woman in a room in the rear of C. W. Swanson's saloon, St. Paul, three men were cut, one probably fatally, by John Strong, a colored porter, who is accused of starting the trouble by insulting the woman.

J. C. Jorgenson of Forest City, Ia., who passed through Minneapolis last week on his way to buy a farm near Lisbon, N. D., reported to the police that he had been robbed of $1,100 by pickpockets while in the act of stepping aboard a train at the Union depot.

William G. Masters of Mankato, who was appointed to a position in the postal service in the Philippines on the recommendation of Representative McCleary, has been promoted to be assistant director of posts for the entire archipelago at a salary of $3,500 a year.

In a fight on the University campus at Minneapolis between the members of the Shakopean Literary society and four rival organizations D. C. Dow, a leader of the Shakopeans, was stabbed by one of the members of the other associations. The knife wound is not dangerous.

A big opening of agricultural lands on Minnesota Indian reservations will occur within sixty days. All lands classed as agricultural on the Leech Lake, White Oak Point and Winnibigoshish reservations will be thrown open to settlement in one proclamation, which is now being prepared.

The state normal board, by unanimous vote, elected Professor Guy E. Maxwell, who for the past four years has been superintendent of the training department of the Winona normal school, to be president of that institution to succeed Dr. J. F. Millspaugh, who has resigned to become the president of the Los Angeles (Cal.) normal school.

State Auditor S. G. Iverson, through the state legal department, plans to bring prosecutions against some of the lumbermen in the northern part of the state for trespassing on state lands. Attorney General W. J. Donahower is investigating several cases in Itasca county, and if there is sufficient evidence criminal actions will be commenced.

Miss Alix Mueller, formerly a St. Paul newspaper woman, a fluent writer and the author of a book in which was embodied the histories of the police departments of Minneapolis and St. Paul, died in Oklahoma Friday. Miss Mueller was largely instrumental in securing the pardon of the Younger brothers and would have, it is said, married Jim had the law not interfered.

The state supreme court has handed down its decision in the so called Russell Sage land cases, involving title to some 25,000 acres of valuable agricultural lands in Southern Minnesota. The test case is decided in favor of the settler and against Sage, the trustee of the Hastings and Dakota Railway company. It is said the decision will result in the homesteaders in the disputed tract winning back their homes.

The biggest will contest ever begun in St. Paul has been instituted in the Ramsey county probate court. Dr. T. E. W. V. Appleby, who was left an annuity of $10,000 a year by his wife, Cornelia Day Wilder Appleby, who died last year, gave notice of dissent to the character of securities set aside by the executors to secure him the annuity. This throws into court the Wilder will which provides for the distribution of nearly $3,000,000 and endangers the great Wilder charity, by which nearly $2,000,000 was set aside to be distributed among the worthy poor.

BRYAN'S CAMPAIGN OF DEFAMATION.

Mr. Bryan has been maligned by many intemperate critics, but his fame began in his own intemperance of utterance, and he furnishes good texts every week for exhortations in behalf of sanity, sobriety and fair judgment. In the latest number of The Commoner, for example, there is an assault upon Judge Parker, whose gratuitous assumptions and offensive implications would be possible only to an irrational, self-absorbed person whose sense of the decencies of controversy was thoroughly benumbed by his violent prejudices says the Chicago Record Herald.

Mr. Bryan says that "there is no doubt that the corporate interests have an understanding with Judge Parker." If this means anything it is that the judge as President would be the mere tool of the corporations. He would violate his oath to help them, would make his administration subservient to them in every respect. A specific charge is that he would appoint corporation men to the Supreme Court, and in this connection there is a characteristic fling at the three Democratic justices and Justice Holmes for their dissent from the merger decision. These four judges and Judge Parker himself are traduced through a mean innuendo as though they were faithless to their trust and the enemies of the people. For the effect on his readers' minds Mr. Bryan might as well declare that they were vile, corrupt parasites, who were betraying the public at the behest of capitalistic combines.

When the most is admited for him—namely, that he is an honest enthusiast for a cause—it is apparent nevertheless that his methods are inexcusable. The effrontery or the insensibility with which he ascribes evil traits and evil motives to other men is amazing. By common report all the judges at whom he sneers are up-right, conscientious officials and citizens. There is nothing that we have read in the reviews of Judge Parker's life which would indicate that he was not fully as scrupulous as Mr. Bryan, as good a man, as good a neighbor, as good a politician. But the Bryan opinion briefly stated is that Bryan represents not only all the virtues but all the people, all humanity, while Parker is a malignant, abhorrent monstrosity formed to do the bidding of soulless and wicked creations of the law.

That, we say is the Bryan opinion because it is the logical deduction from the insinuations. Looking at the spirit and import of the latter, it would really be impossible to exaggerate them by any form of statement. They carry the grossest insults to every person who falls under the displeasure of the censor, and the insensate egotism from which they spring is becoming infinitely wearisome.

To the outside world it would look as things had arrived at a peculiar stage of the game when the leading (what) Democratic organ of this section threatens defeat to a Republican Judge because he exercises his rights as an American citizen in the matter of choice in the gubernational contest, but the Gazette can state from actual knowledge that the leaders in the Republican party in Red Lake Falls, at least, openly refute this attempt on the part of the Tammany leader to create a false impression, and will not let their views on the governorship question in any way interfere with their support of good men in their own party. The Republican party has in the past been able to conduct its own campaigns, and will no doubt set a firm foot on the attempts of this self appointed guardian to dictate to them what they will do in the future.

Senator Gibson of Montana made a speech in the senate indicating a condition of land frauds and land stealing in the West a hundred times more serious than the postoffice steals, and appealed to the senate to repeal all the land acquiring laws except the homestead act. This is the first time that the subject has been brought up for consideration on the floor of either house and it is expected that it will be given a thorough airing before congress adjourns. Senator Patterson of Colorado supported Senator Gibson's contention and stated that the absorption of great tracts of land of hundreds of thousands of acres into a single ownership was a menace to the nation.

The Crookston Times, a new one in the Republican ranks, is quite emphatic in its attempts to boss the Polk county Republicans and in many quarters the question is raised as to whether the Times has got its feet warmed up sufficiently to assume the position of chief push in the Republican camp. The rule or ruin gang are with the Times, however, and the Polk county Republicans should watch out for the wolves in the fold.

This special reservation edition of the Thief River Falls Review came to hand last Saturday, and exceeded expectations by several lenghs. The edition consisted of twenty-four pages and an excellent colored cover, and the whole thing was one that will bring credit on the city and the publishers. The presswork on the entire edition was one of the strong features, and better half tone work has never been turned out of a country office in Minnesota. The Review people hit a bull's eye that time, without question.

The Minneapolis Journal is authority for the statement that the ninth district may furnish a third candidate for railroad and warehouse commissioner, to contest with Judge Mills and Ezra Valentine. E. J. Herringer, the well-known auditor of Norman county, and first alternate-at-large to the national convention is being talked of by his numerous friends. He has not made any decisions, but if he should enter the race he would make trouble for some of the present aspirants.

Dick Medicraft, editor of the Roseau Region, apologizes for the slim appearance of the sheet last week, says the Crookston Times. His wife presented him with a son and heir, which he acknowledges he "received with much gratitude and some noise." The getting out of the paper is a weekly affair, but the advent of a future lawyer and editor is not so common, and Brother Medicraft hung up a "business suspended" sign and did the proper thing on such an accasion.

The political editor of the St. Paul Dispatch has evidently heard rumblings of the "inflooence" of Red Lake county's Tammany leader, as witness the following squib: "The Red Lake Courier threatens Judge Grindeland with annihilation because he is working for Judge Collins. The judge isn't losing any sleep, however.

The political writer on the Minneapolis Journal is pleased to note that the Hon. L. C. Simons is a candidate for re-election from this district, and comments favorably on his work in the last legislature. The Judge's candidacy is favorably looked upon all over this district, and he will have no opposition for the place.

It is said that Julius Pleth, the versatile St. Hilaire boomer, will ask for a county office at the fall election, but it is not stated what he wants. Mr. Pleth has the reputation of being a hustler of the right color, and he would make a strong fight for whatever he went after.

P. A. Gunders, the ex-assisant public examiner, has been fixing up Bob Dunn's fences in this section of the state during the past two weeks, and seems satisfied that he has accomplished what he started out to do.

MUST DREDGE RIVER.

Engineer Ralph Thinks That Government Should Do This

"By the building of Red River Valley ditches that the agricultural territory of the northern portion of the state might be easily drained in the spring and facilitate seeding operations, the people in the lower portions of the Red River Valley will suffer." said State Ditch Engineer George A. Ralph recently to a Crookston Journal man. "And in all probability the next congress of the United States will be called on to dredge the river channel and increase the flow of water. The land north of Grand Forks, along the river is low, scarcely a few feet above the river banks and the immense amount of water which the large county and judicial ditches of this portion of the valley turn into the river are more than can be taken care of. As a result the banks will overflow and the destruction to property will be great. Along the shores of the Red Lake river people are safe because of the high banks along the river. The stretch of country between Grand Forks and Winnipeg, however, will suffer greatly. The most feasible and practical way of enlarging the flow of water through the Red River will be the straightening of the many curves and windings for which the river is noted. There are many places in its course northward at which the water makes a circuit of several miles to return to a point but a few rods distant from its starting point. The flow of water is increased by the shortness of the route traversed and by cutting channels through the circuits there is no doubt but that the capacity of the river will be doubled."

Mr. Ralph has had charge of all of the Red River Valley ditch engineering and is an authority on the subject. His statement in regard to the increased amount of water flowing into the river is proved by the fact that this year the prairies are being rapidly drained off and as a result the river is higher than it has been for some time. The inability of the water to get through below the dam is occasioned by the small flow of the Red River of the north and the jamming of the ice further northward. From the Canadian border northward it is understood that the Canadian government is planning on enlarging the flow in order to prevent floods at Winnipeg. Winnipeg is but a few feet above high water mark and old residents there, who remember the flood of 1882 predict a reocurrence of the high water this year and state that the manner of the water raise is practically the same as in that year.

The next session of congress will undoubtedly appropriate funds for the dredging of the river, or at least efforts have been started in that direction and it is thought that they will be successful.

At the meeting of the city council tonight a petition will be presented, signed by a number of the free-holders of the city, asking that John A. Duffy be prevented from repairing his building in block seven, recently damaged by fire. The council decided last week that the building was not damaged fifty per cent. but the understanding is that several people will appear before the council and endeavor to have them reverse their decision.

The next monthly band concert by the Red Lake Falls band will occur the last week in April, and this will be the last of the winter series and one of the best yet given. The program will include several excellent classic selections, and a bunch of the best popular music. The band's work during the winter season has been appreciated by the people and the people's support has been more than appreciated by the band, so the start on the summer season will be under decidedly favorable conditions.

Attorney F. A. Grady was a caller at the up river Falls last Saturday.

Chas. Zutz was over from Wylie, Monday, and made a pleasant call at this office.

M. E. Todd, the popular Wylie schoolmaster, was a caller here Tuesday on business matters.

O'Brien Bros. have a new ad in their space in today's Gazette, and the reader will profit by paying attention to what is contained in it.

Miss Dora Marchand returned to her school work in Terrebonne Saturday, after spending her Easter vacation at the home of her mother here.

The woodmen will give a social dance at their hall Friday evening, April 22, and a good time is looked forward to. Frank Freund will furnish the music.

Clean up sale of men and boys suits at the Big Store. They are closing out a lot of their last years suits at half price in some cases. All goods dependable merchandise.

Mr. and Mrs. Jens Nelson came down from St. Hilaire Monday to take in the dance at the Metropolitan that evening. They were guests at the Buse and Lewis homes while here.

"My Uncle from New York" company held forth at the Metropolitan last Saturday evening, and played to a fair crowd. Those present were satisfied with the entertainment.

If you enjoy a first-class story you can be assured of getting one when "The Gentleman from Indiana" gets here. This is one of the best stories published and you should make arrangements to read the whole thing.

The people are evidently appreciating the values we are giving them in suitings and black goods. Never have we done such a business in dress goods. Our $1.00 $1.15 black goods are easily worth 20 per cent more—the Big Store.

The Easter dance given by the band orchestra Monday evening of this week, was well attended and one of the usual enjoyable times resulted The orchestra again covered itself with glory, and the financial end was such as to repay them for their effort.

The final band concert of the winter season will be given at the Metropolitan opera house on Friday evening, April 29. The management of the band tells the Gazette that the final concert will be the best ever and asks that a large number of people turn out and make the send-off a rousing one. A dance will follow the concert.

Messrs. Sorthedahl & Bjorneby expect to commence the work on their new brick bank block as soon as the weather settles sufficiently to allow the work to progress without interruption. The new bank will be an excellent ornament on that prominent corner, and will add greatly to the beauty of that end of Main street.

From the fact that so many of the people have expressed a desire to attend the entertainment by W. I. Nolan here Saturday evening, the Metropolitan has been secured, and seats are on sale at the usual place. Every other town in Minnesota is eager for a chance to hear this entertaining speaker, and the Red Lake Falls people should crowd the house.

As the Gazette goes to press the snowstorm that has been on tap off and on all week is still doing business at the old stand, although it melts as soon as it strikes the ground, almost. It is to be hoped that "the good old summer time" won't put off its advent too long or it will be lapping onto the heels of fall. But then, we are not the only ones that are getting the bad weather these days, as in central Nebraska all seeding operations have been susnended on account of snow and rain storms.

A paper in a neighboring town says: We cannot let a day go by without suggesting that the only way to build up a city is to keep money at home. The parable of the prodigal son is a case in point. He took his boodle and went off into another country and spent it. And what became of him? Well, he was glad to feed with the swine before he could get back to the old place where they patronized home industries. There is only one way and that is to keep your dollars at home working for you and not sending them out to feed the strange town.

Harry J. Bilsborrow, of Graceville this state arrived Tuesday to accept a position as foreman of the Gazette's job department, and at once took charge of the work. Mr. Bilsborrow is a printer of twenty years' experience and has had charge of several of the best job printing establishments in the state, and will give excellent satisfaction to work enthrusted to him. With the latest and best type, and printers acknowledged to be among the best in the state, the people of Red Lake Falls can depend that when they bring their job work to the Gazette that they will be satisfied with the efficiency and promptness of the service. Try it and see.

ANIMAL STOWAWAYS.

On Ships and In Cargoes They Often Cross the Ocean.

New York has for many years received numbers of destitute aliens of the animal world from the holds of the banana ships. The trade in bananas is an enormous one, and many of them come from sources at no great distance, whence the fruit can be brought without cold storage. The big clusters of bananas are peculiarly adapted for harboring "stowaways." Among these are enumerated numbers of small, harmless snakes, lizards of various kinds, occasionally, it is said, a young iguana and large and particularly venomous spiders. But real pests which survive and increase in a new country are fortunately rarely transported accidentally. The one serious instance is the chigo, or "jigger." It is said to have been transported from Central America to the East Indies.

The Colorado beetle has never succeeded in making a home in England, though mosquitoes of a peculiarly ferocious though nonmalarial kind are said to have appeared in English hotels. Several corn beetles, a very destructive type of insect and among the greatest enemies of those who would like to create an "emergency" store of corn, have been "dumped" in England with foreign grain and have established themselves.

Bird "stowaways" on ships are very numerous in the narrow parts of the Mediterranean during the migration. They also frequently alight on ships when these are near the coast, being then very much exhausted and glad to find "a rest for the soles of their feet." Golden crested wrens sometimes descend in a storm on some North sea smack on a migration night and even alight on steamers by day. It was confidently stated that a golden crested wren was seen to fly from off the back of a short eared owl when the latter came in from the sea and alighted near a jetty on the east coast.

The belief that some little birds come as "stowaways" on the backs of larger ones was held in reference to the Canada geese by the North American Indians and by the Turks of Cyprus, who alleged the same of the crane and stork. That some birds must travel great distances on ships crossing the Atlantic seems probable. The American bittern and two American cuckoos have been found in England, the first rather frequently. It is conjectured that they can only have crossed the ocean by traveling on the masts and yards of ships, probably steamers, as otherwise they must have died of starvation.—London Spectator.

PITH AND POINT.

A wound in the purse is not mortal.

Don't growl—that's the brute's business.

Those we think are weakest are often stronger than we all.

Every man has at times in his mind the ideal of what he should be, but is not.

Don't misjudge the man with a quick temper—they are the best hearts in Christendom.

Rather prefer to provoke a smile than to provoke a man. There is no harm done by provoking a smile.

Don't try to escape the battle of life. Life is not life without conflict, and death is not death without victory. And the battleground is the man, and the victory is the soul.—Schoolmaster.

True to His Friends.

An answer to an advertisement for a school assistant "capable of teaching the classics as far as Homer and Vergil" makes one of the best stories in the dean of Bristol's book, "Odds and Ends."

"Sir," the answer ran, "with reference to the advertisement which were in the Times respecting a school assistant, I beg to state that I should be happy to fill that situation, but as most of my friends reside in London and not knowing how far Homer and Vergil is from town, I beg to state that I should not like to engage to teach the classics farther than Hammersmith or Furnham Green, or, at the very utmost distance, farther than Brentford."

SAGE LOSES HIS SUIT

MINNESOTA SUPREME COURT DECIDES THE CONTEST FOR RAILROAD LANDS.

Red Lake Indians Agree to Remove and Lands Will Be Opened to Settlement—Death of Colonel Charles J. Monfort, Well Known St. Paul Hotel Man—Traffic Badly Crippled by Recent Blizzard—General State News.

St. Paul, April 9.—Settlers gain title to 25,000 acres of land in Swift, Big Stone and Chippewa counties by a decision of the supreme court.

The decision was in the case of Russell Sage, as assignee of the Hastings and Dakota Railroad company, against Theodore Maxwell, a settler in Swift county.

The points involved are identical to those in 150 other like suits, involving the 25,000 acres of land.

The land was originally set apart as a grant for the railroad company, but settlers took possession before all of the formalities of the grant had been completed.

Justice Start, in deciding the case, says inasmuch as the company had not complied with all of the requirements of the United States land department before settlers located on the land, that the rights of the settlers take priority.

INDIANS AGREE TO MOVE.

Red Lake Lands in Minnesota to Be Opened Soon.

Thief River Falls, Minn., April 11.—Special Indian Agent Thomas Downs has returned from Red Lake agency, where he was successful in securing the signatures of the chiefs and head men to an agreement pledging the Indians to remove from the eleven townships in the west end of the reservation before June 20. The local Indians are adding their signatures to this list as fast as they arrive in this city and a general council has been called to finish up the matter.

This clears the way for an early opening of these lands and allows the purchaser a sufficient time to make settlement before winter sets in. The sale will probably begin about July 1 and continue through July and August.

Colonel Downs will proceed at once with the appraisement of the Indian improvements on the land to be sold.

COLONEL MONFORT DEAD.

Well Known St. Paul Hotel Man Passes Away.

St. Paul, April 11.—Colonel Charles J. Monfort of the Windsor hotel, who for the past ten days has been lingering at death's door, died during the morning. He had been in an unconscious condition since Thursday night, March 31. His death has been expected every day and his wonderful vitality was a surprise to his physicians.

Colonel Monfort took to his bed about a month ago with an attack of pleurisy. For two weeks he was a great sufferer. On March 31 he was stricken suddenly with an apoplectic stroke. Within three hours he was unconscious and has remained in that state ever since. Colonel Monfort was sixty-three years of age. He had lived in St. Paul forty-two years and was manager of the Windsor hotel for the past twenty-four years.

TRAFFIC BADLY CRIPPLED.

Blizzard Rages in Minnesota and North Dakota.

St. Paul, April 9.—Railroad traffic in the Northwest was badly crippled yesterday by the blizzard and wind storm which raged in Western Minnesota and North Dakota. All the passenger trains arriving from the West were late, and the wind wrought such great havoc with the telegraph wires that freight service on the three transcontinental lines was abandoned.

The snow began to fall in North Dakota early Thursday morning. By last night the storm had spread over the entire Northwest, and in parts of North Dakota the fall of snow was reported to be over three feet.

INDIAN FREEZES TO DEATH.

Dead Body Found by Farmers Near Thief River Falls.

Crookston, Minn., April 10.—An Indian by the name of Tom-Ko-Be-Ness was found dead on the prairie two miles from Thief River Falls yesterday morning by some farmers. He had been in the city the night before and had started off intoxicated and evidently became sleepy and lay down on the roadside to rest. He was frozen to death when found. He was well known in that vicinity.

BRIDGES WASHED AWAY.

High Water Creates Havoc on Crow Wing River.

Little Falls, Minn., April 9.—Water in the Crow Wing river along the northern boundary of the county is ten feet above low water stage. Seven bridges at Pillager, Sylvan, Motley and Staples went out.

The bridge at Pillager, built during the winter by the Hewitt Bridge company for $4,300, was a total loss and it had not been accepted, as it was finished only last Sunday.

Child May Die From Exposure.

Duluth, April 11.—Florence Radamaker, seven years old, ran away from her home here and hid in an old shed for fifteen hours because she did not want to take music lessons. When found she was in a serious condition from exposure and may not recover.

Dies From Her Injuries.

Duluth, April 5.—Mrs. Harvey D. Clow, wife of a pioneer citizen and well known steamship owner of Duluth, died last night as the result of injuries sustained by the explosion of the water front in a kitchen range.

MURDER IN BOXCAR.

Unknown Man Slain and Two Suspects Under Arrest.

Owatonna, Minn., April 6.—An unknown man beating his way in a Rock Island boxcar was murdered by one of his five pals in the car between Albert Lea and this city.

William St. Martin, Kansas City, Mo., and Oscar Driscoll, Sioux City, Ia., two of the five men in the boxcar, jumped from the freight as it passed through and notified the chief of police. They are being held as witnesses at an inquest to be held.

A telephone message to Northfield to head off the train with the two other men aboard was sent by the Owatonna chief of police and both men were arrested there.

One of the two men is charged by Driscoll and St. Martin with trying to rob the dead man and then shooting him through the head.

The body of the murdered man was found when the car reached the Minnesota transfer, midway between the Twin Cities.

The remains of the dead man have been identified as Louis Moberg, a Minneapolis laborer.

THREE MEN CARVED.

Colored Porter Uses a Razor With Probably Fatal Effect.

St. Paul, April 8.—As a result of a fight over a woman in a room in the rear of C. W. Swanson's saloon, 246 East Seventh street, shortly after 10 o'clock last night, three men were cut, one probably fatally, by John Strong, a colored porter, who is accused of starting the trouble by insulting Della Moore.

John Reagan, 729 Edgerton street, is lying in a critical condition at St. Joseph's hospital with his throat cut from ear to ear. Twenty-one stitches were put in the cut, and he was so weak from loss of blood at an early hour this morning that the physicians held out small hope of his recovery.

Fred Nordny of Houghton, Mich., son of a millionaire miner, received numerous cuts from Strong's razor, but his condition is not serious.

Donald O'Connell, a fireman, was cut across the left hand, but escaped further injury.

Strong was arrested after a lively chase.

HOMES FOR THOUSANDS.

Lands in Northern Minnesota to Be Opened Shortly.

Washington, April 7.—A big opening of agricultural lands on Minnesota Indian reservations will occur within sixty days. Land Commissioner Richards has decided not to wait for the settlement of all Indian allotments before opening the agricultural lands to settlement.

Accordingly, all lands classed as agricultural on the Leech Lake, White Oak Point and Winnibigoshish reservations will be thrown open to settlement in one proclamation, which is now being prepared.

This opening will be under provisions of the Morris act of 1902. The lands must be homesteaded, and are not subject to scrip entry, timber and stone, or anything save straight homestead entry. The area is large, and thousands of settlers will be able to secure homes.

DEMENTED MAN CAPTURED.

Tried to Run a Train Onto a Sidetrack Filled With Cars.

Duluth, April 11.—Charles Nelson, aged twenty-two, of Spirit Lake, Minn., who left his bed while temporarily insane through a dangerous attack of pneumonia, was captured Sunday at Carleton, Minn., while trying to run an engine and twenty cars. When the engine crew went to lunch Nelson, who was in hiding, entered the cab and started the train. The engineer, seeing the train moving, mounted the engine and succeeded in stopping the train just as it was going into a sidetrack filled with cars.

At the sheriff's office Nelson denied he was ill and when told of the locomotive incident laughed hysterically.

Nelson has been roaming the woods since last Thursday.

DULUTH MAN SUICIDES.

Slashes His Throat From Ear to Ear With a Razor.

Duluth, April 8.—Ebenezer Kilgour, a department store employe, arose from the table at noon, went to the bathroom, partially disrobed and placing a mirror opposite him, slashed his throat from ear to ear with a razor. Despondency is given as the cause. Kilgour was thirty-six years old and unmarried. He formerly lived at Fargo.

Student Stabbed During a Fight.

Minneapolis, April 7.—In a fight last night on the university campus, between the members of the Shakopean Literary society and four rival organizations, D. C. Dow, a leader of the Shakopeans, was stabbed by one of the members of the other associations. The knife wound is not dangerous. At least a dozen other students were injured during the melee which resulted from an attempt to break up the Shakopeans' dancing party.

Maxwell Succeeds Millspaugh.

Winona, Minn., April 9.—The state normal board Friday by unanimous vote elected Professor Guy E. Maxwell, who for the past four years has been superintendent of the training department of the Winona normal school, to be president of that institution to succeed Dr. J. F. Millspaugh, who has resigned to become the president of the Los Angeles normal school.

Awarded to Minnesota Men.

Washington, April 9.—The secretary of the treasury has awarded to Lauritzen Brothers of Fergus Falls, Minn., the contract for the construction of the public buildings at Waterloo, Ia., the building to be constructed of white marble for $113,353.

Killed by Boiler Explosion.

Albert Lea, Minn., April 5.—Chris Rood, the engineer of the Erickson flouring mill of this city, was instantly killed by a boiler explosion here during the afternoon. No one else was injured, although some property was damaged.

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St.,
Chicago, Ill., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maude Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser, you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.

Ed. Langerak and Jorgen Gulseth were down to Red Lake Falls for a load of feed last week.

Edviad Langerak bought a team of horses from Gunder Ashjornson last Friday, we heard.

Edwin Rindal left for North Dakota last week to spend a month or two during seeding time.

Several parties were looking for hay Friday and Saturday, and most of them were entirely out.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Havik and daughter, Ida, were visiting with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bishop last Sunday.

Art Harris returned from the woods last week with two large teams. Art says he will turn the sod this summer.

The worst storm of the season struck here of a sudden last Thursday night, more snow fell during this storm than any two storms put together during the winter.

Old Soren Amundson, up near Lillo, was reported as very sick last week. Dr. Patterson, of Lambert, was sent for. Have not heard since, but hope he is on the way to recovery.

Hay! hay! Well, it is getting kind of scarce now, and parties that have got some to spare are not satisfied in getting ten to twelve dollars per ton in stack, but want to hold it, hoping that the price may come up a little higher yet.

What is a favor? A favor is nothing more or less then an unpaid debt, which is payable whenever its factor is in want by a similar return. If you are a neighbor you will repay, if you are not you are not worthy a favor. Better look up your diary and see how many favors you have not paid yet. Your neighbor now needs a little hay. Didn't you get some from him once before on the "favor plan?" Look and see.

EMARDVILLE

Mrs. Paul Benjaminson is still very sick.

Rev. Ole Kolstoe conducted services at the church last Sunday.

We have had some real winter weather during the past week.

J. G. Hagen is hauling hay from Ed. Jacobson's in Garnes. He says that roads are very bad.

It snowed here from Thursday evening to Friday night. About seven or eight inches fell during that time

Adolph Carpentier, who has been seriously ill for over two months is able to be about the house a little now, but is still very weak.

Svere Jacobson is expected home from West Superior, where he has been working for a long time, this week. After visiting here for a week or so he will leave for Canada.

Harold Bugge, of Garnes, broke one of his buggy wheels while on the road to Red Lake Falls last week. The roads are in bad shape between here and town.

Remember that Andrew C. Ellingson, is ticket agent for the old Cunard and Scandia-American steamship lines. These are the best trans-atlantic boats, and need no introduction to the people of this section. Write to him for particulars.

It is reported that four of the young men from this township will leave soon for Canada, where they have taken claims and will live for a few years on them. They are the Messrs. B. and M. Pederson and S. and J. Jacobson. Their many friends here hope that they will prosper in their new homes.

The roads are so bad that the mail can't get through from Red Lake Falls to Terrebonne in time for the Lost mail route, and as a consequence we don't get our Friday mail until Monday. Our Gazette doesn't get here so we can read it Sundays, which causes a great deal of complaint, and we all hope for an early improvement in the condition of the roads.

This is owing to the uniform success of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the treatment of that disease. Mrs. M. I. ODD KOREAN HABITS

TEAR BASKETS AND HEART CLOTHS AND THEIR USES.

"Secret" Mourning That Every One Knows of and Respects — The Quaint Toilet of a Masampho Belle. A Strange Headdress For Women.

There is a great deal of poetry about all Koreans. This does not make the visitor in their country love them less.

"Why do you shake your husband's gown so ferociously every morning?" the writer said to a hostess in Seoul. "Are you afraid a spider may be weaving in it?"

"Oh, no, moonface," was the reply. "He must be in Japan now—so far it is —and his spirit comes every night to this gown. So tired must he be in the morning to go back so far into his body again."

And she wept copiously, dropping each tear very carefully into a metal lined little basket hung from her waist. If her husband had died on his journey the basket would have been nearly full by this time; every one who has any regard for her would have added a drop or two, and her mourning would have been as intricate a performance as a case in international law. Even as it was the tear basket was steeped in incense and many heartbreaking songs and proverbs wailed over it. Weep flowers—that is, any sort of bloom that withers soon—may be pressed and strung around the basket. The wing of a wounded bird may decorate one side; a motherless child may imprint a kiss upon it for the good of the spirit.

"Do men ever wear the tear basket for women?" I once inquired.

"Oh, moonface, you are curious so much," was the reply. "Women never go away from men in Kowli."

"But they die."

"Yes, and then verra often the good men wear the tear basket in secret mourning."

There is much secret mourning in Korea, and it is like the Irishman's secret—everybody knows it and respects it. A woman who has loved the wrong man may wear secret mourning clothes for him and don the tear basket filled with tears of persons who have not deigned to speak to her in the lifetime of the loved one. At certain hours she may wail round his grave and leave the best of everything to eat on his tomb for his hungry spirit. The worldly mate of the departed looks on, and often it seems she is flattered by the performance. A slave may mourn secretly for the queen, and anybody who wants to may sympathize without hurt for a beheaded criminal.

Next to the tear basket the heart cloth is the quaintest symbol of Kowli emotions. One is never permitted to know of this precious ornament unless it is worn for his or her sake. In old Korea it was placed over the heart of the beloved before being worn in any other breast. One heart cloth often does for a whole family, being worn by different members in turn. Characters representing poetic sayings are appliqued upon it, such as:

"Without thee I dwell with the spirit of the withered tree."

"My heart beats only to thine."

"Ahu—peace."

"The sun will come again."

In some parts of the country heart cloths are placed over the body of the dying and then given to the shanggoo, head male mourner, and the joofoo, leading female mourner.

Masampho is a quaint and picturesque town, nearly as much so as Fusan, from which it is not far removed. One of the sights of Masampho is her shopping district, which consists of innumerable mats spread out on the ground, upon which are exhibited the wares of their owners, who squat beside them.

But the chief joys of Masampho are her deliciously strange little women—the never to be forgotten Masamphonese, wild eyed, glossy haired dumplings, with cherry lines for mouths, who waddle around and about, quacking in fascinating tones.

The Masampho belle's toilet is worthy of the time she spends upon it. Her face is washed with honey oil instead of water. Sometimes she sifts a fine powder scented with her favorite flower over it.

She may stain her complexion to suit her fancy, but generally she prefers it to be the natural color, which is a beautiful ecru. Though she may never be seen by man, save husband or father, during curfew time or women's hours—8 p. m. and 3 a. m.—she may go out freely visiting friends and relatives. Her hair is brushed with a fragrant bunch of switches and glued into many different forms. Sometimes it makes a butterfly or a tortoise and at other times a lot of leaves or a little yampan.

When it is properly shaped, big jade or glass pins are stuck in. The only cap she ever wears has no crown. Its back is shaped like a helmet, and there are two long tassels hanging from the forehead and neck brim. Her cotton trousers are as full as a divided skirt and become narrow at the ankles, where they meet little socks made of grass and picturesque shoes. Her skirt is very full and shirred at the top into an eight inch band. This fits tightly around the chest and under the arms. The jacket worn is not over seven inches in length and runs the gamut of Korean blues and greens, which are somewhat the tints of the peacock's tail.

If of the common people, she may allow her small feet and ankles to show, but if of noble blood her skirts must sweep the streets. All women carry with them a long cape, so that if by any possibility they should meet a man they may throw it quickly over their heads, leaving only a slit in front for the eyes.—New York Post.

LATE LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Rev. Father Fayolle visited at the cities the first of the week.

Miss Anna Sutter is visiting her sister, Mrs. Chas. Chapman, at Duluth this week.

Landlord W. A. Arthur, of the Markham at St. Hilaire, is a caller here today.

Wanted—Good hired girl. German or Norwegian. Will pay good wages to right party. Come at once.—Mrs. L. Sieff.

The council will hold a regular meeting at the city hall tonight and it is expected that several important matters will be brought up for settlement.

A pleasant surprise party was given in honor of Joseph Harren last evening, at the home of his parents. A good crowd was present and a first-class time enjoyed.

A young folks party was given at the Francois LaBissoniere home last Friday evening. Dancing was indulged in, and a good time was had by all in attendance.

Miss Jessie Orcutt was down from St. Hilaire yesterday, and last evening organized a chorus of mixed voices, and from now on will give regular weekly lessons.

The jammed ice in the Clearwater has moved several times during the past week, and the remains of the Klondyke bridge were carried several hundred feet down the river. The Red Lake river has not yet broken and until it does there is likely not to be more movement of the ice in the Clearwater.

Joseph Therrien, an old-time resident of Terrebonne township, but now of North Yakima, Wash., arrived this morning for a visit with his old friends and neighbors, and is a guest of B. Sivigny and family. Mr. Therrien is a warm admirer of Washington state, and says he has prospered since going to that country.

The Adams Presbytery will convene here next Thursday for the purpose of conducting the service installing Rev H. W. Knox as pastor of the Presbyterian church here. Dr. Adams, of Minneapolis Rev. McKenzie, of Crookston, and Rev. McLeod, of Bemidji, will be here to assist in the services, and special music has been arranged for the occasion. The services will be held at 7:30 p. m., and the public is cordially invited to attend.

In last week's Gazette Dr. J Gendron advertised his house and lot for and the paper had only been out a few hours when he sold them to Simon Sutter, of this city. The property will be occupied by Mrs. John Sutter and her daughters, they having moved last Saturday. The oft-repeated saying that it pays to advertise is plainly demonstrated in the above sale, but the people get practical demonstrations of this truth so often that it is unnecessary to call their attention to it.

The Chas. G. Rapp will case is on before the Judge of Probate at Red Lake Falls today. O. F. Post is petitioning that he be appointed administrator, and Bertha Pederson, through H. W. Lee, is contesting, claiming to be the common-law wife of the deceased. It is more than probable that the case will go to the district court and come up at the October term, but the Gazette goes to press too early to state what was done.

The Gazette desires to state that anything that may have appeared during the present "newspaper scrap" that referred to anyone not directly interested, was not said with the intent to in any way injure the business or character of said party, and does not believe the readers took it in that light. In a controversy things are often taken differently than they are meant, and while the Gazette referred indirectly to a third party in the affair it did not wish to do personal injury. Instead of throwing dirt at each other, we should all pull together for our united interests, and this paper is glad that it is not to blame for the little unpleasantries that have been exchanged during the past few weeks.

Tuesday's Minneapolis Journal contained a report of the crop outlook for the northwest, in which reports on the conditions existing in each county were given, but if the reports of other counties were not more accurate than that credited to this county the Journal had better save its space in the future. It stated that the wheat acreage would be short here this year from the fact that seed wheat was a scarce article and could not be procured. The Gazette has taken the trouble to thoroughly investigate this report, and those that are in a position to know say that there is as much or more seed wheat in this county this year than there has ever been and that while the season is undoubtedly a little late that the Valley will more than sustain its reputation as the "bread basket of the world" while the threshing machine evidence is turned in this fall. Crop reports are a good thing but a paper occupying the position the Journal does in this territory should be sure they were right before they went ahead.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Emma Cyr, Lillian Nauman, Paul Brunelle. Athenian Reporters.

Humorous recitations in English are the latest.

Studying outside of the main room is henceforth forbidden.

The Seniors have begun to prepare for commencement week.

Miss Iddings has a hard time teaching those Freshies Algebra.

The last program of the term will be given by the Spartans to-morrow.

The Seniors held a meeting Monday to prepare for the graduating exercises.

Unearthly sounds invaded the quite of the assembly room Tuesday morning.

A diamond ring is seen on the hand of a High School boy. What will be next?

The blackboard in the physical laboratory now answers the purpose of the bulletin board.

Several boys stayed out of school the first part of the week to be sure to see the ice go out.

The Junors would be highly pleased to see you at the K. P. Hall next Wednesday evening a few minutes.

A few of the girls have the honor of seeing their pictures decorating the ceiling of the assembly room.

The Physic recitations have been having a rather musical air of late, in consequence of the study of sound.

The pupils were told to make a list of the different kinds of birds this spring. Most of the lists will have "snow-birds."

On account of the large number of absences last Friday, many of the numbers in the Athenian program could not be filled.

"Look out doors" passed around the room Wednesday. When the pupil turned around to his great surprise he saw it was raining.

The boys ran around the block to get wind before the snow went out but they have to run on the sidewalks now because the roads are too muddy.

The Juniors will give a supper next Wednesday evening at the K. P. Hall. Don't miss this opportunity of having a good time and helping a good cause.

BIG JAM IN RIVER.

Louisville Resident Tells Crookston Times About It.

Crookston Times: John La Crosse one of the prominent farmers who resides a short distance from Louisville Ferry across the Red Lake River, located about seven miles above Gentilly was in the city last evening and reported the biggest ice jam for several miles in the river up in the vicinity that was ever known in recent years. He says the water has already reached high water mark, and is still on the rise, and will continue to rise until the jam breaks. The jam extends back for four or five miles, and is tremendous in proportion.

The prairies have been flooded for miles back, and the view from the banks, of the river towards the prairie resembles a lake of vast expanse, and it is possible to go from one farm to another in a boat without the least difficulty.

Alphonse Dorwin, who resides in Crookston, but who operates a farm three miles above Gentilly on the river, has just returned from an inspection of the conditions there, and he reports another great jam in the river at that point. The ice is piled high and is in every kind of shape imaginable. The water has backed up and is as high or higher than in 1897. The cool weather is all that prevents it being higher than it is and should it turn warm suddenly, melting snow fall, or should a rain set in he believes the result would be disastrous.

At Gentilly grave fears are felt for the safety of the new bridge built by Polk county last year, as the ice in the jams above will come down with great force, and may be more than the structure can stand.

When the jams refered to break the time it will take the flood waters to reach this city is variously estimated at from 12 to 24 hours. There will without doubt be a big raise in the river here as a result, and it has been suggested that the people on the flats watch the conditions closely. While it is possible that the water here will not be much higher than it is now, the chances are very greatly in favor of a sudden rise when the break comes up the river.

New Mail Cards.

There appears to be a general misunderstanding in regard to the new ruling of the post office department in regard to "private mail cards," and the following extracts from the ruling will set the people right as to the use of these cards:

The new ruling affects only the size of the cards used and the matter placed upon the address side and according to that ruling cards bearing the words "United States of America" upon the address side are, because of the similarity thus formed between private and government cards, unmailable. The size of the card must be the same as that of a postal card, the weight and quality of paper used to be substantially that of the government postal card of like size, and may be of any color which does not interfere with the legibility of the address or postmark. Each card must bear the word "Post Card" on the address side, unobstructed by other matter and must be in conspicuous letters, so placed as not to interfere with the address and postmark. For the purpose of giving owners having the old style cards on hand an opportunity to dispose of them the new ruling will not take effect until July 1. after that date cards not conforming to the above rule will not be mailable at any rate of postage.

Want Field Meet.

Crookston Journal: There has been no movement as yet among the pupils of the Crookston High school toward organizing spring field meet, and it is not known whether the annual athletic tournament, which several years ago was so successful will be duplicated this year. It is understood that there is considerable available material for good work in the school and that the boys are practically in trim, having attended the "gym" all winter. The reorganization of the old Red River Valley athletic association with Fertile, Red Lake Falls, Ada, Warren and Crookston as members, would be a good idea and would stimulate the athletic movement in school work. It is probable that some action may be taken by the Crookston school within the next few weeks which will result in a field meet.

Co-operative Farming.

Blue Earth Enetrprise: The success of the co-operative creamery has given the farmers encouragement to think that other lines could be taken up in the same manner with equal profit. Recently the farmers of Albert Lea considered the matter and are now agitating the proposition of establishing a co-operative packing house, rightly arguing that the saving of freight alone would result in a fair margin of profit over that which they are now receiving from the great packing houses which now control the market and dictate the prices for live stock.

Secured a Divorce.

"Hank" Murray, who for years was conductor on this branch of the Great Northern, has secured a divorce from his wife. The Crookston Times has the following to say of the case:

"A decree of divorce was granted to H. T. Murray by Judge Watts on Saturday. No defense was made on the part of the defendant. Mr Murray was given the guardianship of the little girl, and leaves with her tonight for Visitation Convent where she will be educated. The residence on Houston avenue has been sold to Martion O'Brien who will occupy it."

New Mail Carrier.

Crookston Times: Acting Postmaster Gildersleeve has been notified by the department of the termination of the contract held by Wm. Simpson for carrying the mail to Red Lake Falls on Sunday, and hereafter Clifford Dufour will take charge of the star route to that place, Mr. Dufour will make the trip once a week, beginning April 10th, and continuing, if satisfactory to the people along the mail route, until June 30, 1907.

DITCH REVIEWERS MAKE A REPORT

Meet at Crookston Saturday and Report on the Work Done.—The Ditch Will Be Built.

The board of ditch reviewers appointed consisting of Messrs. Edward Stowe, of Hill River, Olaf Tande, of Garnes, Red Lake county, and Joseph Pigeon, of Poplar River, which was recently appointed by Judge William Watts to consider the damages and benefits to be derived from the passage of the Red Lake, Polk county ditch known as Judicial ditch number 1, met Saturday at the court house in Crookston and with a multitude of maps and charts proceeded to get into the business in dead earnest.

All of the members of the board are farmers who live on or contiguous to the proposed route of the ditch and they have a thorough knowledge of the territory and the value of the land through which the waterway will run. The ditch, according to the reviewers, will drain some two hundred thousand square miles of hay marsh and convert into productive wheat fields what has been before only used a portion of the time for hay. The ditch is sixteen miles long, traverses a westerly direction from the eastern end of Polk county through Red Lake county and empties into the Clearwater river at Larry O'Neill's claim or twenty miles above Red Lake Falls. The territory drained is known as the big meadows and has been noted for its large crops of heavy marsh hay. The building of the waterway will about balance between benefits and damages. A very small portion of the property at the extreme western terminus of the ditch will be damaged but the greater portion of the land will be greatly benefited.

The depth of the ditch will vary from two feet at its eastern end to nine feet at its junction with the Clearwater. One of the features of the ditch will be the turnpike wagon road which will be graded from the earth thrown up by the contractors. The territory adjacent to the waterway has always been almost inaccessible in high water and the building of the road will provide an easy means of travel for the farmers. The total cost of the ditch as the reviewers have the figures will be $33,000. The reviewers will finish their labors on Tuesday of next week and after the filing of their report twenty days must elapse before the final hearing on the ditch before Judge Watts.

May Sell Lands at Public Auction.

Representative Steenerson has said that he was hopeful that the secretary of the interior would dispose of the Red Lake lands in Minnesota at public auction.

When the Steenerson act was first passed it was stated at the department that the sealed bid plan would be followed. In view of the fact that only one-quarter can be sold to a single purchaser consideration is now being given the suggestion of Representative Steenerson that public auctions be held.

WE GET SOME BACK MONEY.

Auditor Ford Does a Stroke of Business With the Polk County Treasurer.

Through the efforts of County Auditor Ford Red Lake county this week received about $3000 from Polk county which will be added to the school fund of several districts and to the town and village fund—half and half.

This is money collected on delinquent taxes in the several districts on taxes levied prior to 1897, when Red Lake was a part of Polk county, and instead of waiting for it to come in small amounts Auditor Ford made up the list and gently hinted to the treasurer of Polk county that "we needed the money", with the result that it was forthcoming immediately.

The several school districts that will receive aid from this money are No's. 12, 15, 18, 32, 40, 49, 73, 76, 79, 81, 88, 102, 108, 115, 124, 125, 126, 127, 133, 141, 147, 166, 210, 214, 216, 227, and 228.

Auditor Ford is always alive to the best interests of the county, and it is well known that we will get all that is coming to us while Jim handles the reins of office—which will be for a good while yet if the people of the county have anything to say about the matter.

SCHOOL BOARD ENGAGES PRINCIPAL

Prof. Chamberlain, of Pine City, Secured for the Ensuing Year.—An Able Instructor.

The school board held a meeting at the office of the clerk last Saturday evening, and as all the recommendations of the various applicants were at hand, proceeded to elect a successor to Prof. F. A. Whiteley, who was elected a couple of weeks ago but declined the position.

The various recommendations were thoroughly investigated and after some discussion of the matter, Prof. E. W. Chamberlain, now of Pine City was chosen to fill the vacancy. There were several applicatsons before the board but by carefully comparing all things they decided that Mr. Chamberlain was the man they wanted.

The new Professor comes highly recommended, and is said to be one of the best instructors in the state, which assures the people that the present excellent standing of the schools will be fully maintained. For the past several years he has had charge of the schools at Pine City, and has been in the work for a number of years prior to that time. He will be here on the 30th of the present month to meet the members of the board personally, and look over the field.

Miss Delia Widing, who had been re-elected as teacher of the 6th and 7th grades, tendered her resignation, which leaves five vacancies in the grades to be filled.

The board will meet again on the 30th inst., when it is probable that the remainder of the teachers will be chosen.

ICE GETS ANOTHER BRIDGE.

Clearwater Bridge at Terrebonne is Carried Away By Ice Jam.

The bridge over the Clearwater at Terrebonne went out with the ice last Friday, and was badly broken up. This is the bridge that the county had just expended $1000 on, in putting in new piers and the piers are about all that is left.

The loss of the bridge is a hard one on Terrebonne as a great share of their territory is across the river and the people have to cross this bridge to get to town.

It is stated that steps will be taken to commence the erection of a new span, and it is possible that the commissioners will be asked to help with the work of rebuilding in the matter of finances.

New Line of Shoes.

The Big Store is just opening up an immense line of easy shoes for house wear or for tender feet. And don't forget them for fine Shoes. The St. Cecilia is the daintiest shoe in the city or the county, by all odds. Ask those who wear them if they would have any others. Also a full line of the Cygnus for men, at $3.50. Compare these with any $4 shoe in the city.

MEANS BUMPER CROP.

Crookston Journal Man Sees Good Things Ahead.

Crookston Journal: Farmers of the Red River Valley are not discouraged with the weather conditions. They have experienced other years with identically the same weather conditions as this one and they have received large crops and bountiful harvests even though the seeding was late and the spring work delayed by the inclement weather. An old maxim of the farmer says. "A late spring is productive of a large crop of wheat," and it is to be hoped that this year which is certainly a backward enough spring will be no exception to the rule.

Farmers who have lived in the valley since the time the first settlement was made are optimistic. They believe in what they preach and honestly expect this fall one of the largest bumper crops ever raised in the valley. Of course this summer will have a great deal to do with the yield per acre and the country is not entirely free from the various injurers of the crop such as hoppers hail and blight—still judging from what has been received in the way of well filled granaries and pocketbooks upon former years with backward springs—the fall of 1904 should be a prosperous one for the Red River Valley farmer. There is not such a great deal of water upon the prairies as has been made out and what snow and water does at present cover the fields will rapidly vanish when once Old Sol opens up in dead earnest and brings spring in with all of its melody and glory. The country has endured the inclement late spring weather and when the warm sunshiny balmy days do come they will be better appreciated than if they had come in their proper place according to the seasons of the year.

The ditches of the valley which were completed last year will be a great factor in reducing the amount of water on the prairies and draining the fields for seeding operations. Without the ditches seeding would doubtless have been delayed by the snowfall for several weeks but under existing circumstances no long delays are anticipated after the season opens up.

Meets With Drainage Board.

Crookston Times: Engineer George A. Ralph, of the state drainage board went to St. Paul Friday evening to attend an important meeting of that body. It will be the first business of the year for the transaction of business of any moment and all the work to be done the coming year by the state board will be discussed,

As the annual appropriation placed at the disposal of the state board is but $25,000. the work will be necessarily very limited. Polk county will probably get an appropriation for some work on the Grand Marais north of East Grand Forks, but there will be applications for several times the entire amount available, from various parts of the state. The state appropriation is comparatively speaking but a drop in the bucket, as Polk county alone has spent as high as $50,000 in one year. While the system of county ditches in western Polk county is excellent, and will be able to handle the water under ordinary circumstances, there is still a large amount of work that should be done by the state, such as that necessary on the Grand Marais, and it is hoped that a good slice of the state appropriation can be secured for this purpose.

It al: there will be about 25 miles of state ditches constructed this season.

ASSESSORS' INSTRUCTIONS.

Issued in Circular Form—All Property Must Be Raied.

State Auditor Iverson has issued the annual circular of instructions to county auditors and township assessors. The circular calls attention to the rule adopted by the state board of equalization last fall, requiring all property to be assessed at 50 per cent of its real value. Under this rule personal property is to be assessed at the following rates:

Horses, 1 year old, $10 and upwards; horses, 2 years old, $17 to $20; horses, 3 years old and over, $30 and upwards; cattle, 1 year old, $5 to $6; cattle, 2 years old, $9 and upwards; cows, $12 and upwards; all other cattle $15 and upwards; sheep, $1.50 and upwards; hogs, $2.50 and upwards; wagons, carriages, bicycles, etc $12 and upwards; sewing machines, etc., $5 and upwards; watches and clocks, $40 and upwards; melodeons and organs, $15 and upwards; pianos, $80 and upwards; dogs, $5 and upwards.

The assessors must place a valuation this year on real estate, which is only assessed every two years. The total valuation in 1902 was approximately $650,000,000.

The assessorr are to meet Thursday the 28th, with their county auditors to receive their assessment books and get instructions, and on May 1 they will start out making assessments. They are especially urged this year not to list property in the wrong column, which causes great confusion and to pay no attention to the $100 exemption. The exemption should not be deducted by county auditors till the work of equalization is finished.

Tindolph Sees The World.

With the exception of the little go-between Minneapolis and the east coast of Maine, Wiley Tindolph, 110 Temple Court, had marked his trail clear around the borders of the United States when he returned to Minneapolis this week says the Minneapolis Journal. Leaving this city early in December, he went to New York and with the approach of cold weather dropped down to Virginia to visit his son who is attending a medical college. Proceeding on down through the south, he visited points in Florida, saw Montgomery, Ala., the first capital of the confederacy, spent some time at Mobile and New Orleans, and then went by way of Galveston and Houston to California, Seattle and Vancouver, thus practically completing the girdling of Uncle Sam's domain.

Mr. Tindolph says that all through the south race hatred is bitter and the Booker Washington incident is still laid up against Roosevelt So tense is the feeling between negros and whites at Houston, Texas, that when the city council passed an ordinance restricting the former to certain seats in street cars, these conveyances were universally boycotted by the colored people, who now walk rather than submit to color line distinctions.

Once north of the line Mr. Tindolph noted a distinct change in political sentiment and he says Roosevelt was the popular favorite in all other sections of the country he visited.

Mr. Tindolph still calls Minneapolis his home, though he has been away from the city much of the time for the last three years. He retains large interests in Minnesota. however, having devoted much energy to the development of Thief River Falls and Red Lake county.

MUST DO GOOD WORK.

Auditor Iverson Lays Down the Law To Assessors.

Despite the fact that 5,871 new names were added to the assessment rolls and $19,489,832 of additional property was assessed in 1903, State Auditor S. G. Iverson says he is confident that there are still thousands of people in Minnesota who are escaping taxation entirely.

In his annual letter of instructions to assessors, throughout the state, issued today, Mr. Iverson warns them to let no one escape.

The record of 1903 was the greatest ever made in one year in the history of the state. Mr Iverson says it must be exceeded this time.

He insists that all assessors pay no attention to the $100 exemption allowed by law. but to leave that point to the county auditor. They were especially instructed to observe the rule laid down by the state board of equalization, which says that all assessments, both real and personal, be returned at fifty per cent of the fair cash value.

CURES WITHOUT STOMACH DOSING.

Hyomei Cures Catarrh by Simple Breathing. A. L. Reichert Refunds Money If It Fails To Cure.

A long stride toward solving the mystery of curing catarrh was taken with the discovery of Hyomei. In fact, the percentage of cures by this treatment proves it equal to the final tests.

The folly of taking medicine into the stomach to cure catarrh of the nose, throat and lungs, has been realized by physicians, but not until Hyomei was known, had they a practical method that would obviate stomach drugging.

A complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1, and consists of a neat pocket inhaler that can be used anywhere without attracting attention, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathing Hyomei through the inhaler, every particle of air that enters the nose, throat and lungs, is charged with a healing balsam that soothes and allays all irritation, kills the catarrhal germs and enriches the blood with additional ozone.

A. L Reichert has so much faith in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrh, that he is selling it under his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not give positive relief.

STORIES OF STETSON.

His Warning to Webster and a Sign That Was Changed.

"That reminds me," said a well known actor. "Your story of the manager who, when he was advised to book 'The Corsican Brothers' as a strong attraction, asked 'What kind of a turn can they do?' recalls to my mind an incident in the career of John Stetson, the famous Boston theatrical manager. John had not had the advantages of a college course, but no one got the better of him in a business deal.

"John had a fellow named Webster, who used to paint a little scenery and do odd jobs about the theater. One day a dispute arose between the stage director and one of the actors as to the pronunciation of a word which occurred in the play.

"Stetson entered while they were arguing and asked what the matter was.

"'Why,' said the stage director, turning over the pages of the dictionary, 'I contend that this word is pronounced thus, and my contention is backed by Webster.'

"'Oh, pronounce the word as you please, and you, Webster,' said Stetson, looking up into the flies, where his man of all work was busily engaged, 'you tend to your paint frames and leave questions of pronouncing words to me.'

"Gus Sharp was the resident manager of the Boston house. He got along with Stetson first rate usually, but once he was caught signing house notices with his own name.

"It was like this: Stetson was walking up and down at the back of the theater one night, and he noticed that lots of persons came late, after the curtain had been raised.

"He sought out Sharp and asked him to place a notice in the lobby stating the time the curtain would be raised. Sharp accordingly had a sign made and hung in front of the house. It read, 'Curtain goes up at 8:15 sharp.'

"A couple of days after this Stetson came along and paused in front of the sign. He seemed to grow more excited with each moment that he viewed it. Finally he entered the business office in a great rage and said to Sharp:

"'I want that sign changed to "Curtain goes up at 8:15 Stetson," and don't forget that I'm manager of this house.'"

Spanish Children.

With the exception of the Japanese the Spanish children are perhaps the most polite in the world. Their training in this respect is exquisite.

The education of the girls in the little elegancies of life is even more careful than that of the small boys. The well bred Nina, though her summers may be counted on one hand, asks in the morning after your health and expresses her gratification on learning that you have enjoyed good rest. If you admire the rosebud in her hair she promptly answers, "It is at your disposal," and slips it into your belt. If you both are thirsty and there is but one glass of aniseed water she insists that you shall drink it. If there is a doorway to be passed no extremity of excitement or sleepy eyed weariness can induce her to enter before you. If you offer her a choice in presents she will only say, "What you are most pleased to give me will be what I shall like best."

Her games, too, are full of coquetry and courtesy.—Exchange.

Horrors and Crowds.

"One of those things that are past the finding out," said a man of observation, "is what impels people to rush off frantically to some place where a blood curdling sight may be seen. I was attracted recently by a crowd of people, black and white, old and young, and mostly females, in a street in a close group about something which I was told was a negro woman whose husband had slashed her terribly with a razor and who was then thrown into a gutter by the brute, only to be thrown violently back, all bloody and bruised, where she had crawled out. I heard all this, for I do not see why I should harrow my feelings by unnecessarily viewing horrors and having remembrance of them give me bad dreams. But, as a rule, the greater the display of blood and bruises and broken bones the greater the anxiety on the part of the people to push and crowd until their morbid curiosity is gratified."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Told of Mark Twain.

Mark Twain and W. D. Howells were one day lunching in a cafe in New York.

Two overdressed young men entered, and the first said in a loud voice:

"Waiter, bring me some bisque of lobster, a bottle of white wine and a chop. Just mention my name to the cook, too, so that everything will be done to my liking."

The second young man said:

"Bring me some sole with peas, and tell the cook who it's for."

Mr. Twain gave his order a moment later. He said, with a wink at his companion:

"Bring me a half dozen oysters, and mention my name to each of them."

Now what do you think of that? Several points in North Dakota were buried in snow again yesterday morning, while the good old sun was doing effective duty here. If this keeps up there is still hope that we may some day have summer again.

The different clubs of the western baseball association played the opening games of the season yesterday, and from now until the football hero appears on the field we may expect to find but little other news in the metropolitan dailies. All hail the heroes of the great American game.

County Surveyor Smiley will be a candidate for re-election at the fall election. If all the candidates had the sure thing that friend Smiley bas, the campaign wouldn't heat up to any perceptible degree. He is too good an official to send back to the private ranks, and the voters will endorse this sentiment when they get the chance.

County politics show signs of coming to life shortly, and before we know it we will be in the midst of a strenuous old "brass band, red fire, torch light procession" existence. There are a great many political bees buzzing in the different bonnets throughout the county, and it isn't likely that any nomination will be compelled to go by default.

The local Tammany organ sees no chance of one of his own party getting elected to the legislature (unless he should condescend to run himself) and has already climbed onto the Simons band wagon. "De boss" is bound to try to be the whole thing all around, even if he does have to forsake his own partisans, but it would appear that the Republicans of Red Lake county have already read the old story of the wolf that dressed up like the sheep, etc.

The Roseau Region again rises to remark pointedly that as yet no one is anxious to try conclusions with Secretary of State Peter E. Hanson at the forthcoming state convention. The Region has heretofore stated, and now repeats, that the northern part of the state is solid for the genial secretary, and the people of Roseau county in particular appreciate what he has done for them in the matter of drainage. By all means let Hanson stay where he is.

It is announced that K. J. Weeks, the popular real estate man of Thief River Falls, will seek the Republican nomination for Register of Deeds, and it is expected that his formal declaration of intention to "get into the game" will be made within a few days. Mr. Weeks is an able fellow, and as the plum will fall to some good Republican this year he believes in the old adage of the "early bird, etc. The Gazette has not heard whether there will be any other Republicans after the nomination or not.

The Gully Sunbeam dishes up a roast for Representative Simons in its last weeks effort, and it is feared that the Judge will not survive the shock. The only unfortunate thing about it is the fact that the Sunbeam is printed outside of the territory which Mr. Simons serves, as its opposition could no doubt do him some good if the people over there could vote for our representative. Mr. Simons has the unanimous support of his home people, and the snapping at his heels by the little fellows isn't going to cut the least figure.

The official call has been issued for the delegate convention of the Minnesota democrats. It will be held at Duluth June 22, and the county conventions to select delegates will occur on Saturday, June 11. The basis of apportionment is one delegate to every 150 votes cast for William J. Bryan in 1900, with three delegates at large from each county except Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis, which get five. This makes a convention of 989 delegates, and the same representation will doubtless govern the nominatnig convention. Red Lake county is entitled to eleven delegates to this convention.

The editor of the Detroit Standard seems to be an authority on kissing, and in his last week's paper gives a definition of that popular habit. But then, if a good looking country editor in a summer resort town isn't in a position to define the word, it would be useless for any one else to try. Here is the way he puts it: "A kiss is a peculiar proposition. Of no use to one, yet absolute bliss to two. The small boy gets it for nothing, the young man has to steal it, and the old man has to buy it. The baby's righ't the lover's privilege, the hypocrite's mask. To a young lady, faith; to a married woman, hope; to an old maid, charity."

A FIGHT TO HOPE FOR.

If Thomas W. Lawson is as good as his word, and starts "a fight to a finish" against the Standard Oil Company, revelations may be expected which will make the shipbuilding trust case pale by comparison, and which may even throw back into the shadow the earlier suits and investigations in which the Standard Oil company gained unsought publicity, says the Chicago Record Herald.

Mr. Lawson is quoted as saying that he "knows the Standard Oil, root, trunk, and blossom," that he has lived "right on the inside with them," that he knows their "colossal weaknesses" and that he has decided that he can conduct the fight and win. He probably has reference to the operations in "high finance" which are generally attributed to the Standard Oil clique, rather than to the business of the oil company itself.

Lawson has the reputation of being a good fighter, and ever since the court proceedings in the "gas case" at Boston began he has been apparently spoilng to open his heart to the public. In his testimony in that suit he said: "Henry H. Rogers (vice president of Standard Oil company) and I have had deals aggregating $100,000,000 between us in the last nine years. One of these deals showed $46,000,000 profits. No writing ever passed between us in any of these deals."

In an interview since then he said that the huge profits were made "without putting a single dollar in jeopardy." He has also explained the lack of written agreements in such transactions by saying that the deals were of the kind that "take money away from the public without in one sense, their knowing that they are parting with it; and this could only be done by what we may call a trick in finance." He added: "They are illegal transactions."

Such speech as this seems too frank to be credible. However, several important suits are coming to trial in which Mr. Lawson will have a chance to go into details. The prospect is an attractive one. Adapting the old adage, we may say that when "high" financiers fall out, the public has a chance of coming to its own.

Odd Fellows Will Celebrate.

The local lodge of the Odd Fellows are preparing to celebrate the 85th anniversary of the birth of the order on the evening of Tuesday, April 26, and the affair will be one that promises to be highly enjoyable. Appropriate exercises will be carried out and plenty of amusement furnished to make the evening one long remembered. All Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and families are invited, and it is safe to assume that they will be there.

Mothers wishing to shoe their boys and girls will find their money well invested if spent at Garceau & Zaiser

GENERAL MILES IS WILLING.

There have been intimations of late that General Nelson A. Miles would not be averse to becoming the Moses of the Democracy to lead it out of the wilderness of doubt and despair into the Promised Land. One of these intimations was conveyed in his letter to the Prohibitionists.

The appearance of the general at the Iroquois Club banquet at Chicago, and the carefully prepared speech delivered by him, however, were something more than "intimations." It may now be regarded as settled that the old warrior is willing. General Miles is not averse to being considered a receptive candidate. He will not dodge the lightning if it strikes his way. Although gray and grizzled in the service of his country, he is not the man to leave his party leaderless in the hour of its greatest need. Having fought Indians a good part of his life, he is not the man to run away from the Democratic nomination for the presidency in 1904. He is not afraid of anything. Other men may take to the "cyclone cellar" when they see the dark, funnel-shaped cloud from St. Louis headed their way, but this battle-scarred Indian fighter will stand like Ajax defying the elements. He will not "turn turtle." He will not cringe before the epistolary blasts from Princeton nor will he dodge the shells from the mud batteries at Lincoln.
